TROOPS SEIZE ARAB CHIEFS AT GATES OF JERUSALEM; MOVE TO TAKE CITY FOILED

96 Jews, 52 Arabs and 4 Christians Are Among the Slain—Protests World-Wide.

British troops seized a Transjordanian Arab leader with his staff at the gates of Jerusalem, where he waited in a car for reports from emissaries he had sent into the city to confer with Arab leaders there. A general attack on the city was believed planned. Otherwise Jerusalem was quiet yesterday.

Brig.-Gen. Dokkie told Jewish leaders in Jerusalem there were now sufficient troops in Palestine to control the country.

London Daily Mail fears a holy war is brewing, as Moslems in Syria become inflamed. It urges Britain to make friends with Hedjaz King to avert a conflagration.

Arabs at Tiberias, on the Sea of Galilee, were reported organizing for an armed outbreak. In Syria the leader of the Druse tribesmen was said to be gathering forces to invade Palestine.

Jerusalem Again Threatened.

By JOSEPH M. LEVY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Friday, Aug. 30.—Wild rumors again spread late last night of a general attack on Jerusalem today, Friday, the Moslem Sabbath, by surrounding Arab villagers reinforced by Transjordanian insurgents under Mikdai Pasha and southern Bedouins under their most powerful chieftains.

These rumors were not altogether substantiated, though it is a fact that after 9 o'clock last night a convoy of thirty military vans, profusely lighted, arrived from Ludd with 500 soldiers cheerily singing and shooting in the air. Shots also were heard, intermittently, from the north and west of the city.

Nevertheless, the population is confident the troops are adequate and will be able to put down any new attempt at a revolt.

Mikdai Pasha, himself, however, is now a prisoner of the British at police headquarters in Jerusalem, having been caught in an automobile with his entire staff, while in the vicinity of the Damascus Gate. There he was awaiting emissaries sent to the Arab headquarters in Jerusalem, whose central organization now shifts daily in order to escape the vigilant Britisher.

The Christian population was taken aghast by rumors that the Catholic agricultural settlement at Latrun, on the road between Jerusalem and Jaffa, was attacked by villagers who killed one priest and wounded two others.

Latrun is famed for its grapes and cheese throughout the Near East.

It is also to be noted that the Ratisbon Convent in Jerusalem recently received threatening letters from Arabs for sheltering the Jewish women and children of the near-by Jewish quarter of Rehavia. The convent has asked for government protection.

Drastic Measures Taken.

With the arrival of Brig. Gen. William G. S. Dobbie here and with his taking over the command of the British military forces, the first drastic measures against the inhabitants of the different villages who attacked Jewish suburbs were taken this morning. Seventy-two Arabs were arrested in Liftah, the first of the villages outside of Jerusalem on the road to Jaffa.

These villagers belong to a group of demonstrators who, when they came out of the Mosque of Omar on the first day of the uprisings, kindled the flame by attacking a crowd of Jewish pedestrians who were walking along the city's main thoroughfare.

Another Arab village in the hills between Jerusalem and Jericho was completely destroyed by bombs from

150,000 Jews in Palestine, 2,000 of Them Americans

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—According to the latest reports to the State Department there are nearly 2,000 American Jews in Palestine exposed to the dangers of a Moslem uprising.

The Americans are only a small part of the Jewish colony in the homeland, figures made public today disclosed. Although the last census of Palestine, taken in 1922, showed 83,794 Jews, immigration as a result of the founding of the Zionist State is believed to have increased this figure to a present population of 150,000 Jews, most of them from Europe.

At the time of the census, 591,000 Moslems were listed and 73,000 Christians. It is said these totals have remained virtually stationary since 1922.

President in Message Predicts Greater Security in Palestine as Result of Tragedy.

OUTBREAK LAID TO LAXITY

Borah at Garden Mass Meeting Charges That There Has Been Stupidity Somewhere.

President Hoover, in a message read last night before 20,000 persons who filled Madison Square Garden at the public demonstration against Arab outrages in Palestine, expressed the conviction that the tragic events in the Holy Land would result in "greater security and greater safeguard for the future, under which the steady rehabilitation of Palestine as a true homeland will be even more assured."

Samuel Untermyer presided at the meeting and introduced Herman Bernstein, who read the President's message, addressed to the Zionist Organization of America.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, asserted that "this catastrophe was the result of carelessness or stupidity or both." Whose carelessness it was only time would reveal. He further asserted that the time had come to decide whether Palestine was to be "a national home or an international shambles." The homeland undertaking he called one which had not been adequately measured, and asserted that it would require the greatest statesmanship and skill.

Others speakers included Mayor Walker, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, David A. Brown, chairman of the Palestine Emergency Fund; Rabbi Samuel Schulman of Congregation Emanu-El; Bernard A. Rosenblatt, former Representative Nathan D. Perlman, Rabbi M. Z. Margolies, Baruch Zuckerman and Bernard S. Deutsch.

Lay Tragedy to Negligence.

Many speakers were agreed that the tragic outbreaks in Palestine were the result of carelessness and negligence on the part of the administration, but they warned against hasty condemnation of the British Government.

The meeting, sponsored by a committee representing more than 150 Jewish organizations, and held also as a memorial for the hundreds of Jews who lost their lives or were wounded in the Arab massacres, was guarded by 120 patrolmen and eleven

SECOND AV. CHOSEN FOR NEXT SUBWAY; COST $800,000,000

TO SERVE FOUR BOROUGHS

SOME ROUTES TENTATIVE

The city's next subway construction program, it was learned from a reliable source yesterday, will call for about ninety track miles at an estimated cost of from $800,000,000 to $850,000,000 and will centre about a four-track Manhattan trunk line under Second Avenue from Houston Street to the Harlem River just north of 125th Street. The plans, to be announced by the Board of Transportation within a week or ten days, will also provide for connecting links and feeder lines supplying new transit service to Brooklyn, Queens and the easterly part of the Bronx.

The Second Avenue line, it is understood, will be carried into the Bronx under the Harlem River, and by means of a new trunk route somewhat east of Third Avenue will be linked to the White Plains extension line of the Interborough at 177th Street. This will provide a through east side route from Houston Street, Manhattan, to East 241st Street, in the Bronx. The Interborough link is separately recapturable under the company's contract with the city, and repossession of the line is said to be an integral part of the program.

To Connect With Line Now Building.

At Houston Street the Second Avenue line is to connect with the new city subway system already under construction and thus afford access to the Brooklyn part of that system by means of the Rutgers Street tube under the East River. By means of new links the new east side subway is also to be provided with outlets by which it may join the present system under construction in Queens. There is also the possibility that it will be linked at strategic points to the Eighth Avenue and Fifty-third Street routes of the system now under construction.

The routes incorporated in the board's program are not final, it was said yesterday, and suggestions will be welcomed from civic associations and other interested groups after the tentative plans are published. The Second Avenue route, however, is considered as settled because investigation by city engineers disclosed that considerations of cost, ease of construction and facility of linking with other transit lines, eliminated Third Avenue or private property between Second and Third Avenues. Both were considered as possible routes when the new program was first suggested to the Board of Estimate last Spring by John H. Delaney, chairman of the Board of Transportation.

Plans Consider Unification.

The Board of Transportation's program will be placed before the Board of Estimate for approval in the Fall. Mr. Delaney first mentioned the new program, which is the second half of the city-wide program announced in 1924, last Spring, but gave no details regarding routes or cost estimates. Later several east side Manhattan routes were named and the cost estimated at about $600,000,000. Engineering studies in progress during the past four months, it is said, revealed Second Avenue as

New Locomotives to End West Side Smoke; Central Orders 35 For Use Within Two Years

The billows of black smoke, falling cinders and loud blasts from steam locomotives which for years have been characteristic of Manhattan's west side south of Seventy-second Street, will disappear within two years and thirty-five oil-electric switching locomotives of the most modern type will glide smoothly over the tracks of the yard at Sixtieth Street and the main branch south of it.

This was learned yesterday when the New York Central Lines announced that the locomotives had been ordered from the American Locomotive Company at a cost of more than $4,000,000. The innovation is in line with the recently announced west side improvement plan.

Under the terms of its contract with the city the New York Central must cease steam operation along the Hudson River above Seventy-second Street within two years. The new locomotives will be operated over this sector as well as south of Seventy-second Street, where it had been expected that oil-electric operation would take place with the removal of surface tracks from the streets. This, the contract stipulates, must be accomplished within five years, but the New York Central will place the new locomotives in operation over the southern sector upon their delivery from the factory within two years.

The New York Central has pioneered in the development of the oil-electric locomotive. The new locomotives will be equipped with batteries weighing seventeen tons each, the largest ever used for locomotive service. Each locomotive will carry 200 gallons of fuel oil, sufficient for ten hours' operation under a full load, and may be operated in any one of four ways, either from a third rail, an overhead collector, storage batteries or battery and engine generator combined.

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Aug. 29.—Our radio station was in direct communication with the Graf Zeppelin last night on the last part of its flight.

Carl Petersen, who was on the night watch, got in touch with the big ship while it was over Bellefonte and talked for some time to Freund, one of the Zeppelin's wireless operators. He also transmitted direct to the ship the message of Commander Byrd to Dr. Eckener, congratulating him on the success of the round-the-world trip.

Petersen had been listening all evening for the big ship. He heard the operator trying to get a New York station and in turn Petersen called San Francisco and notified a station there that the Zeppelin wanted to reach New York on a certain wave length. He found that this information had already been telephoned from San Francisco to New York.

Then Petersen tuned back again on the Graf Zeppelin and picked up the ship almost at once. Freund was apparently as glad to talk to Little America as Pete was to have the unusual experience of making one of the longest distance communications ever held by wireless with the dirigible.

After Freund had taken the message to Dr. Eckener he asked Petersen to wait and came back in a few moments with word that the airship's commander and Captain Wilkins were both asleep.

Pete and he then chatted awhile and Freund was told that it was 40 below zero here, quite a contrast to the temperature of Pennsylvania. Then Pete thought of the trip Dr. Eckener is to make in the north polar regions next year with Nansen and Sverdrup.

"Hope I can be with you," he said.

"I hope your can also," said Freund.

Then the Zeppelin's operator sent the good wishes of all the ship's company to Commander Byrd and his companions here on the ice and said he hoped the season's work would be completely successful.

Petersen cannot resist the call of the polar regions and he has spent several years in them. He was stationed at Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, for a time and was also an operator with a whaling ship at Deception Island, near Graham Land, in the Antarctic.

He offered his services as an operator to Commander Byrd at the time of the North Pole expedition and was quick to apply for membership in this expedition. Like all Norwegians, he is at home on skis and last year went on the trail.

SMITH TO HELP BUILD HIGHEST SKYSCRAPER

COST PUT AT $60,000,000

He Will Be President and Have Executive Control of Concern Yet to Be Incorporated.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith will head a company to be incorporated to build the highest building in the world on the site of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The structure, to be known as the Empire State Building, will be an office building, eighty stories high, and will cost, with the $16,000,000 paid for the site, more than $60,000,000. It will occupy more than two acres of land with 200 feet on Fifth Avenue and 425 feet on Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets.

Mr. Smith, who will be president of the Empire State Building Corporation, made the announcement in his suite at the Hotel Biltmore in accordance with a promise made months ago to newspaper reporters that he would announce his business plans as soon as he had determined them. The former Governor said that supervision of the construction of the building and its management would be his main business. Since his retirement from the Governorship Mr. Smith has been elected a director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and the New York County Trust Company, but his duties in these directorates have taken but a small part of his time. Although the Governor made no mention of it in his announcement, it was said by friends that his salary as president of the building company would be about $50,000 a year.

Directors of New Company.

Robert C. Brown, now vice president of the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, will be vice president of the building corporation and the directors of the company will be as follows:

AUGUST HECKSCHER, financier, real estate operator and philanthropist.

Mr. Smith said that as president of the company he would be in executive control of the erection of the building and its maintenance and operation thereafter. He left during the afternoon for Canoe Place Inn and will return on Sept. 9. Contracts for the demolition of the hotel building will be let soon after his return and the work of tearing down the hotel will begin immediately. Mr. Smith said that engineers consulted have estimated that about a year and a half would be required for the erection of the building.

The proposed building will be the highest in New York City and the highest in the world. The Woolworth Building is sixty stories and 792 feet high, the Metropolitan Life Building fifty stories and 700 feet in height and the Singer Building forty-one stories and 612 feet in height.

To Be Nearly 1,000 Feet High.

The Empire State Building will be nearly 1,000 feet in height, which is nearly equivalent to the length of five city blocks. It will rise fifteen stories on the streets before there is a setback and the great height of eighty stories will be reached by a tower. Under the existing building regulations, which are not likely to

LADY HEATH CRASHES; CONDITION IS GRAVE

ST. MARTIN WINS DERBY

By LAUREN D. LYMAN,
Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Lady Mary Heath, who was preparing to enter one of the women's contests in the national air races now under way here, crashed in her plane through a factory roof this morning and was severely injured. Tonight physicians at the Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland said that her condition was grave.

Her injuries include a fractured skull, a fractured upper jaw and severe cuts and bruises. Fear was expressed at the hospital that spinal meningitis might develop.

Dr. Elliot Cutler, brain specialist, was called in consultation and it was decided to operate at once.

The operation, it was hoped, would prevent the development of meningitis. It consisted of removal of pieces of bone from the brain cavity. Dr. Cutler was assisted by Drs. E. L. Harmon of Lakeside Hospital, Paul Beddoe and Ralph Knutti.

Mechanic Loses Finger.

Erwin Kirk, a mechanic who was with Lady Heath, suffered the loss of a finger.

Less than an hour before the accident Lady Heath's name was entered in a list of women pilots for a cross-country race from Cleveland to Pittsburgh to be held on Monday. She had excused herself at breakfast to visit the factory of the Great Lakes Airocraft Corporation, about eleven miles east of the centre of Cleveland. There she went aloft in a Cirrus powered Great Lakes training plane, with Kirk as passenger.

The British woman pilot two days ago came from last to second place in a race in a plane similar to that in which she crashed and her skill in rounding the pylons with vertical banks at that time drew expressions of admiration from other pilots. It was in one of these vertical manoeuvres that she crashed, according to witnesses.

She had been stunting the little plane, testing its paces for several minutes, and was coming in for a landing, slipping her plane sidewise in a steep descent. Her course lay across the corner of a factory building and almost in line was a tall smokestack.

Husband, in London, Notified.

Apparently Lady Heath saw the stack when she was close to it and in seeking to avert it miscalculated. Her plane struck the roof with terrific impact and burst through the heavy timbers to the floor below.

Officials of the Great Lakes Aircraft Company attributed the accident to the fact that Lady Heath was practicing a dead-stick landing. She had made several such landings during the morning, and on the final flight, the officers added, she hit a wire support of the factory chimney stack, crashing down through two iron girders on the roof which sheared away the wings.

The flier had strapped herself in securely for the test flight and it was with difficulty that she was removed from the wrecked cockpit. She was taken immediately to the Emergency Clinical Hospital and later to the Lakeside Hospital. Her friends

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—For the third time in a year the Graf Zeppelin hummed out of a haze-rimmed sky today, a gray giant that slowly took cylindrical form, dipped a silver tip in salute to a conquered world and settled gently to earth.

Twenty-one days, seven hours twenty-six minutes from the time she sped over New York in a gesture of adieu she was back—the first dirigible to span the globe. Her sixteen passengers and her crew of thirty-three had completed the fastest voyage ever made around the world by any group of travelers.

She had covered 19,500 miles with only two mishaps—a slight hitch as she left her hangar at Tokio and a narrow escape as her tail scraped an electric wire at Los Angeles. Only thrice had her passengers debarked on their world cruise, first at Friedrichshafen, her German home; on the second occasion at Tokio, and the third time at Los Angeles.

Soared Over Siberian Wastes.

The rest of her voyage was smooth sailing and high adventure along an air route mapped by the Zeppelin for other travelers to follow. Over the wastes of Siberia she soared like an astral wanderer, a marvel to lonely souls left far behind in the march of progress. From the windows of her gondolas passengers watched Siberia unrolling like an uncharted map before them. They were the first to see the mysterious land of chains and desolation from aloft. As one passenger described it, "Flying over Siberia is like flying over hell; flying over Japan is flying over Paradise."

New York, Paris, Berlin, Tokio—from one to another capital she journeyed, landing in Japan exactly sixteen days after she had vanished into the night here on Aug. 8. Over the châteaux of France and the tapering gray spires of Germany, over the deadening solitude of the steppes she pushed her way. Over the borderland of Mongolia she cast her arrow-shaped shadow. Then, only a matter of hours later, she glinted in the sky over the land of cherry blossoms where geisha girls halted their clip-clopping to watch her pass, and where Fujiyama was mirrored like a tinted shell in the dark waters of Lake Hakone.

Over the Pacific she sped like a spearhead, outriding storms, eluding lightning, driving through the clouds and keeping an even course, though a typhoon lashed her for a short period. There was danger then, for the airliner rose or fell 500 feet at a time under the buffeting.

Zeppelin Record Trip Crowns Four Centuries Of Globe Circumnavigation Begun by Magellan

Crowning a heroic travel drama of circumnavigation of the globe which began four centuries ago with the Magellan expedition, the Graf Zeppelin nosed into Lakehurst, N. J., yesterday to set a new mark for round-the-world travel, which was 2 days 6 hours 55 minutes better than the previous mark and about 9 years and 6 days better than the time for the original circumnavigation.

The record which the airship demolished was set last year by John Henry Mears and the late Captain C. B. D. Collyer. Using ships and plane, they made the round trip in 23 days 15 hours 21 minutes.

Back of the Mears record lay the long train of marks established since the time the Magellan expedition, deprived of its leader, sailed back to Spain in 1522 after a weary trip through the seven seas. Magellan, daring the broad oceans, set out from the home country in 1519, cut inside the then unknown Cape Horn and across the Pacific. He lost his life in a fight with natives in the Philippines, but his diminishing followers continued on the voyage to complete the first round-the-world trip in 3 years and 29 days.

After Magellan came the intrepid Francis Drake, who, in 1677, left Plymouth with five ships and 164 "men, gentlemen and sailors." He returned to the English shore late in 1580 after having circled the globe in 2 years 10 months and 20 days.

Circumnavigation of the globe became frequent thereafter and sailing time decreased, but back in the 1870's Jules Verne, French romancer, presented the fictitious trip of Phileas Fogg under the title of "Around the World in Eighty Days." It aroused considerable comment and brought about the first of the record-breaking journeys that were to follow. Elizabeth Cochrane, known as Nelly Bly, was sent by Joseph Pulitzer to make the race around the globe. It took her just 72 days 6 hours 11 minutes. This table shows how the time of Nelly Bly was gradually cut down:

1901, George Fitzmaurice, 60 days 13 hours.

In 1924 the United States Army planes set out for the first air circumnavigation of the globe. It took them 363 hours of flying time to complete the trip, but it was almost 6 months to and from the Pacific Coast around the world and back to the Pacific Coast, because of the many stopovers.

In 1926 Edward S. Evans and Linton Wells, using the swiftest means of travel, cut the time for the journey down to 28 days 14 hours 36 minutes, and then in 1928 Mr. Mears and Captain Collyer, carrying their own plane aboard the ships they took, established the record which the Graf Zeppelin shattered when it reached Lakehurst after the long journey.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, attributed today much of his success in the negotiations at The Hague reparations conference to his wife, in a message he sent to The London Star.

"If England is pleased, so am I," read the message of the man who stood so stubbornly for Britain's reparations demands. "I set myself a task and it was not an easy one. Without the help of my wife I could never have achieved it."

DAWES CALLS ON M'DONALD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Ambassador Dawes went to Downing Street this morning to inform Premier MacDonald regarding the results of the latest conversation at Washington between President Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Adams. The Ambassador and the Premier remained closeted for three-quarters of an hour, and when Mr. Dawes emerged he was puffing at his underslung pipe and smiling happily.

The atmosphere in official London today is one of satisfaction and complete confidence that an Anglo-American naval agreement will be announced soon, possibly within a fortnight, but perhaps not until Mr. MacDonald sails for America late in September.

"We are going to get somewhere now," was the way one official expressed his satisfaction. Already, according to this spokesman, both governments have had the pleasant sensation of finding themselves further along on the road to speedy naval reduction than they had thought possible two months ago.

Hoover's Promptness Pleases.

On this side of the ocean, there is particular pleasure today at the readiness with which President Hoover agreed to Mr. MacDonald's latest proposals. The assumption is that the definite proposals made by Premier MacDonald were considered at the three-hour Washington conference and that an unexpectedly quick acceptance was sent to London.

The feeling in Downing Street is that the technical snags in the way of establishing a naval "yardstick" are being eliminated one by one. After two months of preliminary exploration, the negotiators on both sides now know exactly where each stands, and London now feels that the tangle left by the three-power conference of 1927 is at last broken. The developments of the past few days are held to mark a real and

BANK PROBLEM REMAINS

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 29.—France and Germany today gave an example of compromise and coordination, which came as a refreshing breeze across the dry stretches of the Young plan conference, which has been so arid.

After holding up the proceedings for only one day to emphasize the fact that Germany was attending the meeting and was entitled to some other consideration than she has received, Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany accepted one after another, all the compromises which had been proposed, and tonight there was practically nothing else for Germany to do here to permit the Young plan to come into effect.

Rhineland Evacuation Set.

The most important of today's decisions was that setting June 30, 1930, as the day on which all occupying troops should be out of the Rhineland. This was calculated as eight months after the Young plan enters into effect, since it is now scheduled to begin operation on Nov. 1, although, of course, the German payments will be reduced as from Sept. 1.

Dr. Stresemann had fought up to today to set March 15 for the end of the occupation, whereas Premier Briand of France had insisted a year was necessary to move and place in France the 60,000 men which France has on the Rhine. Evacuation of the second zone is due under the Treaty of Versailles next January and will start Sept. 15.

Thus Dr. Stresemann will be able to take to Berlin the definite arrangement for evacuation which he promised in return for Germany's acceptance of the Young plan.

The English announced at the same time that they would remain with the French and Belgians on the Rhine, keeping both troops and occupation commissioners until the end of the occupation. This smooths out one of the bad effects, which had existed up to today, through the British announcement that their troops would be all off the Rhine by the first of the year.

Occupation Costs Apportioned.

Dr. Stresemann also showed loyalty to the Young plan in a compromise for the payment of the costs of the occupation. It had been the German position that the cost of the occupation after Sept. 1 fell on the occupying powers, whereas the French position was that the Treaty of Versailles put that charge on Germany. The Young plan provides that the governments shall agree on the subject and they followed the Young plan.

A pool of 60,000,000 marks (about $14,400,000) was created, of which Germany pays half, France 35 per cent, England 12 per cent and Belgium 3 per cent. Furthermore, it was agreed that Germany would pay all the cost of Rhineland evacuation and as for the claims for damages to German civilians Dr. Stresemann announced Germany would wipe that slate clean on the ground that the endless negotiations for settlement would harm the accord between France and Germany.

To end his day, Dr. Stresemann notified the other powers that Germany accepted in full the settlement made with Philip Snowden, British spokesman, Tuesday night, by which Germany gives up all claim to the overlapping amount of 500,000,000 marks (about $72,000,000) between the Dawes plan and the Young plan so that amount may serve to meet Mr. MacDonald's demands.

Premier Briand said to me tonight: "How can a man show himself fairer and more loyal than Stresemann did today? This conference has done no harm to the relations between Germany and France."

Success of the political commission of the Young plan conference was announced by its chairman, Foreign Secretary Henderson of Great Britain, at this morning's session when he revealed not only full agreement on Rhineland evacuation but that the delicate question of superintending Germany's observance of demilitarization in the Rhineland had been arranged. In the Locarno treaty there was found a method to create a commission to consider allegations of violation of that treaty by anything done by Germany in the Rhineland, while France's right to invoke the League of Nations in case of an alleged violation of Articles XLII and XLIII of the Treaty of Versailles remains unimpaired.

Henderson Sees Peace Move.

Mr. Henderson considered shortening the Rhineland occupation by four and a half years was a good step toward permanent peace. He explained that evacuation of the last zone would begin as soon as the Young plan was in effect, and this will be judged to be when Germany has voted the laws necessary to permit the plan to operate.

"I believe," Mr. Henderson concluded, "we may hope that today we are making decisions which will mean that from now henceforward the World War, with its divisions and its hatreds and clashing, conflicting interests, is left behind and will soon be no more than an evil memory."

In his speech M. Briand paid a tribute to Mr. Henderson and thanked Dr. Stresemann for his fair play.

"You will allow me to feel a great personal satisfaction, for today I see progress in the work to which I have devoted myself for years. The whole world should be satisfied with today's work, and if when I get back to France I am attacked for having made sacrifices I shall say peace is worth that price."

There remains before the Hague Conference the problem of satisfying the small powers whose share of reparations was cut to satisfy Mr. Snowden. There was a happy sign today when Mr. Snowden, evidently impressed by the good work done when his demands were out of the way, let it be known that Britain would give up 5,000,000 marks (about $1,200,000) of the unconditional allowance he had exacted toward satisfying the expectations of the little nations.

Furthermore, the conference must name certain committees provided for in the Young plan which will work through the next three or four weeks until the delegates meet again to carry on the work which could not be done here because of the necessity of meeting the British requirements. The most important of these committees is that to set up the international bank. There probably will be some counter-over the directions to be given to this committee, since Mr. Snowden wishes to make many changes in the bank plan as well as to put the bank in London. He will be fought on both propositions.

M. Briand and Mr. Henderson are leaving The Hague tomorrow for their homes before going to Geneva for the opening of the session of the League of Nation's Assembly on Monday. It is hoped it will be possible to end the conference in a plenary session Saturday, but it is not sure. A meeting will be held tomorrow to finish some details.

Important Step by the Powers.

Agreement by the powers on acceptance of the Young plan represents one of the most important steps toward liquidation of the post-war problems that has been taken in Europe in many years, The Associated Press says.

By the agreement, which must still be ratified by the respective Parliaments, two vital problems, the division of German reparations and the question of evacuation of the Rhineland, have been adjusted.

Germany's payments under the Young plan will represent a decided decrease in annuities. The Dawes plan would have called for payments of 2,500,000,000 marks (about $600,000,000) annually. The Young plan figures are on a sliding scale and during the first year, which should begin Sept. 1, are placed at 1,675,000,000 marks (about $400,000,000). They never rise to the level of the Dawes annuities. It was estimated that the present value of the reparations debt is about $9,000,000,000.

When the experts in Paris reached an agreement last June, after many weeks of negotiations, one of the compromises which had been put into the plan was a change in the Spa percentages by which the proportion of reparations received by the various creditor powers was fixed. When the present conference of the government representatives met to put the Young plan into effect, the British objected to a reduction in their percentage of reparations, contending that Great Britain could make no further sacrifices.

After three weeks of difficult negotiations a compromise was achieved by which Great Britain is to receive approximately 80 per cent of her demands in addition to the adjustment of other matters of a technical nature.

GERMANS FEAR YOUNG PLAN.

Nationalists Object to Paying Allies' Debts to United States.

NUREMBERG, Bavaria, Aug. 29 (AP).—A large German Nationalist mass meeting here last night took an emphatic stand against the Young reparations plan as necessitating Germany's shouldering the debts of the former Allies to the United States.

"Who would have thought that such a spirit could exist in France but twelve short years after the war," this newspaper exclaims. "Every one recalls armistice day when the mid-inetter embraced British soldiers in the street. M. Snowden is not beautiful, but he, too, would have been kissed had he passed along the public highway.

"Today the English are as unpopular in Paris as they were at the time of the Fashoda incident. With us the English are either loved or hated. There is no middle ground. There remains, however, an opportunity to prevent irremediable disaffection and that is through the hope that England will not remain long under the Labor régime."

Bitterness Less Evident.

Other important daily papers contain criticisms of the British Labor policy, but for the most part the extremely bitter note has disappeared.

Leon Bailby in La Liberte says France should come away from The Hague with at least one lesson and that is the value of a "policy of table pounding." Before the war is finally liquidated, France, too, will be faced with the necessity of pounding the table and it is to be hoped, writes M. Bailby, that she will profit by the accomplishments of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Saar Is Excluded at Hague.

PARIS, Aug. 29 (AP).—A special dispatch from The Hague to the newspaper Petit Parisien said that M. Briand had obtained Foreign Secretary Henderson's recognition that the question of the Saar Basin was purely a Franco-German question.

The French Premier was willing for Germany to present definite proposals on the fate of the Saar area, whose inhabitants under the Treaty of Versailles will decide by plebiscite in 1934 whether they prefer French or German citizenship. M. Briand was certain that the rights of different elements of the population would be strictly respected.

HAWKERS FINED IN LONDON.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Complaints by American tourists led to the arresting and fining of five hawkers from the vicinity of the Tower of London and other places of historic interest here today.

The sightseers told the police that the constant solicitation of "guides" and sellers of picture postcards constituted a nuisance which interfered with their enjoyment of London's historic treasures. Special watch was therefore kept by Scotland Yard today and offenders were fined for obstructing the sidewalks.

WHITE PLAINS, Aug. 29.—Dr. Sol Shapera of Mamaroneck reported today that he had no word from his parents at Haifa although he had cabled for news. Harry and Edward Kadish of Tarrytown, announced that they had a cable yesterday from their sister, Mrs. Rachel Makoff, who lives with her husband and three children at Rehovoth, not far from Jerusalem, that all was well.

BRIAND WILL FACE CABINET TOMORROW

MUCH OPPOSITION IS LIKELY

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Complete accord having been accomplished at The Hague, public interest in France is now centred upon the return of Premier Briand and the possible repercussion which the financial and political agreements may have upon the present government.

In governmental circles the greatest confidence was expressed regarding the ability of M. Briand to convince his colleagues in the Cabinet and the nation at large of the advantages obtained through The Hague understanding but in political quarters rumors of dissention continued to circulate.

Briand Won't Tarry Long.

According to the plans as they stand now, M. Briand will reach the French capital at 7:30 tomorrow night and depart for Geneva Sunday morning or Sunday night to attend the sessions of the League of Nations Assembly. Because of the very brief space of time elapsing between his arrival and departure it was anticipated the meeting of the Council of Ministers, to which the Premier must give an accounting of his labors and the results at The Hague, would be postponed until after M. Briand's return from the League sessions.

Such a delay would, it was thought, serve to forestall any hostile movement within the government, assuming that such a feeling exists. Furthermore, it was felt that by the time the Premier had returned from Geneva, public opinion in France, including the forces of the Right and Centre, would have accepted The Hague conclusions with more or less grace.

However, it now appears President Doumergue will come in from his country home at Rambouillet and preside at a meeting of the Council of Ministers at the Elysée Palace early Saturday morning. Just what will eventuate at this meeting remains to be seen.

Certainly military opinion is not at all pleased with the prospect of complete Rhineland evacuation "not later than June 30 next year" and this sentiment is shared by the influential parliamentary groups of the Right and Centre.

André Tardieu, Minister of Interior, whose absence from last Tuesday's special Council of Ministers was widely commented upon, is expected to return from Vittel in time for Saturday's meeting. André Maginot, Minister of Colonies and another aggressive representative of the policies of the Right, will also be present.

While it is highly unlikely that anything in the nature of a real crisis will develop this time, Saturday's meeting may give a good indication of the task which the Premier may find laid out for him when parliamentary activity resumes.

Nation Feels Relieved.

The Hague settlement continues to be estimated here with mixed feelings although on the whole the nation is much relieved. Lack of definite information regarding the terms of settlement has led to a spirited demand for "more light" and no doubt a full statement will be made soon.

Estimates of what proportion of his demands Philip Snowden finally obtained vary from 75 to 90 per cent, but how the money is to be raised and the true value of the assets from which it is to be drawn remain obscure.

The impression is growing that France may have purchased the acquiescence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer at too high a price and from some sides M. Briand is criticized for being too "incorrigibly complaisant," but generally speaking the settlement is welcomed as being more attractive than postponement and possible revision of the Young plan.

Not a little comment was provoked by the hasty but effective action of the Ministry of the Interior Tuesday night in dispatching a flying squad to suppress the projection of any films from The Hague depicting Philip Snowden. However, now that an accord has been reached, the danger of unpleasant incidents is believed to have passed and The Hague films will no doubt be permitted before the end of this week.

L'Intransigeant takes rather a serious view of the incident and observes the police were not alarmed over the showing of pictures of President Hindenburg or Foreign Minister Stresemann, leaders of the former enemy country.

League of Nations Council Will Open Today With All Its Leaders Absent at The Hague

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 29.—The fifty-sixth session of the Council of the League of Nations will open here tomorrow under the presidency of the Persian delegate, Ali Khan Foroughi, with all its leading members absent at The Hague but expected to arrive in Geneva on Sunday.

Meanwhile Premier Aristide Briand of France will be replaced by René Massigli, chief of the Quai d'Orsay's League section and delegate to the Preparatory Disarmament Commission. Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann of Germany will be represented by Count von Bernstorff, who is also a delegate to the Preparatory Commission, while Arthur Henderson, the British Foreign Secretary, will be represented by Hugh Dalton, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

The Council sessions tomorrow and Saturday, which will be in the nature of curtain raisers to the Assembly, which opens on Monday, will be devoted to routine matters, such as the budget and the reports of various League committees, according to present agenda.

Meanwhile every arriving train is pouring delegates to the Assembly, newspaper men and other visitors from all parts of the world into Geneva for next month's sessions. Thirty seats allotted to the American public at the Assembly sessions have already been covered ten times over for the first ten days and pleas for seats are still pouring in.

The ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new $5,000,000 League palace has been fixed for Sept. 7.

PARLIAMENT OPENING IN SPAIN POSTPONED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Aug. 29.—In the hope of inducing some of the Opposition to reconsider their withdrawal from discussions of the proposed new Constitution for Spain, the government has postponed convening the National Assembly until the end of November.

In the meantime Premier Primo de Rivera, with his Cabinet, is on a tour of the provinces campaigning for the Constitution, and former Premier, Count Romanones, out of friendship for the King, has begun a personal drive to induce Conservative party leaders to support the dictator or at least to accept seats which will be offered to them in the Assembly. But regardless of whether these drives on behalf of the Constitution are successful, the Assembly will meet at the end of November with much the same membership as at the last sitting and will be called upon to approve the Constitution before the year's end, with or without the consent of the enemies of the government.

Sept. 1 will mark the beginning of an intensive drive over the country to convince the people of the necessity for the new Constitution. There will be many large public gatherings with speeches by government, industrial and educational leaders. The resistance of opponents will be limited to a passive form, since they will be excluded from these meetings and the press will not be open to their arguments.

SWISS APPEAL REJECTED.

Sentences of Brothers Who Assaulted British Diplomat Stand.

GENEVA, Aug. 29.—The cantonal court at Berne rejected yesterday the appeal of two Swiss brothers named Balsiger, who brutally assaulted John Leche, First Secretary of the British Legation at Berne, several months ago while the latter was descending the Gurten Mountain alone. Mr. Leche was confined to bed for a fortnight. Sentence imposed upon each brother consisted of twenty days' imprisonment, $10 fine and $50 costs.

If the British Minister had not returned to Berne from a holiday the same day the assault occurred and relieved Mr. Leche at the legation, the Balsigers would have been liable under the Swiss law to six months' imprisonment and a fine of $500 for assaulting the principal representative of a foreign power.

HONOLULU, Aug. 29.—On his way to Washington, where he will confer with President Hoover concerning his recent appointment as Governor of Porto Rico, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by his wife, arrived here this morning aboard the liner President Lincoln.

PORTUGAL FINANCES SOUND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LISBON, Aug. 29.—The Portuguese Government has recovered from the financial chaos existing when he took charge, and now has a treasury surplus of $1,400,000, according to an announcement made by Dr. Salazar, Minister of Finance, today. A credit balance of $12,000,000 was shown.

It is reported Dr. Salazar will shortly occupy the post of Minister of Commerce, as well as that of Minister of Finance.

LEAGUE ARMS SESSION ENDS WITHOUT RESULT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 29.—After spending most of their closing session this morning debating whether to give to their report to the Council a "pessimistic" or an "optimistic" tone, the delegates to the special League committee which for years has been trying to formulate plans for a convention for the control of the manufacture of arms ended by deciding to let the facts speak for themselves.

The facts are that the session, which was called in the hope that some fundamental differences which have hitherto blocked the convention might be overcome, has proved quite fruitless, all the delegates standing pat.

The chief difficulty continues to be the application of the convention's publicity provisions not only to arms made by private firms but also to State munition factories. Japan, which has only State arms factories and which agreed tentatively on Wednesday to publish not only the value but also the number and weight of munitions they produced, returned today to its original stand of allowing only publicity on the value, which is generally conceded to be no publicity at all.

Five States, including France and Italy, declared today that they could go no further with this convention until the convention for education on armaments had been drafted.

Hugh Wilson, delegate of the United States, which already gives more publicity to arms manufactures than has ever been contemplated in the present convention, did not take part in the discussion and returned to the legation this afternoon.

'MISS UNIVERSE' JEERED IN RUMANIA AS TOO THIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 29.—Rumania is not impressed by the girl selected at Galveston as Miss Universe. According to the newspaper Mayarasag, the appearance of Fraulein Lisl Goldarbeiter, the lovely Viennese girl chosen in the United States as representing the highest type of feminine beauty, has been rejected by Rumania as too slim for the Oriental taste.

Fraulein Goldarbeiter invited by the proprietors of a gambling casino at the fashionable holiday resort of Sinaia to spend a long period there as guest of the management. Magda Dimitrescue, the Roumanian beauty queen who was unsuccessful in competition for the title of Miss Universe, was asked to meet Fraulein Goldarbeiter at the Bucharest station.

The attitude of the crowd was so threatening that the Rumanian beauty was obliged to extend protection to her successful rival. She ran with the Viennese girl to seek refuge in the Bucharest Cathedral, but anti-semitic elements demanded that Fraulein Goldbarbeiter be removed, declaring that the Viennese Jewess had no right to seek shelter in the Rumanian cathedral. Large forces of police had to quiet the crowd before it was possible to rescue the unfortunate girl, who had made the mistake of expecting that Western standards of slenderness would be approved by the Balkans.

LONDON PRESS HAILS RHINELAND ACTION

Papers Applaud Hague Decision to Start Removal of Allied Troops Immediately.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—If anything was needed to complete British satisfaction with The Hague conference it was the agrement to begin evacuating the Rhineland at once. All parties have been agreed that British troops should be taken from the occupied territory with the least possible delay. With the Labor party it was a specific campaign pledge.

Fulfillment of that pledge by Foreign Secretary Henderson was hailed with relief today by all sections of British opinion, largely because the occupation had become distasteful as perpetuating wartime hatred. Admiration was expressed generally not only for Mr. Henderson's achievement but for the German delegates' conciliatory attitude.

The Daily Telegraph finds special satisfaction in the fact that the proposed control commission for the Rhineland is definitely abandoned.

"With this and with the dismantling of the machinery of the Dawes scheme," says The Telegraph, "the vexations and the burden of imposed control disappears from Europe. The evacuation agreement may be set off against much that is questionable in the Young plan. The two complete, on paper, liquidation of the war. The ordeal of ratification remains and in France, if not in Germany, it is likely to be a sharp one."

Times Lauds Stresemann.

The London Times pays tribute to Foreign Minister Stresemann's moderation and finds it creditable that amid the grim struggle over the British share of annuities diplomacy should have kept on a level keel.

"It is in every way satisfactory," The London Times declares, "that the occupation which began as a joint undertaking by the countries which had been victorious in the war is being ended by common action on their part, that a coordinated timetable has been established and that the prospect now is that it will be carried out without misunderstanding in an orderly fashion and with a minimum of friction."

The coordinated action of the former allies, in the view of The London Times, utterly disproves the charges that Philip Snowden shattered the entente cordiale with France.

The Liberal Daily News declares Germany's gain is Europe's even greater gain and says the agreement will be read with a sigh of relief everywhere.

"Through the good-will, discretion and forbearance of the statesmen at The Hague Europe has passed another milestone on its path toward peace," The News declares.

Leading Papers Praise Snowden.

LONDON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Leading British newspapers united today in a chorus of approval of what they termed the "victory" of Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, at The Hague reparations conference.

The Independent Daily Express thinks the Labor Chancellor has "placed British prestige in the eyes of Europe on a pedestal higher than it has occupied at any time since the armistice. The nation and the whole of Europe are well pleased that the days of timid acquiescence and submission are ended."

The Labor Daily Herald, Government organ, says a good case, backed by unswerving effort, triumphed. It pays tribute to the attitude of Germany throughout the conference and remarks that Mr. Snowden received tremendous support from President Graham of the Board of Trade and Foreign Secretary Henderson.

"Nothing could have been finer than Mr. Henderson's clear-cut declaration that as far as Great Britain was concerned, the Rhineland was to be evacuated."

"Rough-speaking and hare-brained bargaining disturbed the atmosphere at The Hague and led to feverish excitements in the French and Italian press," says the Conservative Morning Post. "Let us put all that behind and allow it to be swallowed at a gulp in the agreement which the conference was summoned to achieve."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KARACHI, India, Aug. 29.—Three hundred lives have already been lost in the Dera district of the Indus Valley, where swirling floodwaters are bringing death and destruction to the farming villages. Crops and cattle have been destroyed, and many villages have been swept away without a trace being left.

The stricken area lies about 500 miles north of Karachi and about 200 miles south of the Afghan frontier, where the waters behind the Shyok dam are still threatening to pour down the Indus Valley.

Further south in the Sind district there is acute danger of devastating floods, and officials are preparing the population for the worst.

TOKIO NAVY OFFICE SEEKS BIG INCREASE

Program Asks for $188,000,000 in Six Years, Including Four 10,000-Ton Vessels.

TREASURY FROWNS ON PLAN

Officials Call It Extravagant—Move Thought Effort to Provide Weapon for Conference.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Aug. 29.—The Navy Department has submitted to the Treasury its estimates for cruiser replacement—a plan involving the expenditure of 400,000,000 yen ($188,000,000) during the next six to eight years. The program provides for the construction of four vessels of 10,000 tons each, fifteen first-class destroyers and various submarines and smaller craft. The cruisers are to replace four much smaller vessels, the Tenryu, Tatsuta, Kuma and Tama, aggregating 18,000 tons.

Navy officials defend this expansion to the Japanese press by stating that Great Britain's existing and projected strength in large cruisers is 196,000 tons and America's 200,000 tons, while Japan, with only 108,400 tons, requires 31,600 tons more to attain the 70 per cent ratio.

Treasury officials declare that the plan is unacceptable because it is incompatible with the government's retrenchment program. The Navy Department doubtless deems it wise to ask for more than it has any hope of obtaining.

The sanction for these estimates for 1930, instead of 1931 when the existing programs expire, is sought on the ground that, according to the press, the capital ship replacements falling due after the expiration of the Washington treaty would form too heavy a financial burden if combined with cruiser replacement.

The real explanation, perhaps, is that the navy desires to enter the forthcoming conference equipped with a program representing its maximum claims.

ARGENTINA BLAMES LEAGUE

Opinion There Considers British Mandate Should Not Have Been Given.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 29.—Argentine public opinion is always jealously alert to raise its voice in protest against any policy of mandates or of the intervention of strong powers in the affairs of weaker nations in any part of the world which might at some time in the future serve as a precedent for United States intervention in Latin-American affairs. Therefore, it is closely watching the developments in Palestine.

La Prensa, voicing the opinion of a large cross-section of the Argentine public, says that the League of Nations is directly responsible for the present situation because the League placed Palestine under a British mandate and therefore it must accept the responsibility for what La Prensa describes as the "flat failure" of the mandate which La Prensa says has made no headway toward preparing the mandated people for self-government, as was intended when the mandate was granted. It says that the problem is not easy to solve, and for that very reason the League should lose no further time in intervening.

"The League is directly responsible for everything occurring within the territories mandated in its name by whatever State," says La Prensa. "It must comprehend its mission and take whatever measures are necessary to force compliance with the terms of the League pact authorizing mandates."

URGE RECALL OF OFFICIALS.

Prague Jews Call on Britain to Change Palestine Staff.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Aug. 29.—Prague Jews protested at a mass meeting today against the Palestine raids. Max Brod, a poet, called for cool heads in bringing peace there.

"We do not accuse the British nation but the local British authorities in Palestine," he said. "Great Britain promised us fulfillment of the Basel programme. She has given us a national home according to the letter of the law but without any security.

"What we need is frankness and truth, a precise declaration by the government respecting the Wailing Wall. We have no quarrel with the Arabs, only with their agitators."

A resolution was adopted demanding the recall of the responsible British officials in Palestine, reparation for the damages suffered by the Jewish population and energetic intervention by the British Government.

Beirut Consul Reassuring.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—George L. Brandt, American consul at Beirut, informed the State Department today that he felt there was no danger to American interests in Syria because of Jewish-Arab troubles. He said that repercussions of the disorders in Palestine had been felt in Syria, but they had not been serious thus far.

STRONG PEACE PACT URGED AT GENEVA

Kellogg Treaty Needs Means to Settle Disputes, Speakers of Seven Countries Say.

DEFENSIVE WAR ASSAILED

British Parliamentarian Insists United Kingdom and America Defend Themselves Abroad.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 29.—The Kellogg peace pact implies machinery for the peaceful settlement of disputes; it must be greatly strengthened; disarmament must accompany it; and the pact's exclusion of "defensive" wars must be recognized, as far as adherents of the League of Nations are concerned, as contrary to their covenant obligations, in the view of eight parliamentary leaders from seven countries in two crowded public sessions which the Interparliamentary Union, at the request of the American delegation, devoted here today to the implications of the pact.

In a resolution passed at the closing session, the union, however, limited itself to adopting a motion submitted by Count Apponyi of Hungary deploring the numerous reservations and loopholes in the pact and urging the improvement of international judicial, arbitral and conciliatory machinery for the settlement of disputes.

Representative Andrew Montague of Virginia, speaking in behalf of the seventeen members of the American Congress who have participated in the union meetings, had for his subject the consequences of the violation of the pact. The question, he said, was difficult to answer, but he assured the audience "any nation violating the pact would at least find no sympathy in the Government of the United States."

The world, he said, had overturned the "oldest governmental institution—war"—in ratifying the pact, but he agreed that renunciation of war did not end war.

New Instrumentalities Urged.

New instrumentalities for carrying out the second article of the pact, which he considered the most important, must be tried, he said. He declared that President Hoover "looks with profound faith to any measures bringing peace," and laid special stress on the passage in the President's March speech that the pact "paves the way to disarmament." He concluded by characterizing the pact as "a means whereby the United States can touch elbows with the other peoples of the world."

Norman Angell, a member of the British Parliament and author of "The Great Illusion," speaking on the same subject, treated with irony the pact's sanction of defensive wars. By defensive, he said, the powers did not mean merely defense against an invasion, pointing out that although all British wars in the past eight centuries have been "defensive," yet "perhaps the only country in which the British Army during all these centuries never fought a foreign enemy has been Great Britain." Nor, he added, had any wars of the United States since that for independence been started to repel an imminent invasion, although they, too, all had been defensive.

What the powers really meant by defensive, he held, was the right to defend their interests anywhere themselves and to impose by armed force their own judgment in any dispute on the adversary, which he characterized as nothing other than anarchy.

Viewing in New Light Urged.

This right of defense, he said, must be viewed now, however, in the light of obligations under the covenant, the essence of the League being that it does not permit its members to judge for themselves what constitutes their defense. Instead, they are bound to submit disputes to an arbitration council or to a decision of the World Court, with the whole League obliged to enforce the decision of the world community on any State refusing to let the community judge for it.

Although the United States is not a member of the League he believed that if a State violated the Kellogg pact, Washington could not maintain its present policy of neutrality and furnish arms to the violator, but would be forced by circumstances to ask which of the disputants was ready to submit to the arbitration of a third party and act accordingly. In other words, its procedure would be practically the same as the League's.

Count Apponyi, speaking of the juridical recognization implied by the pact, declared that the recommendation of arbitration in Article XIII of the pact should be made an obligation now and all pact adherents should accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court. He had much more faith in the court than in arbitration by the League Council, which he feels could be influenced by political motives.

Sincerity of Powers Challenged.

Count Apponyi asserted that if the pact signatories were sincere the great powers must be willing to be haled to The Hague by a small power and abide by any judgment against them. He held that the League general act provided a good basis for the settlement of non-juridical disputes. He emphasized the loopholes that reservations to the pact left for war, especially "defensive" war.

As to armament, the German Socialist Deputy, Edward David, strongly argued that it was a mistake to believe that peace would be assured by any treaties unless they were accompanied by complete disarmament. He said:

"To seek solution of judicial security first, then disarmament, is no more than perpetuation of armaments and with them of war danger."

The passages in his speech which were more warmly applauded were his denunciation of the victorious powers in the great war as being to blame for the continuance of huge armaments, in which he said these powers do not wish to disarm, although by not disarming they were "violating" the Versailles provisions under which Germany disarmed.

His sentiments were fully endorsed by the Belgian Socialist Senator, Louis Debrouckére. The Danish Socialist Foreign Minister, Herr Munch, speaking on the same subject, explained how Denmark already was trying to carry out disarmament practically.

LOOK FOR AGREEMENT ON NAVIES IN 2 WEEKS

So sure are government circles that an agreement will be reached that they are now only guessing when a Hoover-MacDonald agreement will be announced. If, as Washington dispatches indicate, it will be completed within a fortnight, Premier MacDonald will want to announce the fact as promptly as possible. On the other hand, the effect of such announcement might be greater if it were delayed until just before the Premier sailed for Washington; or still better, if it were announced in Washington by Premier MacDonald and President Hoover personally.

Gentleman's Agreement Likely.

London has a fairly definite idea of the scope such an agreement will have. It is expected to be a "gentleman's agreement" between Great Britain and the United States and will be a necessary preliminary to any world naval conference which might be called. The tragic mistake of the abortive Geneva conference, in British opinion, was that England and the United States neglected to make such a gentleman's agreement before entering that conference.

This time the Anglo-American agreement will not only have the effect of ending naval rivalry between the two countries, but, according to the British view, it will be essential if naval reductions are to progress further.

Ambassador Dawes will call at Downing Street at least once more before Premier MacDonald leaves for the League of Nations Assembly on Saturday. By the end of the week there will probably be further British proposals, which will have to be considered by President Hoover and the naval experts at Washington.

The hope in London is that by the time the Premier leaves for Geneva the whole question of naval agreement will be sweeping along toward accomplishment.

Stimson Comments on Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Secretary of State Stimson announced today that the phase of the Anglo-American naval discussions which necessitated a series of conferences between President Hoover and State and Navy Department officials during the past three days had been completed. He declined, however, to reveal the nature of the matters which had been considered.

It is understood, however, that the complete viewpoints of Great Britain, and the United States on the problem of limitation of cruisers have been placed before the two governments, and, while the differences between the two are few, will require further discussion before an agreement can be announced.

As a result of the conversations which have been going on between Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald ever since the Ambassador arrived in London, it has been found that the two governments think alike on the question of destroyers and submarines and that a settlement of the problem of limiting these categories would present no great difficulty.

It was learned on high authority tonight that as a result of the conferences held here, the American viewpoint on the cruiser problem, the differences over which between the United States and Great Britain resulted in the failure of the Tri-Partite Conference in 1927, has been cabled to Ambassador Dawes for presentation to Prime Minister MacDonald. It was presumed that Ambassador Dawes had placed the American viewpoint before the Prime Minister today. The British viewpoint on the cruiser problem is now before the American Government.

An accord on the principles and basic factors in the problem is hoped for within a few days.

In commenting on reports from Tokio that the Japanese were contemplating a supplementary naval program, Secretary Stimson said that while this development must be considered he could not foresee any way in which it would affect the Anglo-American negotiations, which have been going on between Ambassador Dawes and Premier MacDonald.

Mr. Stimson said he expected to leave late today for his home in New York for a week-end visit.

SINO-RUSSIAN AFFAIR AT A CRITICAL STAGE

RED ARMY READY TO FIGHT

ARREST OF HU-SHIH ASKED

By WALTER DURANTY.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—The Manchurian situation has reached its final and most critical phase with the apparent failure of the Japanese to induce China to accept the Soviet terms for negotiations. Logically, the Kremlin tells itself justified today in issuing to China an ultimatum demanding the withdrawal of the White Russian and Chinese forces from the region of the border, across which they are continually making forays.

The Soviet has completed its military preparations. General Bicuher-Galen has arrived at his headquarters at Habarovsk and the Red army awaits the zero hour with growing impatience. So does the rest of the country, as each morning brings news of fresh attacks on Soviet posts, villages and river vessels, and each evening fresh shootings, arrests and indignities toward Soviet Nationals in Manchuria.

But the Kremlin is in no hurry. It is determined to settle the crisis either by negotiations on its own terms or, if necessary, by its own action. But it realizes the conflict of interest between Marden and Nanking, and understands better than any Western power how chaotic is the internal state of affairs of China. So it is letting the pot simmer in the hope that the goose will cook itself.

That is the explanation of the present waiting attitude, which in reality implies neither timorousness nor hesitation. Nor will it last long unless something favorable develops.

Kuomintang Denounces Hu Shih.

By HALLETT ABEND.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29.—Dr. Hu Shih, China's internationally famous philosopher and author, who has incurred the enmity of the Nanking leaders of the Kuomintang party, has been "recommended for severe punishment" in resolutions unanimously passed by the Executive Committee of the Shanghai District Kuomintang headquarters, which petitions the Central Executive Committee to order his arrest on charges of "having publicly insulted the late leader of the party Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and destructively criticized his ideals, which must be considered as an act of treason against the government and the people."

This is the second official move against Dr. Hu Shih, who lives in safety in the International Settlement, but goes daily outside to the China National Institute University, of which he is president.

Dr. Hu Shih has written extensively, commenting adversely on the political philosophy of Dr. Sun Yat Sen and the Koumintang principles. He lately freshly incurred the wrath of the authorities by denouncing the fact that China does not possess a Bill of Rights. He also recently earned the enmity of the Ministry of Education by his frank criticisms of the appointment as educational commissioners of men said to be unfit for their positions.

Opinion on the results of the hostile move against Dr. Hu Shih is divided, many fearing that his life is endangered, others believing that Nanking would not dare to proceed against a man of such international reputation.

ALLEGED TEXT OF NOTE IS PUBLISHED IN CHINA

PEKING, Aug. 29 (AP).—The American Legation said today that the note from the United States to the Nationalist Government of China, dealing with the question of extraterritoriality, has not been given out anywhere by the legation, nor has it been given out anywhere "with the legation's knowledge or consent."

The statement was called forth by publication of an alleged text of the note in newspapers at Shanghai and Tsingtao.

It was learned today that the Tsingtao Times, from which the American-owned Shanghai Post obtained a copy of the purported text today, has reprinted its version from the Daily News of Harbin, which paper reached Tsingtao on Aug. 22.

Arrival of the Aug. 24 copy of the Tsingtao Times at Peking today caused much speculation as to how the "leak" occurred. Although all official sources have denied giving out the text, it was generally believed here that the version published at Tsingtao was substantially in agreement with the official wording from Washington.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29 (AP).—C. T. Wang, the Nationalist Foreign Minister, would make no statement in regard to the purported "leak," but it was evident that publication had been made against the wishes of the Nationalist Government. Minor officials said that if the note had been published it was in violation of the Nationalist Government's understanding that it be held up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The text of the American note on extraterritoriality, published in Shanghai, will be made public by the State Department soon, it was learned tonight.

The American note was understood to embody American refusal to abolish extraterritoriality at the present time.

EAKER READY TO FLY AGAIN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20 (AP).—The transcontinental mail plane Shuttle was forced down when struck by a five-gallon can of oil during the refueling contact here late last night while on a return flight from New York in an attempt to establish a record for sustained and linear-distance flying. Captain Ira Eaker, the pilot, immediately made an effort to get permission to reattempt the flight, he said today, and expected to take off late in the day or tomorrow if the second flight is approved.

The plane was undamaged in landing, and neither Eaker nor his co-pilot, Lieutenant Bernard Thompson, was injured. Eaker said that he had brought the Shuttle down under the impression that an oil line had broken when the can, ripped in the fall from the refueling plane, began spurting oil into the cockpit.

The Shuttle arrived over the Cleveland airport just before midnight, and Lieutenant Newton Longfellow, refueling pilot, first began lowering oil. Two of four cans had been placed aboard the Shuttle, and the third was being lowered when the fourth can slipped through the opening in the fuselage of the refueling plane. It struck the centre section of the Shuttle's top wing, broke a spar and landed on the fuselage just forward of the cockpit. The wing was not damaged seriously, Eaker said.

FARMERS JOIN HEIMWEHR.

Lower Austrian Bauernbund Adds 100,000 to Fascist Ranks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 29.—At yesterday's session of the committee of the Lower Austrian Baurenbund, which is the lower Austrian peasant wing of the Christian Socialist party, it was resolved to go over in a body to support the Heimwehr, which thus receives nominal assurance of an additional 100,000 members. It is probable, however, that those members of the Bauernbund who are fit for service in the Heimwehr ranks have already joined.

The committee's decision was really another move in the competition now in progress among the various parties to get control of the Heimwehr before they are swamped by it.

In an official declaration yesterday Dr. Steidle and Dr. Ptrimer, the Heimwehr leaders, congratulate the Landbund peasants, an organization opposed to the Baurenbund, on the adoption of a number of Heimwehr planks in their platform. But the Heimwehr communiqué adds that the Landbund does not go far enough. It says the attitude of the Social Democrats makes it clear that it is impossible to achieve their aims by parliamentary means, wherefore other paths will have to be traveled.

REPORT ON BARRING NEGRO.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A report on the alleged refusal of thirty London hotels to accommodate Robert S. Abbott, a wealthy American negro, and his white wife has been submitted to Prime Minister MacDonald by James Marley, a Labor Member of Parliament.

Marley conducted a personal inquiry, visiting two hotels from which Abbott asserts he was requested to leave the morning after his arrival when it was discovered he was a negro.

George Lansbury, First Commissioner of Works in the Labor Government, also interested himself in the case and expressed strong disapproval of such alleged discrimination.

COSTA RICAN JAIL BURNS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 29.—The police barracks and jail at Puntarenas were destroyed last night by fire caused by a chauffeur entering a gasoline storeroom with a light.

A number of the prisoners escaped in the confusion. There was no loss of life nor destruction of other property.

SHONGOOD INDICTED ON NEW CHARGES

Son and Cashier Also Accused of Conspiracy to Embezzle Bankrupts' Funds.

MANY OVERT ACTS CITED

Mutilation and Falsification of Records Alleged—Tax Evasion Laid to Woman Aide.

Charles Shongood, who served for nearly twenty-five years as United States auctioneer, and his cashier, Miss Kathryn J. McGough, who were indicted on Feb. 4 last on charges of embezzlement and conspiracy, were indicted again yesterday by the Federal grand jury on new charges. Shongood's son, Charles Shongood Jr., was made a defendant for the first time in the new indictment.

The new indictment resulted from the general investigation into bankruptcies by United States Attorney Tuttle and the bar associations. Last week the elder Shongood's testimony at the inquiry before Federal Judge Thacher indicated that the office of official auctioneer, while it was under his management, was largely a family affair. He said his son Charles was employed in the office at a salary of $100 a week and his son-in-law, Karl Kohler and J. W. McKinnon, at $70 a week each. Miss McGough, he said, got from $100 to $125 a week.

The earlier indictment naming only the elder Shongood and Miss McGough charged they had conspired to appropriate part of the proceeds of the sale of the assets of the Guaranteed Garment Company in November, 1928, and with attempting to bribe the receiver.

Tax Evasion Charged.

An indictment filed yesterday charges Miss McGough with attempting to evade her income taxes for 1924 to 1927 and with perjury. It is charged that she reported her approximate income at $2,500 for each of the years in question. Her indictment early in the year reported that her income was three or four times greater than the first returns indicated.

The indictment against the three charges them with conspiracy to embezzle the proceeds of bankruptcy sales, to conceal the proceeds from receivers and trustees and to alter, mutilate, conceal and destroy records. The overt acts charged are that the elder Shongood falsified the records of the auctions of the assets of the Adams-Bach Handkerchief Company, Inc.; the Kingston Braid Mill, Inc., and Max Katzman, and that Charles Shongood Jr. falsified the records of the sale of the Ehrens-Katz Company, and that Miss McGough handed to a co-conspirator an envelope containing bills of an unknown amount.

The indictment alleges that continuously from about Jan. 1, 1927, until about Jan. 1, 1929, the two Shongoods, Miss McGough, Max Blum and Bernard Strauss, knowing that the elder Shongood would come into the possession and control of bankrupt estates for the purpose of selling the assets at auction, planned "unlawfully, knowingly, wilfully and fraudulently to appropriate to his (the elder Shongood's) own use, embezzle, spend and transfer monies, assets and properties belonging to the said bankrupt estates." Neither Blum nor Strauss was named in the indictment.

Plot to Conceal Records Charged.

It is also alleged that the defendants agreed to conceal from receivers and trustees in bankruptcy, and from other officers of the court, and from creditors in cases awaiting composition, money and property belonging to bankrupts, and that it was agreed that the defendants "would conceal, destroy, mutilate and falsify books, documents and records affecting the sale and relating to the property and affairs of such bankrupts." It is charged that it was agreed by the alleged conspirators that the elder Shongood should report the receipt of lesser amounts than were actually realized at auction sales to receivers and trustees. A specific instance in which it is alleged that the books were falsified to conceal the actual receipts from a sale occurred in the case of the sale of the assets of the Ehrens-Katz Company on July 12, 1928.

It is further alleged in the indictment that at the auction sale of the property of the Adams-Bach Handkerchief Company, Inc., the elder Shongood reported to Helen V. Boswell, the receiver, receipts of $6,556.48, and that he reported receipts from the sale of the assets of Ehrens-Katz Company as $2,156.74, while the returns in both cases, it is alleged, were much larger.

Another specific act, said to have grown out of the alleged conspiracy concerned a sale by the elder Shongood of 5,025 rubber spools which belonged to the bankrupt estate of the Kingston Braid Mill, Inc. The sale was reported, it is alleged, as yielding only 3½ cents a spool while the fact was that the buyer, Moe Trooskin, paid 17 cents. It is charged that Miss McGough "received from Ben Mensheimer the sum of $843.60 in payment of a bill of goods bought at the auction sale of the assets of R. B. Rose Company, Inc."

Another allegation in the indictment is that the elder Shongood, on Jan. 16, 1928, mutilated and falsified the records of the auction of Max Katzman, a bankrupt, and that on Nov. 10, 1928, Miss McGough handed Blum "an envelope containing bills the exact amount being to the grand jurors unknown." The defendants will plead to the indictments on Tuesday.

MAY PAY $1 FOR CORSAIR.

Government Expected to Give Sum to Comply With Law.

It was learned yesterday that when J. P. Morgan's auxiliary schooner yacht, the Corsair, is turned over to the United States Government for use as a coast and geodetic survey ship the banker will probably receive $1 in consideration for the craft, the original cost and upkeep of which have run into the millions.

At Mr. Morgan's office yesterday it was said that it was his desire to make a present of the ship to the government, but that in order to comply with the law prohibiting the government from accepting gifts a nominal consideration might have to be fixed. The Corsair sailed last Wednesday from Glen Cove, L. I., to Brooklyn, preparatory to being turned over to the government.

TENNESSEE FACTIONS AGREE ON SENATOR

Democrats United on W. E. Brock, Who Is Expected to Be Named Soon by Governor.

HE IS CLASSED AS A DRY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The factional difficulties in the Democratic party in Tennessee have been composed with agreements reached by both sides to support W. E. Brock of Chattanooga as successor to the late Senator Tyson, according to information here. He represents a compromise between the wet and dry factions and, it is understood, will be appointed by Governor Horton within the next few days.

Luke Lea, former Senator from that State and recognized as a dominant factor in Democratic politics, declined the suggestion that he would return to the Senate, declaring that his newspaper properties made it impossible for him to return to active politics.

It is understood that Mr. Lea was influential in bringing about harmony. He and others advocated Mr. Brock, who as a manufacturer has always been a powerful supporter of the party, but never active in its affairs.

Neutral Position in His Favor.

According to reports, Mr. Brock's selection will cement the two wings in the Democratic party. He is described as a conservative and as such is classed as a supporter of the eighteenth amendment. The fact that he has never taken an active part in the party organization and has occupied a neutral position between both factions and has been silent on the wet and dry question commended him to the responsible men of both factions, it is declared.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the Republican Senatorial committee, who has just returned from a swing around the country which included Tennessee, said today that he found the Republican party united and the Hoover Democrats in that State still aggressive. The differences between the Taylor faction and the Huston followers, he said, have been made secondary and the State offers a fighting centre to show that Republicanism has come to stay instead of representing a disaffection founded on racial and religious intolerance.

"The Republican organization in Tennessee is in better condition than for some years," Senator Moses said. "The success last year has given hope to the old time Republicans and young business men of Democratic families are embracing the Republican party.

"The factional differences have been settled and the Tennessee Republicans expect to unite under their native son, Claudius Huston, who will be the next Republican National Chairman and make the State surely Republican.

Predicts Republican Senator.

"I also found that Hoover democratic clubs are as enthusiastic now that Mr. Hoover is in the White House as when he was on the way there. There is every indication that the success of last year will be repeated next year, and for the first time Tennessee will have a Republican Senator."

Mr. Huston, it is declared, intends to make the fight in Tennessee his personal affair, hoping that because of his prestige and the trend away from Democracy last Fall the Senatorial election in 1930 will show that the South is turning away from its old traditions.

As yet the Republican leaders have not settled on any candidate, although an effort will be made to bring into the field a man whose Republicanism is well known and who has shown ability to get votes. Representative D. Carroll Reece, Republican, of the First Tennesse District, who has represented that district for the last ten years, is being discussed as an available Senatorial candidate by the Republicans.

MOVES TO KEEP COWS OFF BATTLE GROUNDS

Secretary Good Drafts Bill for Federal Care of Site of New Orleans Engagement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Secretary Good believes the Federal Government should chase the cows off the site of the battle of New Orleans. So firm is his belief that he has prepared a draft of a bill to provide for the "care, custody, control and maintenance of the existing monument and grounds" by the Federal Government. It has been submitted to the House Military Committee.

For a score of years efforts have been made to have Congress authorize the War Department to make a national military memorial of the battlefield where the American Army achieved its outstanding victory over the British in the War of 1812.

Congress, however, never indicated a desire for a survey of the site. It did appropriate $25,000 toward a monument erected in 1907 on the grounds, which were to have been cared for by the State of Louisiana and the United Daughters of 1776 and 1812.

The subject has been revived by inquiries from persons interested in the preservation of the battlefield, which disclosed that cattle had invaded the grounds to graze upon the luscious grass. It was held that the State had not made adequate provision to maintain the grounds, while the funds supplied by the United Daughters were understood to be insufficient to care for the monument.

Jails Girl Paroled in Killing.

Alice Hobelsel, 16 years old, who, it is alleged, has confessed that she shot and killed Policeman George McHale of the Jersey City force on Aug. 19 after he had attacked her, was locked up in the county jail in Jersey City yesterday on a murder charge. She was ordered to jail by Prosecutor John Drewen after Judge Leo Sullivan had paroled her in custody of her counsel. Mr. Drewen said he feared paroling her would set a bad precedent.

ZONING BARS MOVING ITALIAN CONSULATE

Consul General Grazzi Irked by Opposition to Locating in Washington Square Area.

When the Board of Standards and Appeals holds its Fall meeting on Sept. 6 it is expected to pass on the application of the Italian Consul General, Emmanuele Grazzi, to move the consulate from its present location, 20 East Twenty-second Street, to 23 Washington Square, it was learned yesterday.

The Consul General agreed to take the Washington Square house at a rental of $800 a month before he learned that the Board of Standards and Appeals would have to approve the transfer of his office. The Washington Square district is restricted to residences and the consulate is held to be a business. The Board of Standards and Appeals decides applications for variations of the building zone requirements and the matter has been delayed for some time. The Consul General has refused to accept the board's suggestion that he withdraw his request.

In his last note to the board, the Consul General exhibited some annoyance with the delay, it is reported. In Italy it appears that there is no Board of Standards and Appeals, and he could not understand why he should not receive the same diplomatic courtesy extended to Americans in his country. It is quite possible that if his application is refused he will take it to the Italian Ambassador at Washington, who will take it up with the State Department.

Because of the rapid growth of business in the Gramercy Park district Mr. Grazzi feels that the present location of the consulate is undesirable. He can attend to business there only during the day, and he desires to combine his home with the consular offices. Residents of the exclusive Washington Square district have expressed their opposition to the consulate after an informal neighborhood meeting, it is said. The Board of Standards and Appeals suspends its sessions during August, and Chairman William E. Walsh is now in Europe. Mr. Grazzi may take the matter up with Mayor Walker before the board resumes its hearings.

WESTCHESTER CLUB ADOPTS CONSTITUTION

500 Members Elect Nominating Committee—First Annual Meeting to Be Sept. 27.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—About 500 members of the new Westchester Country Club, formerly the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, met here tonight in the clubhouse and elected a nominating committee which will present the names of members to be elected to the board of governors at the first annual meeting, Sept. 27. George Breen of Rye, a member of the reorganization committee, presided.

Those appointed to the nominating committee are Frank X. Anglin, H. F. Ball, Dr. W. V. P. Garretson, C. L. Jones, E. G. Lauder, E. P. McEnany and J. F. Murphy.

In reporting on the work of the reorganization committee, Hiram Brown said that the total cost of rinaacing and negotiating the purchase of the club from the Bowman interests had been $2,640. The purchase price was $6,000,000. Those on the reorganization committee who negotiated the deal were George Breen, Hiram Brown, W. T. Hoope and Samuel G. Allen. The constitution of the club drawn up by the legal committee was presented by Henry Walters and adopted unanimously.

Mr. Brown declared the club had 1,223 members, of which 1,102 are resident members. The membership will be limited to 1,500. He predicted that, provided 400 members were obtained within the next three years, the 1,500 certificates which the members have purchased at an average cost of $2,146, would be worth about $6,000 and the country club property would be worth $9,000,000. If that number of new members is brought in, he said, the income derived from memberships will have paid off the club debts in three years and left the property free and clear.

WHALERS TAKE FLIERS FOR ANTARCTIC HUNT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29.—Commander Byrd in his Antarctic exploratory flights may be greeted shortly in the air by flying fishermen from Norway, for two vessels belonging to the Viking and Kosmos Whaling Companies have just sailed with skilled airmen aboard to spy out their quarry in Antarctic waters.

During the past year all Scandinavian countries received the assistance of marine flying corps in locating herring shoals and in directing fishing boats to the most profitable waters. Antarctic whaling companies have taken their cue from Commander Byrd's success there and their 30,000-ton floating whale oil factories, which modern whalers have become, are employing skilled pilots.

Lieutenant Riiser Larsen, who piloted the late Roald Amundsen on a North Pole expedition, is aboard the Viking of the Viking company which sailed for Antarctica from Sandeford, Norway, with seaplanes aboard. Luetzowe Holm, another airman associated with Amundsen's flights, is aboard the Kosmos of the Kosmos company. Both vessels will fly from a base on Bouvet Island in the South Atlantic.

Experiments are being conducted in Norway with an electric harpoon to which is attached an electric cable connected with a powerful dynamo aboard ship. As soon as the harpoon strikes the whale the victim is instantly shocked to death. The advantage of this method over explosives is that the whale keeps floating until the crew is ready to deal with the carcass.

Seeks News of Mother in Palestine.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 29.—Abraham Rocker, manager of the Elizabeth office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, whose mother, Mrs. Rachel Rocker, has been living in the Holy Land for seven years, has cabled to the American Consul at Jerusalem an inquiry concerning her.

BRITISH PRESS FEARS HOLY WAR IN EAST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—An incident in which a number of excited Jewish youths are alleged to have attacked and killed a little Arab boy in an unfrequented street of Jerusalem has inflamed tempers again, and it is believed many troops now will have to be recalled from outlying districts to deal with the situation which has arisen as a result.

Jews in Damascus have issued a manifesto declaring that Zionism is the creation of Jews of Eastern and Northern Europe, and reasserting the traditional ties which bind the Jews of Palestine to their Moslem and Christian compatriots.

In yesterday's demonstration in Damascus, a cross was carried along with the banner of the Prophet and alternated with cries of "The Cross!" and "The Banner!" was "Long live the Moslem-Christian Union."

On the other hand, the Arab demonstrators are shouting, "Long live the unity of the Arab countries under the kingship of Ibn Saud, King of Hedjas!"

In addition to the Arab demonstrations in Damascus and Beirut, the Moslems in Aleppo, Tripoli, Homs and Hama in French Syria, are manifesting sympathy with their Palestine coreligionists and are seizing the troubles to exalt the spirit of unity among the Arab peoples.

"To ignore these signs," says The Daily News, "would be to blind ourselves to the combustible elements of the Arab nature and the possibility of a senseless holy war emerging from the sudden racial flare-up in Palestine."

It urges the government to obtain vital information about all Arab movements outside of Palestine and to establish "friendly contact" with King Ibn Saud. His attitude is expected to give the clue to the riddle and it is within the power of this great Arabian monarch to keep the Moslem palace or break it.

The Daily Mail, in a trenchant editorial, says: "Let us get free of the whole Palestine entanglements as soon as quiet is restored. We should return our mandate to the League of Nations and recall our troops and civil officials. Sooner or later we will only have to do the same troublesome and thankless work all over again."

One hundred and fifty-two persons had been killed in the Palestine riots up to Wednesday, Aug. 28, according to an official communique issued at Colonial Office tonight. The casualities, including those previously announced, are:

Killed or died of wounds: Moslems, fifty-two; Christians, four; Jews, ninety-six.

Wounded in hospital: Moslems, 103; Christians, nine; Jews, 151.

The noted orange orchard at Ganchaim (Garden of Chaim) founded by an American corporation with American, Canadian and English shareholders, was attacked by Arabs and much agricultural machinery destroyed. The company has a capital of $5,000,000. Lord Melchett and Dr. Chaim Weismann, for whom the garden was named, are large shareholders.

The steadying effect of the British troops on the disturbed population is emphasized in the statement, which reads:

"As regards the general situation, it is reported that Wednesday and Wednesday night were quiet practically throughout Palestine and that the presence of the troops produced a steadying effect on the rioters. Large scale disorders now appear to have been checked and unless conditions should be changed by circumstances not at present foreseen, the grave situation of the previous five days may be regarded as under control.

"About midday Tuesday an excited crowd of Moslems assembled in the Haram area of Jerusalem and demanded arms from the Grand Mufti. An immediate menace was avoided by the officer administering the government receiving the deputation and giving them formal assurance that the government had not armed the Jews. In consequence of this assurance the situation in Jerusalem on Wednesday morning was much easier."

The work of "mopping up" nests and strongholds of fantical Arab gunmen proceeded apace today in the districts surrounding Jerusalem and an ever-widening area of the country, with the Holy City as its centre, is being restored to normal life.

The villages where resistance proved stubborn have been rushed by British troops at the point of the bayonet and companies drawn from the First Battalion of the Welsh Borderers Infantry Regiment have been engaged several times in hand-to-hand fighting.

This is the third border protocol ratified this year, the previous two being with British Guiana and Bolivia, while boundary disputes with Colombia, Paraguay and Argentina were formally terminated last year.

Press dispatches state that the single remaining important limit treaty is with Uruguay, which will be ratified in October.

Many Smaller Gifts.

Mr. Brown announced that in addition there were large numbers of smaller contributions received by every mail and at nearly 100 banks in New York City.

All branches here of the Manufacturers Trust Company have been placed at the service of the Palestine Emergency Fund, to receive gifts, by the company's chairman, Nathan S. Jonas. Other banks and branches in the Metropolitan area receiving relief contributions are:

The Amalgamated Bank, the Broadway National Bank and Trust Company, Bank of the United States, the Interstate Trust Company, Lefcourt-Normandie Bank, the Public National Bank, the Sterling National Bank, the International Union Bank, the Merchants Bank, and the American National Bank of Mount Vernon.

Five theatres in New York controlled by Warner Brothers will give midnight performances next Tuesday, Sept. 3, for the benefit of the fund.

The Prospect Theatre, a Yiddish playhouse at Prospect Avenue and 161st Street, the Bronx, will give the receipts of six performances by courtesy of its director, Nathan Goldberg.

The Non-Sectarian Palestine Relief Committee, Room 1114, 305 Broadway, has been organized with George Gordon Battle as its chairman, Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora as vice chairman, John J. Grady, assistant treasurer of the Manufacturers Trust Company, treasurer, and former Assistant Corporation Counsel Benjamin E. Greenspan, secretary.

Sees All Creeds Endangered.

On the committee are also John E. Eastmond, publisher; former Municipal Court Justice John R. Davies; Eugene S. Nathanson, according to an announcement by Mr. Greenspan, further saying:

"The situation in Palestine has endangered the lives of all creeds alike. Jews and Gentiles are herded in the stricken areas and distress to the degree extant there knows no bounds. The matter of relief is the concern of Americans regardless of religious difference, and this Non-Secretarian Palestine Relief Committee aims to satisfy the desire of all coreligionists to fill the emergency. All checks should be made payable to John J. Grady, treasurer."

Mr. Battle in accepting the chairmanship of the organization, wired from Washington to Mr. Greenspan as follows:

"Answering your telegram I shall be glad to act as chairman of the Non-Sectarian Palestine Relief Committe being formed for the sufferers in Jerusalem. Certainly the cause is most worthy and will appeal to all good men and women."

Reports Suffering Is Great.

The Zionist Organization of America, 111 Fifth Avenue, made public the contents of a cable message from Abraham Goldberg, a member of the Administrative Committee of the Zionist Organization of America, who had just departed from Palestine. His cable follows:

"The situation in Palestine is grave. The bloodshed that has taken place is not an accidental attack, but real war prepared by the Arabs. The damage is enormous and the danger for the Jews is still great. Many of the members of the Palestine administration are clearly responsible for this shameful affair.

"The Palestine Jews are displaying wonderful courage. American Jews must protest against this blood-drenched administration in Palestine, and also do their utmost to send funds to relieve the distress and suffering which is widespread."

James Waterman Wise, son of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and executive secretary of the American Student Zionist Federation, characterized as "a sin against the Jewish land and people" an editorial article in yesterday's issue of The American Hebrew blaming "Jewish agitators" equally with Arabs for the disturbances in Palestine.

Ask Weizmann's Resignation.

The Zionist Revisionists of America, 32 Union Square, through their secretary, J. Rosnansky, made public the text of a resolution, adopted unanimously by its executive council, demanding the resignation of Dr. Chaim Weizmann as president of the World Zionist Organization. The resolution, after condemning "the brutally savage and uncivilized actions of the nomad Arabs," charges that Dr. Weizmann, "by his inertia and lack of perspicacity has robbed the Jewish community of that measure of safety which vigorous representation to the British Cabinet could have achieved."

According to Eddie Cantor, star of "Whoopee," a performance of that musical comedy will be played at the New Amsterdam Theatre on Sunday, Sept. 8, for the Palestine Relief Fund.

Representatives of nine young Jews' organizations met yesterday at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth Street, and voted to form a New York Youths' Council on Palestine. The council's program is to include the raising of relief funds and the gathering of young volunteers for reconstruction work in Palestine.

Good-Will Body of Church Council Appeals To Christians to Give to Palestine Relief

The appeal to Christians of America to give to Jewish relief in Palestine was made by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America Committee on Good-will Between Jews and Christians. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman is chairman of that committee. The appeal follows:

The violent and frightful attacks to which the Jews have been subjected in Palestine arouse the deep concern and sincere sympathy of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The Federal Council hopes that the solution of the complex religious, social, political and economic problems of Palestine may be approached in such a way that peace and amity will be established. Specifically, we feel that the right of the Jews to worship at the Wailing Wall, which is the most sacred Jewish shrine in Palestine, a right sanctioned by centuries of tradition and use, should remain undisturbed.

The Federal Council offers any help that it is able to give at this time.

We urge members of the Churches of Christ in America to interest themselves sympathetically in the events that have taken place in Palestine, and, aware of the suffering and misery that has ensued, to contribute generously and at once to the Palestine Emergency Fund, David A. Brown, chairman, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York. The money contributed to this fund will be used for the relief of the wounded and all others who have been stricken by the tragedy.

The Rev. CHARLES S. MACFARLAND, General Secretary.

Dr. S. PARKES CADMAN, Chairman of the Committee on Good-Will Between Jews and Christians.

The Rev. EVERETT R. CLINCHY, Secretary of the Committee.

The Rev. John Brett Langstaff will devote his sermon Sunday morning in Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, to a discussion of the present crisis between Arabs and Jews on Palestine, his topic being "God's Battlefield."

On the invitation of the Rev. Dr. Jeffrey Jennings, the rector, Rabbi Louis D. Gross, editor of the Brooklyn Examiner, will deliver an address Sunday morning in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Atonement, Seventeenth Street, near Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, on "The Present Situation in Palestine."

Under the auspices of the Church of the Atonement a special service will be broadcast over Station WLTH at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon by Dr. Jennings in behalf of the Jews in the Holy Land. Dr. Jennings will take for his topic, "The Afflicted People."

POPE SEEKS NEWS OF RIOTS

Asks Jerusalem Patriarch If Institutions Are Endangered.

By The Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 29.—Pope Pius had a telegram dispatched today to the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem, Mgr. Barlassina, requesting information about the fighting between Arabs and Jews in Palestine. His Holiness asked specially if Christian, and in particular Catholic, institutions had suffered damage or were in danger.

Telegrams were also sent for information to Mgr. Valeri, Apostolic Delegate of Egypt and Arabia.

Pope Pius, in receiving a delegation of pilgrims scheduled to leave Naples tomorrow for Palestine, did not refer to the Palestine riots, but in private conversation he was understood to have advised their leader against immediate departure.

ASKS FATHER TO AID JEWS.

Dr. Julien Nabhan, house surgeon at the Harbor Hospital, announced yesterday that he had cabled his father, Jahjah Nabhan Bey of Grand Lebanon, requesting him to throw open his estates there and in Lower Lebanon for the succor of Jewish refugees from Palestine. Grand Lebanon is an independent principality forming a buffer State between Syria and Palestine, and Lower Lebanon is within the boundaries of Syria.

POLICE DISPERSE CROWDS

French Take Action When Crowd Attempts March on British Embassy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Jewish citizens in France, as in the United States and other countries, have joined in the protest against the Arab attacks in Palestine.

Police in Paris broke up one manifestation of 3,000 Jews on Wednesday night and were called out in force to keep order at a mass meeting tonight in a large assembly hall in the centre of the city.

Several speakers, including S. V. L. Jabotinsky, president of the French Zionists, and M. Grossman of London assailed the British Government's failure to protect the Jews in Palestine and demanded action to safeguard Jewish lives and assure a fulfillment of the promises made to the Zionists in the Balfour declaration.

An attempt to organize a procession and demonstration before the British Embassy was broken up by the police.

Reports, current here today, that the anti-Jewish attacks had spread to Syria were denied today by High Commissioner for Syria Ponsot, who is at present in Paris. He stated that the cruiser La Motte Picquet had not called at Syria to prevent trouble, but had called there on a general Mediterranean cruise long before there was any difficulties in Palestine.

Both Jewish and Arab sympathizers were quoted at length in the Parisian press today. The Zionists were represented by Rabbi Israel Levi, who charged that the British Government in Palestine was seeking to evade settling the issue.

The Jews, he said, must be permitted the privilege to worship at their Wailing Wall, and also must be safeguarded in Palestine and assured of land grants and other privileges promised them by the British Government.

The Arabs in Paris were represented by Dr. George Sane, editor, who maintains that the controversy is not a religious one so much as it is an economic one. He says the Jews are in the minority, 300,000 Jews to 700,000 Arabs seeking to obtain complete political and economic control of Palestine.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—More than 2,000 East End Jews left their work in London this afternoon and attended a demonstration organized by the Left Wing of the Zionist party to protest against "the looseness of the local administration in Palestine."

A fight started when a man in the back of the hall criticised the British action. Some one shouted "throw him out!" and the uproar lasted five minutes.

Phone Service Resumed.

By The Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 29.—A sign of the expected return to normal conditions was sent today in the order of the authorities to open telephone communication for private use. Some of the shops, mostly Christian, have reopened. Some Jewish enterprises were also opened, but their owners conducted business timidly.

The general condition of Jerusalem is very depressing. The city faces a lack of food and 2,500 persons, particularly in the Jewish quarters of the old city, are starving.

Searches and arrests among Jews and Arabs are being continued. In Jerusalem the searches among Jews are being conducted under the direction of the Arab Police Officer Kemal Irani. Fewer arrests are made among the Arabs than among the Jews.

Baltimoreans Offer to Fight Arabs.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 29.—A formal offer of the services of the Baltimore Palestine Legionaires, who are prepared to go to Palestine and fight the Arabs, was contained in a telegram sent to Sir Edmé Howard, British Ambassador, today by Simon Margulis, secretary of the organization. The telegram said 2,500 to 3,000 men could be raised here.

Plan Washington Protest.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP).—A mass meeting in which Washington Jews will join those of other cities in protesting against the Palestine massacres will be held on Sunday night, with Senator King of Utah as the principal speaker. Various Jewish organizations of the city will be represented at the meeting.

airplanes. This action was taken because they allowed the passage of Bedouins through their territory.

Your correspondent has it on good authority that the severest punishment will be dealt in the city of Hebron for the atrocities committed against the Jewish community there.

In high official circles a sentiment of deep regret exists for the Hebron outrages which are considered the most unfortunate event in the whole uprising. It is feared it will leave an ineffacable stain on the prestige of the British flag in the Near East. The government, therefore, is prepared to cooperate in whatever measures are considered necessary to eradicate, as much as possible, this blot. Irreparable damage has already been done.

Heavy Punishments Planned.

Your correspondent further understands that one of the first measures of punishment will be an order that no Arab government official will be allowed in Hebron, and the Hebron police will be severely taken to task.

Another step that is being considered, and which follows the French precedent at Damascus, is an unusually heavy fine to be imposed on the city.

But despite these stringent measures by the military forces reports are still coming in of new outbreaks against the Jews. About nine miles north of Jerusalem the Jewish settlement of Calendia, from which the women and children were evacuated after the first raids, with only a few men and a detachment of British police remaining on guard, was again attacked early this morning by a large number of neighboring Arabs.

The raiders, under the impression the place was deserted, started to loot and plunder and were caught by bullets from the police and settlers. Two Arabs were killed and four wounded. The latter were removed to the Government Hospital in Jerusalem.

Villager Blames Effendis.

"Some Effendis (the title given to Arab notables) came out of the village distributing to each of us two packages of cigarettes and telling us to raid the Jewish settlement of Calendia, assuring us that there were no British police there. Allah damn those Effendis souls! I wish we had never listened to them. They always make us scapegoats for their own purposes."

Two Jewish youths were killed on the road between Tel Aviv and Ludd Junction. A young woman who was with them was severely wounded and her 2-year-old child wounded.

These reports so incensed the Jewish population that when an Arab passed through a Jewish zone in Jerusalem a frenzied crowd attacked him with stones and sticks, seriously wounding him. He was removed to a hospital, where he died.

This afternoon, for the first time since the suspension of all publications in the country, a Hebrew newspaper appeared. It was unauthorized and gave full details of last week's events and was hungrily grasped by the population who gladly paid the unprecedented price of 15 cents for it.

Five thousand copies were sold within two hours, showing the eagerness of the population for news. It is learned on good authority that the suspension of the newspapers will be continued for another week and afterward publication will be allowed under a strict censorship.

As a precaution against a possible repetition of the outbreaks tomorrow, which is the Moslem Sabbath, British troops with machine guns will be stationed within the old city, particularly around the Mosque of Omar. No Moslem carrying a stick or any other weapon will be allowed to pass.

Hebron Is Evacuated.

With the last contingent of Jewish refugees from Hebron brought to Jerusalem yesterday afternoon, that city has been completely cleared of all that is left of its 600 Jewish inhabitants who vowed that they never again would "return to that cursed spot." Almost all of them belonged to families who have lived there for three generations and always on the friendliest and most neighborly terms with the very Arabs who so mercilessly slaughtered them.

The Cave Machpelah, burial place of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, is located at Hebron and it is considered one of the most delightful places to spend the summer because it is situated in the high mountains. Many of those slain were guests and were vacationing there.

Hebron possesses, or rather possessed, one hotel, of which the owner, Schneyerson, is one of the leading citizens of the community. Being among those who miraculously escaped death, the task fell upon him to take charge of the burial of the remains of the fifty-eight slaughtered victims.

Schneyerson today told your correspondent the story of the massacres as he saw them.

Eyewitness Tells Story.

"Hearing of riots in Jerusalem," he said, "on Friday, Aug. 23, we feared that they would spread to Hebron, but we were reassured, however, after telephoning Jerusalem, that we had nothing to fear, since Hebron Moslems were bitter opponents of the Moslem Supreme Council in Jerusalem and therefore they would not cooperate.

"About 2 o'clock in the afternoon a young Arab agitator arrived on a motorcycle from Jerusalem and stood on the town square, where he announced that hundreds of Moslems were being killed in Jerusalem by Jews. He urged Hebron Arabs to take revenge.

"We then realized that our situation was critical. I, together with A. D. Slonim, manager of the Anglo-Palestine Bank there, who was always greatly beloved by the Arabs, decided it was necessary to take immediate action. We hastened to the chief of police to ask for protection. The trouble had already begun, however, for en route we met an Arab wearing a hat belonging to a Jew.

"'It is a pity I found only one Jew at Yeshivah College, but I'm not finished yet. More will be added to that number,' he exclaimed.

"We finally arrived at police headquarters, where we were received with the utmost coldness by the chief, who advised us to concentrate all in one house. We did not think this the wisest plan, since it would show fear, but if strong police protection were given us we felt we might be safe.

Arabs Kill and Plunder.

"One of our chief rabbis went to interview the Governor, who also assured him that he had nothing to fear. Friday night passed without incident. Then Saturday morning Arab mobs heavily armed with all sorts of weapons began gathering and attempting to break into any houses where they thought Jews might be found. Passing Mr. Slonim's house, Sheikh Taleb Maraka, one of the leading Arab notables of the city, shouted, 'Go up! Here there are great treasures to be found. Among them you will find twenty Americans whose fathers are millionaires. There lives the director of the Anglo-Palestine Bank, and there you will find also the secretary of Yeshivah, who was responsible for bringing so many Jews to our city. Especially there are many charming women there.'

"Hardly were these words spoken when terrific shrieks were heard from that house, where we later found eighteen had been butchered, while of the rest of the group nearly fifty were suffering from wounds as the result of cruel tortures.

"I, with many of my hotel guests, was offered shelter in a near-by house by an old Arab woman, who proved a true friend indeed. She took in thirty-three of us and when the mob came demanding whether any Jews were there, she replied, 'Would that I had some Jews here. I would gladly drink a glass of their blood.' Hearing this, the Arabs left. She thus saved all our lives. To guarantee further our safety she placed her youngest son among us with the purpose of reassuring us that she would allow no harm to come our way.

"Thus mobs rushed from house to house, wherever Jews were to be found. They murdered, robbed, plundered and burned. For two hours the massacres continued, and then the Governor came to the house where we were quartered, announcing that all was over.

Women Wandering in Daze.

"Finally we were able to emerge and, oh! what awful sights greeted our eyes! Women wandering aimlessly in a daze, having completely lost their senses. The body of the community beadle was lying in the street, prostrate with his head split open.

"Under the guard of three policemen we started through the town. On the way we passed the synagogue, which was completely burned, with its Holy Scrolls. Next door was the Hadassah Clinic, which also was destroyed.

"We stopped at the house of Mr. Hassoon, a member of a Hebron family many generations old. We found both him and his wife lying on the floor badly mutilated. Some one who witnessed those murders told me that while the couple was still alive the barbarians opened Hassoon's safe and found £700 in cash, also many notes for money due him from Arabs. These notes they placed on Hasson's body, then set it afire.

"Having made the rounds of most of the houses where I knew groups were concentrated, we returned to the Health Department offices, where corpses were being prepared for burial.

"'Here are another three. Here are another five,' we heard the Arab officer in charge exclaim in a far from sorrowful tone as corpses continued to be brought in.

Ride to Cemetery an Ordeal.

"Our ride to the cemetery, too, was an ordeal. I shall not soon forget. The road was rocky and uphill and to add to our downcast spirits the Chief of Police accompanying us on this bad, jerky trip kept finding fault, as if we were responsible.

"'You Jews always do everything in extremes,' he complained. 'Even your cemeteries must be so hard to reach, over such terrible roads.'

"How shall I describe the sight of those awful corpses? Who could believe such barbarous acts could be committed in the twentieth century?

"There was not one body that had been struck with only one blow. Each victim had been tortured to the limit. It was all deliberately planned beforehand. The best proof of this is that the form of death was fitted to the profession of the victim. For instance, a baker's head was tied to a lighted stove and literally baked.

"The brain was extracted from the head of a rabbi who was visiting his children in Hebron and was known to be well versed in Arabic and an excellent Koran scholar, often holding discussions with the Sheikhs on subjects of Arab philosophy. A woman who was merely a visitor was hung by her feet with her head toward the ground. From others arms and legs were cut off, noses and breasts were missing and scores of other forms of merciless torture and butchery were evident.

Some Arabs Aided Jews.

"I am gratified to be able to say, however, that there were some Arabs in Hebron who proved themselves true friends. One of them harbored eleven of our people in his house and then narrowly escaped being killed by his family for having done so. As soon as the disturbances began one of our prominent Jewish citizens handed an Arab friend $5,000 which he had just taken from the bank and asked the Arab to guard it for him and in case of his death to hand it over to his children. He took no written acknowledgment. The riot was hardly over when the Arab brought back the money, which the Jew refused to take as long as order was not restored.

"I have been left homeless and penniless. All I possess are the clothes on my back. This twentieth century inquisition, who could believe it possible today?"

Troops Are in Control.

By The Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 29.—There are enough British troops in Palestine to protect all Jewish colonies, Brig. Gen. William G. S. Dobbie told a deputation of Jews who visited him late today. The General, who is in command of British troops in the country, assured his visitors that it would no longer be necessary for Jews to evacuate their homes.

Jerusalem was peaceful throughout the day and similar conditions prevailed in the other cities of the country as troops and marines extended their areas of control.

Desert Revolt Is Feared.

By the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

BEIRUT, Aug. 29.—The Palestine events have had a strong repercussion in all Arab neighboring countries.

In addition to the manifestations held in Damascus and Beirut, where it was said that a group of local Jews joined the Moslems in protesting against the Zionists, there were manifestations held in other parts of Syria. The movement has a pan-Arabic character and it is said that the leaders plan an appeal to Ibn Saud, the mighty Wahabi King of Hedjas and Nejd to utilize the present moment for realizing the plan for an all-Arab confederation.

Arab sources state that the Transjordanian tribes are greatly agitated over the events. The rumor is spread that the Mosque of Omar is in danger.

It is stated that Sultan Atrashy Chief of the Druses, is gathering forces in the Negeb, preparing to join the Transjordanian tribes for an invasion into Palestine.

One of the most stirring incidents of the evening was the demonstration that greeted the Graubard Battalion when the volunteers and their leader, Nathan Graubard, marched into the Garden waving their banner.

Leo Wolfson, chairman of the Zionist Region of New York, called the meeting to order and introduced Mr. Untermyer as chairman. He asked Dr. Margolies to offer a prayer, following which Mr. Bernstein read the message from the President. Mr. Untermyer then read the following message from Governor Roosevelt:

I regret that my attendance at the New York State Fair makes it impossible for me to be at the mass meeting tonight. I share with you your horror at the recent massacres in the Holy Land. Striking down men and women devoted to the service of God must particularly shock the conscience of the world. Immediate and sufficient steps should be taken to prevent a recurrence of the tragedy. I extend my deepest sympathy to the sufferers in this outrage and will be pleased to lend whatever assistance and cooperation there is in the power of my office.

Borah Expresses Sympathy.

Mr. Borah in his address said:

"It is an honor to have a place in your program this evening. This vast audience, deeply moved and thoroughly aroused, is far more eloquent of the cause which brings us here than any word which can be uttered from this platform.

"Your committee honored me with an invitation to be present upon this occasion. I felt that I could do no less than extend to you my sympathy and also to add a word of encouragement and determination. It is not characteristic of you people to turn back once you have engaged in a great cause.

"And I know that, serious as this disaster has been, discouraging as it may appear in the first instance, in its ultimate result it will have but little effect in the great cause in which you are engaged.

"There is another reason for my coming here—twelve American citizens, at least that number, have been assassinated in a foreign land. That is a matter of concern to every citizen and to the Government of the United States. The Government of the United States will want to know how it happened.

"I haven't had any considerable time to reflect upon the catastrophe, and generally, when I do not reflect, I say what I think. It is very difficult for me to understand how this catastrophe happened. Even at this distance, the warning has been clear and unmistakable for months. There has been restlessness and grumbling and muttering and threats, and why these had no effect upon those in responsible position in Palestine, I have difficulty of understanding.

"It would seem that these things happening would have called those in places of responsibility to such action as would not have left human life without any safeguards.

Sees Stupidity Somewhere.

"But I do desire to say in fairness that, in considering the question of responsibility and blame, we ought to regard the government of Palestine as one thing and the government of London as another thing. Those of us who have the privilege of knowing, as many of us have, the Premier of England, know that he would not be indifferent or disregardful where human life or humanity was involved. We also know that it has been the characteristic of the British Government to protect its citizens and those under its charge in whatever part of the earth they may be located. And that is a magnificent policy. But there has been indifference and stupidity of both, somewhere. And we shall, when the proper time comes and the facts are known, evidently be able to place the blame.

"Let us pause until we know the facts. But let us be sure to know the facts. And when the facts are known, in the name of the dead and in the name of the cause in which they are engaged, let us assess the blame where it belongs.

"We know now and we could have known in the beginning, had we reflected, that the establishment of a home in Palestine for the Jewish people is a task which called not only for the highest order of statesmanship but for internal vigilance and great sacrifice.

"We cannot overlook the fact that the Arab people are a virile people, resourceful in war, indefatigable in purpose, and possessed of a national spirit which reaches sometimes to fanaticism. Under such circumstances and dealing with such a situation there ought to be a complete program and a complete understanding from the hour their responsibility is assured.

"Drifting, drifting, drifting means in the end misunderstanding, and misunderstanding means murder, means the murder of men and women.

"When this movement started something like ten years ago I took occasion to say that I did not believe that those who were assuming the responsibility had measured the full depth and the full obligation of this undertaking. For that I was greatly criticized. But tonight I want to repeat, and as I do so to point to the dead in Palestine, that in my judgment the full measure of this obligation has not yet been understood.

"In my judgment the intelligent and well-informed public opinion of mankind will sustain you in your demand to have adequate protection for your people."

Criticizes Local Authorities.

Mr. Untermyer spoke in part as follows:

"This vast outpouring of the greatest Jewish city on earth is assembled here tonight, clad in sackcloth and ashes, at a solemn crisis in the history of our people. We are here to voice our grief and horror at the catastrophe that has overtaken world-Jewry; to protest before the world against the amazingly callous, niggardly and indifferent want of sense of duty and responsibility of the local representatives in Palestine to which we in blind faith entrusted the lives and welfare of our dearly beloved martyred brethren that has rendered possible this tragedy; to relieve the cruelty of the blow so far as lies in our power, and to solemnly dedicate ourselves, at all costs and sacrifices, to carry on the work in which we are engaged, in the face of all obstacles and discouragements.

"To those of us who realize the seething volcano over which our people in Palestine have been living, there should have been nothing unexpected about this disaster. There were repeated warnings, but none of the authorities in Palestine could see the impending storm.

"And so now the growing, prosperous Jewish community of Palestine, the pride and hope of all world-Jewry, is threatened with destruction. The bloody dagger of a ruthless savagery has been laid at the roots of the tender plant. The passions of religious hatred fanned by vicious falsehoods have started a conflagration that has encompassed the land from Dan to Beersheba and from the Great Sea to the Jordan.

Calls Moment Critical.

"The moment is critical not only for the Jews of Palestine and of the world but for all humanity, for the things that the Jews have accomplished and the still greater things they have in hand in Palestine are of deep concern to all humanity. The work must not be allowed to perish. We came into a barren and disease-ridden land that had in ancient times been a land 'flowing with milk and honey' but one in which, under the blighting influence of a barbarous people, streams and forests had been destroyed, the soil starved and arid wastes had replaced a fruitful country. Wherever the Jews have touched this rocky desert with their pioneering labors they have made the desert once more to 'bloom as a rose' after all these centuries of decay.

"They reared scores of thriving farm colonies on sites that were formerly malarious swamps. Modern cities like Tel Aviv and the new suburbs around Jerusalem and Haifa, teeming with industry and progressive life, have arisen as with a magic wand. They brought in electric light and power and were, at the very moment when anarchy and bloodshed lifted its ugly head, harnessing the waters of the Jordan for purposes of irrigation, and beginning the work of extracting the untold mineral wealth of the Dead Sea.

"They have labored in and out of season, by day and night, and labored successfully to eradicate endemic disease and through the Hadassah medical organization, with its chain of hospitals and clinics, they have brought new health and healing. They have established a system of schools, elementary, secondary, agricultural and technical, second to none anywhere to be found, and a university on Mount Scopus has arisen which promises to again make Palestine a centre of learning and scientific progress. The Jews have brought civilization and renewed life and hope into the land that is holy to all mankind, and all humanity is vitally interested in its preservation.

Tells of Aid to Arabs.

"The Arabs of Palestine, the very ones who in their vicious folly, ignorance and fanaticism are now attempting to destroy this work in a blind orgy of blood and fire, were among the first and the chief of its beneficiaries. Nothing the Jews have done in Palestine has been to the detriment of a single Arab. Everything has been in their interest and has redounded to their advantage. Every square inch of ground acquired by the Jews has been purchased from the Arabs at absurdly high prices, from that source alone enriching a wretched, barbaric, poverty-stricken people to the extent of tens of millions of dollars of American and European gold. Arab labor has been employed in this work of reconstruction at wages many times higher than it had ever before known or dreamed of, and prosperity has followed upon centuries of barbarous ignorance, indescribable poverty and misery.

"The Hadassah hospitals and clinics have been open alike to Jew and Arab. The Arab standards of living have been raised beyond recognition and they have been enjoying the comforts and decencies of life as never before in all the stagnant centuries of the past. The Jews have scrupulously respected Arab rights and Arab susceptibilities, and the shrines of all religious faiths have been jealously guarded against desecration.

"And, now, blind, cruel, armed fanaticism, resulting in wholesale torture and murder, is stalking through the land. The scores of thousands of Jews who were induced to settle in Palestine since the World War because of their unbounded faith in the integrity and plighted word of Great Britain, under the mandate of the League of Nations feel that they have been betrayed by the Palestine officials.

"They have come, these scores of thousands of Jews, largely from the war-ridden lands of Eastern and Southeastern Europe, in search of a homeland on the ancient soil of their fathers, on the land endeared to their hearts by traditions of centuries that only a cruel and soulless race of barbarians could ever ignore or forget.

"And Jews from other lands, principally from America, also trusting the plighted word and honor of Great Britain, have come to their aid by pouring scores upon scores of millions of dollars into the country, thus enabling these pioneers to carry on in the face of hardships and privations.

"Nor have the Jews had reason to question the honor or the good faith of the solemn pledge contained in the mandate that was earnestly sought and eagerly accepted by Great Britain. One Imperial Government after another—Conservative, Liberal and Labor—has proclaimed and reiterated its adherence to the Balfour declaration and the mandate.

Cites Many Protests.

"But after a while it was found that conditions in Palestine, as distinguished from those existing in London, were not what they should have been nor what we had the right to expect. We realized, however, that it was possible for minor officials, weak, ignorant, bigoted, arrogant or ill-willed, to frustrate or hinder the policies of the home government and this is to some extent what happened. Again and again the Jews of Palestine and of other lands who were interested in its welfare have bitterly complained of persistent lack of understanding and cooperation and even of the hostility manifested by the British administrative officials in Jerusalem. These officials have at times so acted as to suggest that Great Britain was in Palestine, not to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish national home but to obstruct and prevent it. Again and again have they openly flouted the spirit and letter of the mandate. Despite its explicit terms the Jews have been discriminated against. They have been denied access to the public and waste lands for colonization. The participation of the Jews in the police and defensive forces of the country has been seriously and unjustly restricted. The fiscal policy has been especially burdensome on them. The tariff policy has checked, rather than encouraged Jewish industrial development and recently their inviolable and immemorial right to worship at the Wailing Wall has been wantonly insulted and restricted.

"I regret to have to say that there are many indications pointing to the belief that the tendency of the present High Commissioner, in marked contrast to his predecessors, is that rare and hitherto almost unknown tendency of the British people toward anti-Semitism or something very much akin to it. His attitude has been one of want of sympathy and understanding, and studied indifference almost amounting to implied provocation of these outrages. The first act of the British Government should be to replace him by some one of the type of those who have gone before, all of whom were just and sympathetic in the execution of the spirit of the mandate. The world's pillar of racial and religious freedom and tolerance cannot afford to be misrepresented.

"This anti-Jewish policy on the part of some of the local officials has naturally encouraged the professional Arab agitators and irreconcilables. In the face of indifference or hostility to sacred Jewish rights, the task of the Arab agitator and rumonmonger has been an easy one. It is well-nigh incredible that the great mass of the Arabs in Palestine should be hostile to their Jewish neighbors unless encouraged in that attitude. They have everything for which to be grateful and no cause for resentment. But they are a primitive people, and their passions, especially their religious passions, are easily inflamed. The thing that is beyond comprehension and clamors for an explanation is why, in the presence of such inflammable material, with fantastic falsehoods constantly in circulation among them, the Brititsh Administration in Palestine should have been content to rest supine under the most pitifully inadequate forces, and to have given no hint of the impending danger of which it cannot but have known.

"With the Jews prohibited from arming for self-protection, which they asked to do because their peril was so manifest, and forced to rely upon the inadequate police force, largely Arab in make-up, there rested on the Palestine Administration the grave obligation that it did not meet, nothwithstanding the constant warnings.

Applause for Mayor.

When Mayor Walker entered the Garden the audience arose and applauded. Mr. Untermyer introduced the Mayor as "one whose heart and soul is with our cause because he comes of a race that has itself for centuries suffered."

"Mr. Chairman, Reverend Gentlemen, Ladies and Gentlemen—I am indeed proud beyond description that New York has proven itself not only the most cosmopolitan community in all the world but they are the liberty loving people of all the world," said Mayor Walker.

"As Mayor of the city of New York I bring you the congratulations of all the people of this city that Madison Square Garden tonight has been taxed to its utmost capacity, that protest in no uncertain words may be uttered in this city in the hope that it will be heard throughout the world.

Holds Right to Worship Sacred.

"I am not so interested, because I am not so well acquainted with international law, as I am interested in men, women and children. I dare not efface from my memory, nor shall any other American, that this country was founded primarily that men might worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience. In fact, the primary purpose underlying the sacred and immortal documents that spell the foundation of this country guaranteed religious freedom.

"And this great country with but a century and a half and a little more in age has progressed and grown so rapidly that today it stands the envy of all the civilized world, commercially, industrially and financially, and I ask you: Why is it that this country has grown with these unprecedented steps? Has it not been made up of people of the same flesh and blood as the countries of the Old World?

"What is it then that has made this country so great in such a short time? And if the question were put to me, I would offer this reply: That it is the very fact that men were permitted to work out their earthly existence and to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience made them give to the country in its making that which they denied to other countries in which they were born.

"Here we are—people of my own race in greater number than there are Irishmen in Dublin—more Italians than there are in Rome—more Germans than there are in any German city but Berlin—and more Jews than there are in Palestine—more negroes than there are in any Southern city on the American continent—and yet, in this great cosmopolitan centre and throughout this American continent men and women of all races, I repeat, have given with greater fervor, more intense industry, and more genuine patriotism than they ever gave to any other country that didn't offer them the same right to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience!

"They answer to the wail not alone at the foot of the Walling Wall, but the wail of the Jew that has come for centuries from all parts of the world has been answered. And I repeat, the most beautiful answer known in the history of mankind! For here in this city hundreds and hundreds of institutions built by Jewish industry and by Jewish money have answered their detractors and their persecutors by throwing wide open their non-sectarian doors and inviting the sons, the grandsons and the granddaughters of their detractors and persecutors when they were left alone homeless and helpless by their own to come into Jewish homes and be protected and be housed.

Pledges His Aid.

"So I hold it a privilege, Mr. Chairman, upon this very important occasion to say to you that officially and personally the Mayor of the City of New York, with a deep-seated affection, after many years of the closest intimacy, for my Jewish friends, for Jewish purposes and for the reverence that I have for Jewish ideals in the Jewish religion, pledge in this most public way everything at my personal official command that might be of service at this moment or any moment to follow.

"Let me say one lastly word not to the Jews of New York but to non-Jews and to Christians like myself. Whether they live in New York, throughout these United States, on the furthermost point of civilization, the Mayor of the city of New York is proud in this very public way to proclaim on behalf of the city the gratitude that is the city's for the splendid contributions that have been made by Jews to the making of New York what it is.

"So, though of necessity I must leave, I am going to ask the chairman of this great meeting to hold my proxy, and whatever the resolutions are that come to his hand, I ask you for the privilege of being recorded in the affirmative and in denunciation of the cowardly act that struck down those boys in Palestine who only asked for an opportunity to live, to worship God as their fathers and their fathers' fathers did, the right that you and I enjoy upon this soil; and may that right always continue for our protection."

Something went wrong with the amplifying system as Mayor Walker began to speak and he interpolated into his prepared address this remark:

"I hope the Arabs have not invaded this hall and tampered with the wiring."

Appeals for Help.

The Rev. Dr. Schulman said:

"As a people who have lived four thousand years in witness to God, our first reaction to this terrible trial is prayer to God, and no bitterness to men. Let us lift our hearts in humility and in faith.

"Our differences of opinion as Jews are matters to be disposed of in Israel. Tonight, in the presence of what happened, we are united. We consecrate ourselves without stint to a speedy help of every kind of need of our fellow-Israelites in Palestine. No man or woman with a Jewish heart will say 'no' to the appeal made to send assistance."

Stresses Need of Quick Aid.

"Every great emergency calls for numberless activities, one of which is immediate help," said Mr. Brown. "My responsibility in connection with the tragic events in Palestine is to organize the country as quickly as possible so that the absolute essential funds will be available to meet the immediate needs of our people in Palestine. There is no need for me to tell this great mass meeting that the Jews of this country will respond quickly and generously."

Mr. Rosenblatt said:

"No Jew questions the good faith of the British Imperial Goverment in its praiseworthy attempt to suppress Palestine riots, which have assumed the shape of an Arab insurrection against his Majesty's Government. We, American Jews, herewith pledge and declare that we trust and place implicit confidence in the good-will of the MacDonald Administration, and we rely upon the sense of fair play of the British people to support wholeheartedly the efforts to restore peace and order in the Holy Land.

"But there is one responsibility that Great Britain cannot escape. Under the mandate, she has assumed definite obligations as a trustee for the League of Nations. The world court of public opinion now calls her to the bar of justice to ask for an accounting of this 'Holy Land trust.' We know and feel that the British Imperial Government is free from blame, except for permitting the development in Palestine of a lax, inefficient and negligent administration, with numerous subordinates who are out of sympathy with the contract that Great Britain made known as the Balfour declaration."

Deutsch Voices Protest.

Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the American Jewish Congress, said:

"Against this loss of precious lives, against these wanton attacks upon places of worship and houses of learning, against the reckless destruction of property created by painful effort and of unparalleled self-sacrifice, the Jews of America and of the whole world must make most solemn and emphatic protest.

"The government of Great Britain had ample opportunities and ample means for taking the necessary precautions against these outrages. England which had long befriended the oppressed in Israel, England, which had voiced official protests against pogroms and attacks upon the innocent in other lands, should not in her strength and wisdom and great traditions, have exposed the Jewish settlers in Palestine to such butcheries and lent her own good name to the blame which must be attached to the destruction of human lives and the fruits of cherished labors.

"The American Jewish Congress wishes to endorse the demands which have been formulated by the leaders of the World Zionist Organization in London, and which demands, when presented to this memorable assembly, will, I feel certain, meet with the warm and wholehearted support of all those present at and represented in this gathering.

"Only the acceptance of these just demands by Great Britain and the manifestation of a positive policy seeking to definitely facilitate the establishment of the Jewish homeland will satisfy the dictates of humanity and at least in some measure atone for the grievous wrong which has been committed against Israel. Despite all discouragement we have not lost hope. Justice and righteousness will in the end prevail and a great cause can only be hurt but not destroyed by violence."

Sees Criminal Negligence.

"There is abundance of evidence that the riots and massacres in the Holy Land were premeditated and planned," said Mr. Perlman.

"The Palestine administration was criminally negligent in its failure to provide and maintain adequate protection for all the people in Palestine. It seems to me that those Arabs who planned and incited the murders that have been committed were encouraged by the knowledge that the Jews could not resist the attacks that were to be made upon them and that the Palestine administration, because of inadequacy of protection, could not stop their massacres and the destruction of life and pillage of property.

"I have every confidence that the British Imperial Government will conduct a searching investigation to determine who prompted and planned these riots and massacres. We have a right to expect that Great Britain will vigorously prosecute and mete out maximum punishment, especially to those Arab leaders who counseled and planned the riots and massacres. We have a right to expect that the British Government will call to strict account and punish those in the Palestine administration who must have known of the plans to commit the atrocities."

Regrets His Absence.

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Aug. 29.
New York City:

I need not tell you how anxious I was to come to this meeting of mourning for our martyrs in Palestine and indignation against the inhuman atrocities perpetrated upon our people in the Holy Land, but I have been moved so deeply by this tragedy that I could not come to the city tonight. The Holy Land is now even more holy to us irrigated by the innocent blood of our people who came there to build and to study and regenerate Palestine, but in our grief for the dead we must not forget the living sufferers. The collections for the victims of the Arabs' outrageous attack on innocent Jews should be so organized that each person now employed should give a small percentage of his weekly salary—say, 1 or 2 per cent. This amount would be so small for the individual that it could easily be spared, but the total of such amounts collected would be substantial. In this way also every person who gives would be entitled to the same honor as those who give large amounts. Every one would have a chance to do his or her share toward helping the poor unfortunate victims rebuild their homes, secure food and clothing, and re-establish themselves.

NATHAN STRAUS.

Other messages read at the mass meeting included one from Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America. His cable from London follows:

"Since issuing Balfour declaration and accepting the mandate by Great Britain, the Jewish people have been engaged in peaceful efforts to build a national home. Theirs was a mission of peace and good-will, the recreation of a civilization that has been of enormous value in the progress of the human race. Ways of cooperation were sought and found to establish friendly relations with Arab neighbors. Acting under a mistaken notion of the meaning of peace and conciliation, the mandatory government gradually whittled down the full intent and purpose of the mandate, thinking thus to appease Arabic resentment at the source of the Jewish national home.

"Instead of the cooperation of the government there seems to be a desire to deny and shift responsibility for the establishment of the national home. Heavy taxes paid by Jews were imposed for fear restrictions placed on immigration were obsolete. Turkish laws were retained operating specially against Jewish progress. Now inspired by the weakness of the mandatory government and its Palestine administrators with regard to fundamental purposes in Palestine, the Arabs have taken the path of violence and destruction and are engaged in an organized and murderous attack upon Jewish life and property which has destroyed much of our creative work. Our proud boast that the national home was being built in peace and without military thought has become a mockery of our faith and confidence in the mandatory government and the Arab people. Under these circumstances it is hoped the whole civilized world will join in protest against these conditions and support the just demands for redress and reparation which the Jewish agency is making of the British Government."

Good-Will Union Sends Messages.

America's Good-Will Union, in a message read at the meeting, expressed sympathy with the suffering Jews of Palestine. The message, signed by the organization's president, Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, and its founder, Edward L. Hunt, follows:

"America's Good-Will Union shares and expresses the horror and sorrow of all our people over the atrocities against the Jews in Palestine.

"We voice the profound universal sympathy in America with our fellow-citizens of Jewish faith in their anguish, and in their vigorous efforts on behalf of their people.

"We trust that the British Government will not only provide adequate protection against such frightfulness in the future, but will also devise such an organized, continuous campaign of education in good-will as will overcome the bitterness manifested by these atrocities, and will, within four decades, educate a generation which may celebrate the jubilee of the Balfour declaration with a widespread, practically universal, observance of the words of the Torah, 'Thou shalt love they neighbor and the stranger within thy gates even as thyself,' and so make Palestine, for both Jews and Christians, and for Moslems, also, true to its name: 'The Holy Land.'"

From Paris the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, honorary president of the American Jewish Congress and veteran Zionist leader, sent the following message to the meeting:

"In deepest sorrow for our martyred dead, Kedoshim mass meeting should demand of British Government immediate closing of new Haram opening to Wailing Wall. We would not change mandatory power if we could, but change there must be in England's attitude toward our just aspirations as recognized by Balfour declaration and new policy henceforth of genuine cooperation between London and Palestine in building Jewish national home."

See Attacks Premeditated.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

The civilized world has been startled and horrified by the outrages perpetrated upon the Jewish population of Palestine by organized bands of fanatical Arabs. The Holy City has been desecrated and turned into a battleground under the eyes of the Palestine Administration, charged with the duty of preserving law and order in the country.

All accounts point to the fact that these attacks upon Jewish life and property were premeditated, concerted and well organized. The Arab aggressors were unlawfully armed. The Jews, particularly in the small outlying communities, were taken by surprise and put to the sword. Arab outrages reached the depths of savagery in the ancient city of Hebron, where scores of Jewish scholars and students, utterly defenseless, were brutally massacred. These events have shocked mankind and filled every Jewish heart with horror and indignation.

The civilized nations have pledged themselves to the Balfour declaration and the Palestine mandate. Great Britain has assumed the responsibility of the mandate over Palestine, granted to it by the League of Nations. The Balfour declaration upon which such mandate is based reads as follows:

"His Majesty's Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of that object, it being understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice any civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by the Jews in any other country."

Built Upon These Pledges.

Upon the strength of these pledges the work of the peaceful upbuilding of Palestine has been begun by the Jewish people; land purchased, cities and villages built, swamps drained, the soil cultivated, industries organized and educational and welfare institutions—including the University of Jerusalem—founded.

Tens of thousands of our best men and women have gone to Palestine to carry on the work of the redemption of the land from centuries of waste and desolation.

The Jews of America, cooperating with their brethren of other lands, have poured tens of millions of dollars into Palestine through the United Palestine Appeal, the Joint Distribution Committee, the Hadassah Medical Organization and other welfare agencies.

The resultiing economic progress has contributed to the health and well-being of the entire population and the welfare organizations have served the people of the country, without regard to race or creed.

We are resolved to go forward with the peaceful development of Palestine, the re-establishment of the ancient homeland. We cannot be swerved by a hair's breadth from our purpose by outbursts of primitive savagery. The memory of our martyred dead must cause us to rededicate ourselves to our holy task.

We desire to express our confidence in the honor and faith of the government and people of Great Britain. To them we now turn, that justice may be done to the Jewish people, to the living and to the dead.

We charge the administration in Palestine with laxity, inefficiency, incompetence and criminal neglect in failing to prevent the organization and arming of the Arab mobs.

We further charge the administration in Palestine with the deliberate disregard of its obligations under the mandate derived from the League of Nations, which calls not only for the preservation of the civil and religious rights of all but also for active cooperation through the establishment of the Jewish homeland in Palestine by encouraging Jewish immigration and colonization upon the soil.

Demand Order Be Restored.

On behalf of the Jewish people of America we do now therefore submit the following demands:

1. That immediate steps be taken for the restoration of law and order in Palestine.

2. That there be instituted an immediate and thorough investigation of the causes leading to the Arab outbreaks, and that all who have been directly or indirectly guilty of inciting or perpetrating the attacks be punished.

3. That all lax and incompetent officials in the administration in Palestine, including those who are not in sympathy with the purpose of the mandate, be dismissed.

4. That the police force of Palestine be organized so as to include a large percentage of Jews, and that adequate military forces be established to provide for the future defense of the Jewish population.

5. That fullest compensation be made to the victims of the attacks, or to their families, for Jewish lives lost and Jewish property looted or destroyed.

6. That provision be made for the opening of the doors of Palestine to an increased immigration in accordance with the spirit of the Balfour declaration and the Palestine mandate.

7. That the just settlement of the problem of the Wailing Wall be immediately arranged through government expropriation, after adequate compensation, in recognition of the fact that the Wailing Wall is a holy place preculiarly sacred to the Jewish people, to be safeguarded in like manner as the holy places of Chistians and Moslems.

8. And finally we demand a complete and public restatement of the policy of the Government of Great Britain that shall make clear and indubitable its intention to carry into effect the purpose of the Balfour declaration and the mandate over Palestine, granted to it by the League of Nations.

Assemblyman Julius S. Berg, commander-in-chief of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, at the national headquarters of his organization, 243 West Thirty-fourth Street, last night proclaimed next Tuesday evening an "evening of mourning," and directed each member of the order and its women's auxiliaries to attend memorial services to be held at the Institutional Synagogue, 37 to 43 West 116th Street, at 8 o'clock on that evening.

Other speakers were Zip Szold, President of Hadassah; F. Finestone, who spoke for labor, and Jonah J. Goldstein. Dr. Israel Goldstein of Temple B'nai Jeshurun, pronounced the benediction.

Hoover Message of Sympathy Read at Garden; Urges Generous Relief for Palestine Victims

The following message from President Hoover was read to more than 20,000 Jewish sympathizers at a protest mass meeting at Madison Square Garden last night:

The White House,
Washington, D. C.
Aug. 29, 1929.

Mr. Herman Bernstein,
111 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

I have your request for a statement that may be presented at the meeting this evening in New York. I am glad of the opportunity to express my profound sympathy with those who have been bereaved and who have suffered through these disturbances. Good citizens in every country deplore these outbreaks and this loss of life. Our government is deeply concerned not only in this broader sense, but in the narrower sense of the protection of the lives of American citizens.

Our advices are that the vigorous action taken by the British Government has restored a large measure of protection, although that government is still faced with great burdens from this outburst of fanaticism. I know the whole world acknowledges the fine spirit shown by the British Government in accepting the mandate of the Palestine in order that there might, under this protection, be established a homeland so long desired by the Jews.

Great progress has been made in this inspiring enterprise over this last ten years, and to this progress the American Jews have made enormous contribution. They have demonstrated not only the fine sentiment and ideals which inspire their activities but its practical possibility.

I am confident out of this tragic event will come greater security and greater safeguards for the future under which the steady rehabilitation of the Palestine, as a true homeland will be even more assured. An immediate and pressing question is the relief to those who are suffering. The fine sympathy of the American people is already evidencing itself in this purpose and it should receive the most generous support.

HERBERT HOOVER.

The models pictured were ordered by Chanel for her personal use. We imported the originals from Annek and have made excellent copies of them in the same crepe satin.

Graf Zeppelin Passengers 'Thrill Drunk' as Dirigible Ends Record World Cruise

PRESIDENT EXTOLS ECKENER FOR FLIGHT

CROWDS APPLAUD CAPTAIN

German Says the Need Is for Faster Dirigibles, Shorter and With Greater Girth to Add Strength.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, came to Washington by airplane today to receive the approbation of President Hoover for his record-breaking flight around the world and to catch a good night's rest in preparation for a ten-day stay in the United States.

His visit, coming quickly after the dirigible had been housed at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station, developed spontaneously into a tour of triumph as the pioneer of the skies sped about official Washington, calling upon the President, Assistant Secretaries of State Joseph P. Cotton and William R. Castle Jr., Secretary of the Navy Adams and Postmaster General Brown.

The President's Greeting.

In his formal greeting the President said:

Dr. Eckener: It gives me great satisfaction personally to congratulate you upon this noteworthy attainment. It shows that the spirit of high adventure still lives. Its success has been due to the eminent scientific and engineering abilities of the German people, translated by your skill and courage. You have already witnessed the universal appreciation of the American people of your accomplishment. You have given a most valuable service to aviation; you have added to the lustre of your countrymen and you have lifted the spirits of men with renewed confidence in human progress.

Dr. Eckener's reply was:

Mr. President, I am deeply grateful for the gracious address you have been pleased to extend to me. You have been kind enough to appreciate what the ship, captain and crew have achieved and we feel proud of such appreciation. I wish to say, however, that the achievement could not have been possible without the generous assistance which came from the United States and I wish to avail myself of this occasion to express my gratitude.

Once the ceremony was completed, the President paused for a further personal word of congratulation to Dr. Eckener and then hurried back to his desk.

To Fly Back to Lakehurst.

Throngs of government workers, crowding the corridors of the State, War and Navy Building, the Navy Building on the Mall and the Post-office Department cheered Dr. Eckener as he strode along upon his round of calls. These finished, Dr. Eckener was hurried to the home of Dr. Otto C. Kiep, counselor of the Chargé d'Affaires of the German Embassy, where he planned to sleep without interruption until tomorrow morning, when he is scheduled to leave the Anacostia naval air station at 7 A. M. in a navy transport plane to return to Lakehurst.

Dr. Eckener announced that immediately after he returns to Germany he will begin the organization of a corporation, probably backed by German and American capital, to construct and operate dirigibles in transatlantic and other service.

Calling upon Postmaster General Brown, Dr. Eckener assured him the world cruise of the Graf Zeppelin would not have been possible without the mail contracts given to him by the United States, and was told by the Postmaster General: "We put the mail on your ship because we were sure you would deliver it."

Crowd Waits to Greet Him.

Dr. Eckener, accompanied by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics; William P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, and Dr. Kiep, landed at the naval air station here at 2:04 P. M. in a tri-motored Ford transport plane, piloted by Lieutenants A. P. Storrs and Rutledge Irvine.

A crowd was waiting to greet Dr. Eckener and he was met by a reception committee which included Captain G. F. Neale, aide to Secretary Adams; Commander John H. Towers, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics; Dr. Emil L. Baer of the German Embassy staff, and Commander A. H. Douglas, commander of the station.

In talking with Secretary Adams, Dr. Eckener mentioned his plans to return to Germany and organize a corporation for the building and operation of dirigibles in the transatlantic trade, and was asked what lessons he had learned from the cruise.

"For one thing," Dr. Eckener replied, "we must build faster ships. It is only a question of power. We also must alter their shape, building shorter ships with greater girth and greater strength. Thus far we have been compelled to build the ships of the size we have because of the limitations of the hangars available.

"It is very likely, too, that we will be able to use helium in the new ships, because apparently it is possible to hope for cheaper helium, now that adequate supplies of it are periodically being discovered. We certainly look forward to a bright future."

Dr. Kiep said Dr. Eckener would go into seclusion on Long Island for a rest over the week-end after watching the Graf Zeppelin leave Lakehurst.

ZEPPELIN VOYAGERS CITY'S GUESTS TODAY

ECKENER TO RECEIVE GIFT

Silver Punch Set to Be Presented by Local German Press at Luncheon to Fliers.

A reception such as the city has given in the past to transatlantic fliers has been arranged for today for Dr. Hugo Eckener and the officers, crew and passengers who made the first airship voyage around the world.

The program announced yesterday by Police Commissioner Whalen will start a marine parade in the bay about 11:30 A. M., when Dr. Eckener arrives from Washington, where he went to pay his respects to President Hoover.

If Dr. Eckener returns by seaplane, he will be picked up by the municipal tug Macom near the Statue of Liberty; or if he returns by land plane to Miller Field, S. I., he will board the Macom at the Municipal Ferry slip to be escorted to the Battery by airplanes, police and fireboats, and harbor craft.

The official parade, consisting of an escort of police and of detachments of army and navy forces, is scheduled to start its march up Broadway at noon. The parade should arrive at City Hall at about 12:30 P. M. There the city guests will be presented by Commissioner Whalen to Mayor Walker and receive his official welcome, which Dr. Eckener will acknowledge.

Everything that is said should be heard within a radius of a mile, by virtue of a new and powerful voice amplifying system on the roof of the City Hall.

By 1 o'clock Mayor Walker will join the parade and it will proceed to the Hotel Astor, where a luncheon will be tendered the voyagers.

At the luncheon Commissioner Whalen will preside. The scheduled speakers include Arthur Brisbane, Dr. Otto C. Kiep, counselor of the German Embassy at Washington, and Thomas H. Hoffman, national chairman of the Steuben Society.

Others on the reception committee include Julius Meyer of the Hamburg-American Line; Herman Brune, President of the Plattdeutsche Society of New York; David Maier, editor of the American Monthly, and Frank Cordts, acting president of the German-American Conference.

In recognition of Dr. Eckener's achievement, a silver punch service will be presented to him by the German press of New York at the close of the official welcome.

Florenz Ziegfeld has invited the captain and crew of the Zeppelin and Commissioner Whalen to be his guests at tonight's performance of "Show Girl".

Fear that the voyagers might still be too exhausted to undergo the strain of a public reception led Mr. Whalen to hold today's plans in abeyance until he had obtained Dr. Eckener's approval, over the long-distance telephone.

CREW OF 450 LANDS AIRSHIP IN 45 MINUTES

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—The landing of the Graf Zeppelin this morning at the point where she started her historic flight around the world required only forty-one minutes.

Four hundred and fifty sailors and marines were required for the delicate task of hauling the dirigible into her hangar and many workers received a ducking when the dirigible spouted gallons of ballast water down upon them, to the amusement of the crowd.

Once in the hangar, the Zeppelin passengers quickly alighted to be greeted with cheers from the crowds that surged through the hangar doors despite the efforts of marine guards to hold them in check. The spectators reserved their loudest cheers for the Zeppelin's commander, Dr. Hugo Eckener.

AMERICAN OVATIONS MOVE DR. ECKENER

SAYS SHIP HAS STOOD TEST

Way Is Now Paved for Commercial Dirigible Flights, He Declares—Has No Thought of Retiring.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander of the Graf Zeppelin, was emphatic on one point when he was cornered for a mass interview shortly after he had climbed out of his cabin this morning. He declared that the round-the-world flight had demonstrated to the world in general and to the United States in particular that the way had now been properly paved for lighter-than-air craft commercial flights.

"Two years ago," he said, "there was a good deal of skepticism with regard to the use of dirigibles. Interest in this type of aircraft was not so strong; but now, after the extraordinary receptions we have had everywhere, and particularly in the United States, I can safely conclude that airship flights have stood the test."

On my own behalf, as well as my fellow-countrymen, it gives me great satisfaction to welcome you and the members of your party upon the completion of your memorable flight around the world. It has been a great adventure, which again stirs the spirit and interest of all men and women. It marks another step in the progress of aviation. The German people are to be congratulated upon this evidence of their great contributions to the art, and you are to be congratulated upon your courage and skill. Mr. Hearst, who, I understand, has importantly aided the trip financially, is also to be congratulated upon its outcome.

Dr. Eckener looked tired when he landed. He was pale and showed the strain the world flight imposed upon him.

For the next ten or twelve days Dr. Eckener will remain in the United States on business.

"First of all," said Dr. Eckener, "I am more than moved at the cordiality of the people of America and I am deeply grateful for the wonderful receptions we have been accorded everywhere we have passed from the Pacific to the Atlantic Coast. I have never thought such enthusiasm possible as that manifested when we circled over Chicago. I shall never forget the splendid reception at Los Angeles and the glorious view of San Francisco.

"I give my sincerest thanks to the government of the United States for its fine cooperation and assistance everywhere we have gone, not least right here at Lakehurst, where we have been so well treated. I am greatly impressed by the intense interest which the people of the United States have taken in our flight.

"The Graf Zeppelin will probably start off again for Friedrichshafen on Saturday night. That is, if the ship can be refueled and fixed up in time. My trusted assistant, Captain Lehmann, will be in command."

"Are you going to New York?" "What are your plans?" "Did you have any trouble?" "Are you going to retire?" "How does it feel up in the air?" "Were the Siberians frightened?"

Dr. Eckener held up his hand in mock despair and began by answering the question about retirement.

"Certainly not," he said with warmth. "I have given no thought whatever to retiring. My immediate plans are to attend a few business meetings in this country. I may go to New York, and I may not. I cannot say as to that. But I am going to Washington to attend a meeting of Zeppelin company directors in a couple of days, and I will later go to Akron to attend a business conference."

Dr. Eckener emphasized that beyond the insignificant mishap at Tokio, when the Zeppelin was slightly damaged in the hangar, nothing unpleasant had happened on the entire flight. The damage at Tokio was repaired within eight hours and everything was shipshape from then on. There was a moment of apprehension, he admitted, when in leaving Los Angeles the dirigible "bumped" and almost sped into high tension wires, but as little harm was done the incident was practically unnoticed.

5,000 GREET ZEPPELIN AT LAKEHURST FIELD

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—Although considerably smaller than previous crowds which have welcomed the Graf Zeppelin upon her arrivals at the naval air station here, 5,000 persons enthusiastically greeted the German dirigible at the end of its world flight here today.

As the day wore on, however, increasing numbers, among them automobilists from all sections of the country, poured into the reservation. Officials of the naval air station estimated tonight that 50,000 persons had passed through the hangar during the day. In addition to thousands of private cars, forty buses and one excursion train from New York brought the crowds to the field. Traffic became so heavy that one-way routes were established in and near the station. Authorities at the air station had made thorough preparations. Extra patrols of marines were detailed to keep the visitors in check behind the ropes for pedestrians at the hangar and for automobiles at the edge of the landing field. More than fifty State troopers, who had been quartered at the station during the night, helped direct automobile traffic and marshal pedestrians into "grand stand" places behind the ropes.

During the night, a handful of patient watchers waited in their machines for the Zeppelin's arrival, which they believed might occur at "any time from now on." When the ground crew was summoned at 7 o'clock this morning to start preparations for bringing the Zeppelin to earth, there were less than 2,000 persons at the field. Many watchers who came unprepared for chilly weather were uncomfortable until the sun mounted high enough in the sky to disperse the ground mists.

ZEPPELIN ENDS 21-DAY WORLD TRIP

veyed the Pacific for three days and then southward over California she sailed to Los Angeles. Seven of her crew were dropped there to give her enough lift to overtop the Rockies, and then Dr. Eckener struck eastward, soaring high, then low over desert and mountain.

City after city glimpsed the speeding airship, and at 7:02 A. M. today the Zeppelin again saluted New York. She swung with majestic grace over the city, a mist mantled her symmetrical sides. The sun broke through, tracing a luminous path for her. After a short wait the dirigible turned and headed here.

At 8:06 A. M. the first mooring rope touched ground, officially ending the globe-circling trip, and seven minutes later the Zeppelin herself rested on earth. A crew of 450 sailors had tugged her down from the skies.

Pride in their classic achievement lingered with the passengers and crew as they debarked at 8 o'clock this morning. But few of them, fresh from their long jaunt, said they would not care to repeat the exnerience—at least, not for the time being.

Dr. Eckener, hero of the flight and victor over the treacheries of world weather, was tired. He was filled with triumph, however, and eager to see his ship off again for Friedrichshafen.

He announced that the Zeppelin would sail for Germany at midnight Saturday. The passenger list will be made known tomorrow by the Hamburg-American Line. Orders to be aboard by 10 P. M. Saturday. Captain Eckener will not be in the control cabin when his ship moves off into the night. Captain Ernst A. Lehmann, second in command, will guide the ship home.

Dr. Eckener will remain in this country for twelve days. He will attend two business conferences, one at Washington and one at Akron, Ohio, where the Goodyear Zeppelin Company has its plant.

Tomorrow New York is to give a reception for him and the dirigible crew. After a marine parade in the harbor there will be an official welcome by Mayor Walker and a luncheon at the Hotel Astor.

Hoover Sends Message.

A message from President Hoover, conveying national and personal congratulations on his achievement, was awaiting Captain Eckener here. Characterizing the flight as another step in aerial progress, the President said the circumnavigation of the globe had been "a great adventure which again stirs the spirit and interest of all men and women."

Nine of the sixteen passengers on the Zeppelin will continue their voyage Saturday night. They were booked for the Friedrichshafen-Friedrichshafen world cruise. Seven who started here ended their adventure when the drone of the five Maybach motors died away this morning. Among those who left here were Lady Grace Drummond Hay, who described the trip for the Hearst newspapers, which sponsored the flight; Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and Lieutenant Jack C. Richardson, United States Navy observers on the voyage.

Commander Rosendahl left to Lieutenant Richardson the task of describing the trip. The Lieutenant, who was high in praise of the Zeppelin, her master and her crew, declared, however, that the trip had demonstrated the need for international exchanges of air weather data.

Eight nationalities were represented on board the Zeppelin at various stages of her trip. They were French, Swiss, German, Spanish, American, Australian, Japanese and Russian. Two Japanese newspapermen made the flight from Friedrichshafen to Tokio, where they were succeeded by two others who debarked at Los Angeles. A Russian geographer and meteorologist, taken on in Germany to aid Captain Eckener in the difficult navigation of Siberia, left the ship at Tokio. The other nationals stepped "ashore" here this morning and boarded a special train which took them to New York.

Made Contact With Lakehurst.

The time of arrival of the Zeppelin at the naval station here had been uncertain until 4 o'clock this morning. At that hour a naval officer disclosed to newspapermen that direct communication with the Zeppelin had been established by the station early last night.

Captain Eckener, failing to "raise" a neighboring wireless station, asked the navy to help. He then reported his position over Ohio and scheduled his arrival for 6 A. M. Standard Time. He arrived over the field at 7:55 A. M. Daylight Saving Time.

Beyond the solitary message the Zeppelin did not "talk" to the station. Officers, however, getting information of her progress from news agencies, were able to estimate her probable arrival after considering wind, weather and her reported speed. The pace of the dirigible through the day and night—her appearance over Chicago, where she received a remarkable greeting, her circles over the air races at Cleveland, and her steady route down through Indiana and Pennsylvania—was clocked regularly.

When dawn began to break the hour the Zeppelin would appear was known and about 2,000 persons were out on the chilly landing field. A wind that had the nip of early Autumn in it cut across the field and prompted some speculation as to whether the Zeppelin could land before the lull that usually preceeds sunset.

As the sky grew lighter the wind dropped. At 7:02 A. M. the voice of a radio announcer in Manhattan came booming through the hangar from a loudspeaker:

"The Graf Zeppelin has just circled Times Square," the announcer said, "and is heading toward Lakehurst. In the interval between now and her arrival we will be entertained—"

As thousands in New York turned from their windows to tune in for the broadcasting of the landing here, the crowd on the field, which had increased to 5,000 persons, found plenty of entertainment to enliven the wait. The siren on the roof of the hangar had called the sailors to assembly in the hangar and the Marine Corps squads of sentries had marched out to patrol the field.

The massive doors at the south side of the hangar moved ponderously open and a wind register, which reports velocity by the number of times the wind causes a bell to ring, was trundled down the field. The landing crew marched out and far down the grassy area where they fell into formation, ready to bring the Zeppelin down.

Sighted at 7:51 A. M.

At 7:51 A. M. the dim form of the air liner was seen in the northeast. Without any effort at speed, but with all five propellers spinning, the Zeppelin came on. She passed over the northwestern tip of the lofty roof and continued straight ahead. Perhaps five miles away, and just when she was fading from sight, the Zeppelin swung around and again came on.

The name Graf Zeppelin in tall red letters could be read at the bow. The license number in larger black letters was strikingly legible against the sun-tinted sides of the ship. Manoeuvring his craft with care, Captain Eckener dipped the bow sharply toward the ground. But the dirigible tilted up to an even keel again. The dirigible motors were shut off. The Zeppelin, however, passed over the waiting ground crew before Captain Eckener could again dip his bow.

The second time his tactics succeeded. The Zeppelin settled easily and slowly. At the proper moment the door in the bow was flipped open and the first landing cask of rope plunged to the field. The ship came to a standstill after the rope coils had struck with a spurt of dust. The sailors grasped the ropes and began to haul.

Just as they did so water ballast from three compartments was emptied. Many of the sailors received a thorough wetting. With shouts they stuck to their posts and the Zeppelin touched the landing field.

Commander Rosendahl and Lieutenant Richardson leaped out. Immigration and public health officers climbed into the cabin. The customs inspection of the ship had been made at Los Angeles and no further search was called for, inasmuch as the Zeppelin had "sailed" from an American port for another American port, and coastwise rules applied.

While the inspectors hurried through their work the dirigible was walked into the hangar. The order to "slack ropes" was given at 8:47 A. M. and the gangplank was lowered.

ALL GERMANY HAILS FLIGHT,

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—All Germany rejoiced over the Graf Zeppelin's safe arrival at Lakehurst, which was again broadcast throughout Germany. The press devoted columns and leading headlines to the event, giving a full account of the reception at New York and complete data on the world flight.

One paper draws the conclusion that it is Germany's duty to defend and secure the position which German labor and daring has gained her. After pointing to the construction of huge airships in the United States and England this paper says that Friedrichshafen too is planning an even speedier giant dirigible and that, while her financial means are limited, Germany should beware of a shortsighted policy. The Zeppelin has started a new epoch in the nation's life and the German people must contribute to its development, this paper declares.

The Berliner Tageblatt hopes Eckener's financial negotiations will be successful and declares: "With American capital for the construction of useful ships we stand at the beginning of the first transatlantic airship line between Europe and America."

A nationalistic paper says: "This victory of German thoroughness, persistence and inventive power just comes in time to console us at a moment when German fate will be decided for generations. If a people, after what we passed through, can astound the world with such deeds in ten years, it also has power to refuse to bend before unjust atrocities—if it had such leaders as Dr. Eckener."

ECKENER IS HIGHLY PRAISED

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—Smiling and happy, sixteen passengers climbed down out of the Graf Zeppelin after she had been walked into the naval hangar here this morning.

Several of them, including Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and Lieutenant J. C. Richardson, both of the United States Navy, and Lady Grace Drummond Hay, the only woman passenger aboard, were conducted to microphones to say a word to the thousands of radio listeners throughout the country, while the others, including all the civilians, were rushed into buses and whisked to a special train which carried them to New York.

Some finished their cruise here. Practically all the European passengers will go on to Friedrichshafen when the dirigible flies homeward Saturday night. These were ordered by Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the dirigible, to be aboard not later than 10 P. M. Saturday. The take-off is set for about midnight.

One passenger on landing described himself as "absolutely thrill drunk." Another said he had subtracted twenty years from his age of 60. Several extolled the glories of the California coast, while still another said he could never have believed, without seeing, that so many people could "get into such a small spot as Chicago." All laughed at any idea of fright in the storms the Zeppelin had encountered or in crossing the Pacific. One mentioned that probably the most thrilling moment for him was in the take-off Tuesday morning from Los Angeles when the gas-filled ship scraped a high tension wire.

List of Passengers.

WILLIAM B. LEEDS of New York.

Lieutenant J. C. RICHARDSON, United States Navy.

Lady GRACE DRUMMOND HAY.

KARL VON WIEGAND, journalist.

ROBERT HARTMANN, journalist.

H. von PERKHAMMER, German photographer.

The world travelers boarded the special section of the Blue Comet, Central Railroad of New Jersey flier which the Hamburg-American Line had chartered, and rode into Jersey City, where they transferred to a ferry for New York.

But after they boarded the ferry M. Gerville-Reache, the French journalist, found that his baggage—"all of it," he said—had been mislaid somewhere on the trip from Lakehurst to Jersey City after having gone most of the way around the world on the Graf Zeppelin without a mishap.

"I had complete confidence in his ability to bring us here," said the physician. "I was on that trip when we had to turn back and land in France, but that did not discourage or frighten me.

"One such trip as this one is enough, however. Never again for me. This is the second time I have been around the world. I went around on the Franconia four years ago. It took six months. Now I'm going around in a little over twenty days."

Dr. Megias, speaking of the health of those aboard, said there never was any air sickness, although one was on the sick list just a day before the ship reached here. This was Mr. Perkhammer, he explained, who developed a severe case of toothache.

The physician declared his voyage was strictly a private one, although he had been in daily radio communication with the King. He said that the King, through him, had sent Dr. Eckener his congratulations.

M. Gerville-Reache joined heartily in Dr. Megias's praise of Dr. Eckener.

"The personal worth of Dr. Eckener well deserves the honor of the great victory he won in crossing the Pacific," he said. "In saying this, as the sole Frenchman aboard, I am sure that I am expressing the sentiments of my entire country. A Frenchman recognizes valor, no matter in what country."

The Graf Zeppelin stood up remarkably well in bad weather, M. Gerville-Reache said, "better than a ship at sea would have in the same weather." There was plenty of "good eating, good sleeping and much working," he said.

The first passenger to emerge from the Graf Zeppelin was Mr. Leeds. He it was who termed himself "thrill drunk." He lingered about the hangar only a minute, then retired to a safe distance and lit a pipe.

"The first since Los Angeles," he said as he puffed away.

"Do you prefer this mode of travel to any other?" some one asked.

"Now, that's a nice question when you've just got off a ship like that from a cruise around the world," he replied.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, the Australian explorer, said that now that the world flight was over he could get to work on his own plans, those for an expedition to the Antarctic.

"It was a fine trip," he said, "and I liked the start of it better than I do the end, but I'm glad its over and I can start on my own work."

He said he planned leaving for the Antarctic in about three weeks. He is contemplating meeting Commander Byrd in the south polar regions, he said.

"But I will be back in April," he continued, "in time to join the Graf Zeppelin on her flight to the North Pole." He explained he was going on the Graf Zeppelin North Pole flight strictly as a private individual and not in any official capacity.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—Two Boy Scouts, Judson Farrell, 13 years old, and Richard Jones, 15, hitch-hiking from Mountain Lake, N. J., 102 miles away, reached the Zeppelin hangar at noon after leaving their homes at 8 o'clock in the morning. They carried a letter from a young woman to Ernst Fischback, cabin boy on the Graf Zeppelin, which they duly delivered. The boys, members of Troop 41, Panther Patrol, also helped in the press room answering telephone calls and delivering messages.

PORT FORMALITIES BRIEF.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—The Graf Zeppelin, voyaging from Los Angeles to Lakehurst, came under the same Federal customs, public health and immigration regulations which apply to a steamship docking at one American port after calling at another on her inbound voyage.

The air liner had passed her public health inspection at the Pacific port, so the public health doctor from the Port of Philadelphia, who was among the first to go aboard on the air liner here for the start of the world cruise, was absent this morning. Plant quarantine inspection also was unnecessary for a vessel which had cleared from one American port for another. So the only Federal officials who went aboard the Zeppelin at Lakehurst were William H. Biester, Deputy Collector of Customs at Philadelphia, a customs entry clerk and an appraiser, and H. R. Zaepfel, an immigration inspector.

Mr. Biester found that all baggage had been inspected at Los Angeles. The ship had been emptied of her transpacific cargo at the same place, so his appraiser occupied himself with checking up the customs markings chalked on the baggage at Los Angeles. The entry clerk delivered to Captain Eckener the papers for the dirigible's entry at the Custom House of the Port of Philadelphia, in which Lakehurst is included, and clearance papers for the return voyage to Friedrichshafen.

Mr. Zaepfel passed the passengers through the immigration inspection in short order.

No freight was brought into Lakehurst on this voyage, but J. E. Waldorf, freight traffic manager of the Hamburg-American Line, announced that 3,300 pounds of freight would be accepted for her trip to Germany. The rates will be the same as on the previous trip.

Brings 600 Pounds of Mail.

Six hundred pounds of mail was unloaded from the Graf Zeppelin as soon as the dirigible was taken into the hangar, and before night some of it had been delivered to the addressees. The only hitch was at the general postoffice in New York, where a canceling machine went out of order for a few minutes.

JAZZ SPEEDS HOURS OF LAKEHURST VIGIL

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—Hundreds of automobiles, parked at the edge of the wood near the flying field, were occupied during the night by men, women and children who had come from all directions to see the great airship arrive. Many had brought tents and spent the night in true camping style.

Throughout the night a loud-speaker broadcast the offerings of jazz bands and hotel orchestras thousands of miles away. Inside the vast hangar, however, crickets kept up a steady chirping accompaniment ad infinitum.

In order to expedite the development of the photographs of the Zeppelin's arrival the Central Railroad of New Jersey transformed a baggage car into a photographic laboratory and had it attached to the special train that brought the Zeppelin's passengers back to the railroad terminal in Jersey City. Thus those who used these facilities were able to land in New York with their negatives developed and ready for printing.

After the Zeppelin had been taken in tow by the ground crew officials of the air station declined to grant any exceptions to the rigid rule preventing onlookers from conversing at close range with the passengers in the ship's cabin. One of the dirigible's passengers, a German newspaper correspondent, pleaded several times to have a friend on the field come close enough to the cabin to get a batch of "copy" and rush it to the nearest telegraph office to be cabled abroad. His request was denied and he had to postpone the filing of his dispatches until he had alighted from the dirigible.

Zeppelin Mail Delivers Japanese Paper of Aug. 21.

A copy of the Osaka Mainichi, a newspaper printed in Osaka, Japan, on Aug. 21 and mailed via the Graf Zeppelin to THE NEW YORK TIMES, was received here yesterday.

The paper, in addition to stories of the Zeppelin, also printed a picture of it resting in the hangar at Kasumigaura. It was mailed by Hikotchi Motoyama, president of the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokio Nichi-Nichi.

Also in the newspaper mailed to THE TIMES was a picture of the Mainichi's Berlin correspondent, Yoshinatsu Enchi, who was on the Graf during the Friedrichshafen-Tokio leg of the flight. Mr. Motoyama added, in a letter accompanying the newspaper, that the correspondent had lost his wife, father and mother before embarking.

ECKENER TO REMAIN WHEN SHIP RETURNS

REFUELING UNDER WAY

Rudder Repairs Pushed to Prepare for Take-Off Tomorrow Midnight —Chance for a New Record.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—The Graf Zeppelin will pause in Lakehurst only a little more than two days if Dr. Eckener, her commander, has his way. "We will leave Saturday evening if we can refuel by that time," he said.

United States Navy officers at the air station here said they expected to complete both the regassing of the ship and repairs to the rudder, damaged in the take-off from Los Angeles, by that time. Midnight was set as the tentative hour of departure.

When the Zeppelin takes off on its return to its home port of Friedrichshafen, Dr. Eckener will remain here on business, Captain Ernest A. Lehmann taking his place as commander.

To Be at City Reception.

Upon his return he will board a special train which will take him and other officers and members of the Zeppelin crew to New York for the official reception there in his honor tomorrow. Thereafter he will proceed to Akron, Ohio, to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Goodyear Zeppelin Company. He will return to Germany ten days or two weeks hence.

F. W. von Meister, upon his arrival here this afternoon, dispatched telling arrangements in his capacity as representative of the Maybach Motor Company, and later estimated the total amount of fuel gas that would be required at 775,000 cubic feet, and the total of lifting gas at 475,000 cubic feet. Tonight he expressed pleasure at the rate of speed with which the operation was being accomplished and predicted that the airship would be in condition to sail by 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mr. von Meister disclosed that Dr. Eckener had invited three American naval officers, two from this station and one from another, to be guests on the flight from here to Friedrichshafen, but said that their names would not be disclosed until the Navy Department had sanctioned their making the voyage.

Captain Lehmann has a record of bringing the great airship home to Friedrichshafen with a round-the-world time record that will better the present one, from Lakehurst to Lakehurst, of 21 days 7 hours and 26 minutes. The Zeppelin left Friedrichshafen Aug. 15 at 11:30 A. M., New York Daylight Saving Time. If she arrives at Friedrichshafen at any time before 7:03 P. M. Thursday, Sept. 5, the round-the-world voyage from Friedrichshafen to Friedrichshafen will have been made in shorter time than the one completed this morning.

Preparations for the homeward flight commenced within half an hour of the time the ship was walked into the hangar, after landing this morning. Large fabric gas lines were immediately hooked up and from underground pipes hydrogen lifting gas flowed into the depleted gas cells from a store totaling 40,000 cubic feet.

The rudder stem, broken when the airship lurched against electric wires in Los Angeles, is being repaired. As soon as the ship was inside the hangar today a stand was rolled under the tail and workmen commenced ripping off fabric about the damaged part and cutting away bent girders. With men working night and day, navy and civilian experts expect to have a new duralumin framework and fabric in place by noon Saturday.

Passenger List Ready Today.

How many passengers are to be aboard on the transatlantic trip was not known here. Representatives of the Hamburg-American Line announcing that the complete list would be made public tomorrow in New York. Nine round-the-world passengers, however, are, of course, among their number. Seven of these booked passage from Friedrichshafen to Friedrichshafen. They are H. von Perhammer, H. Geisenheimer, L. Gerville Reache, Gustav Kauder, all newspaper men; Dr. S. D. Seilkopf of the Hamburg Weather Bureau; Lieut. Col. Christoph Iselin, retired, of the Swiss Army, and Dr. G. Megias, physician to King Alfonso of Spain. Two others, making the flight from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, back to Friedrichshafen and thence around the world, are Joachim B. Rickard of Boston, correspondent for a Spanish newspaper syndicate, and Heinz von Eschwege-Lichtbert.

The seven members of the crew of the Graf Zeppelin, who were relieved from duty on the lap from Los Angeles to Lakehurst to increase the ship's lifting power, arrived here this noon via Trans-Continental Air Transport. Their hope of beating the Zeppelin's own record for the round-the-world trip by reaching Lakehurst ahead of her was shattered, the Zeppelin having preceded them by two hours. They all expressed keen disappointment at not having been aboard when the Zeppelin made her record.

They left the train, which had brought them from the Columbus Airport to Trenton, N. J., at 8:35 this morning, and came on here by automobile.

The story of the Graf Zeppelin's round-the-world cruise, the reception accorded its officers and passengers at the Lakehurst air field and their responses were broadcast yesterday to five continents over WEAF and WJZ coast-to-coast networks linked with international short-wave transmitters to Germany and other foreign lands.

How the giant of the air looked from one of New York's tall buildings as it passed over the city with a number of planes disporting around it was told by National Broadcasting Company announcers beginning at 7:02 A. M. from the St. Regis Hotel roof, where they had been awaiting the coming since an early hour.

Foreign Countries Listen In.

At least four international short-wave transmitters were said to have been linked with the WEAF and WJZ coast-to-coast networks when the announcer at Lakehurst began his description of the approaching air vessel. A few minutes later he told of the ship touching earth and the beginning of the delicate process of "walking" it into the hangar by the navy landing crews, as seen from a position on the roof of the structure.

Before any one had landed from the Graf Zeppelin a voice could be heard speaking in German. The announcer said it was one of the Zeppelin's crew.

Other voices heard during the landing were identified by the announcer as Commander Charles Rosendahl and Lieutenant J. C. Richardson. Another of the airship's crew, leaning from a cabin window, said he would like to be heard in Germany. An approximate translation of what was probably his first radio speech was, "It was wonderful going over Broadway."

Dr. Eckener Broadcasts.

Finally the microphones were transferred to the press room at the field, where Dr. Eckener could be heard speaking in German. The translations were also spoken before the microphone. Dr. Eckener thanked every one for their courtesy and said he was going to Washington to see President Hoover. Dr. O. C. Klep, German Chargé d'Affaires, who was the translator, said the commander of the Zeppelin was not thinking of retiring from the air, but would fly the ship on all important occasions.

Later, at the Welfare House, Graham McNamee introduced a larger group of people including Dr. Eckener, Karl Von Wiegand, Admiral J. L. Lattimer, as representative of the United States Navy; William P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; Lieutenant J. C. Richardson, Dr. Klep, Lady Drummond Hay, Colonel Frank Knox and Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl

The city's official welcome will be broadcast from the City Hall beginning at 12:30 P. M., by WNYC, WEAF, WABC and their associated networks. The speeches at the luncheon to Dr. Eckener and his men will be by the same stations at 2:30 P. M. WEAF's chain will also broadcast Dr. Eckener's welcome at Pier A at 12 o'clock.

BRITISH BROADCAST CLEAR.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Radio listeners throughout the British Isles were thrilled during the lunch hour today by hearing eye witness stories of the Graf Zeppelin's arrival at Lakehurst. The accounts were transmitted by WGY over a short-wave transmitter and rebroadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation in perhaps the finest transatlantic broadcast ever received here.

In thousands of English homes, families sitting around luncheon tables could hear the whirr of the dirigible's motors, the cheers of the crowds, the shouts of cameramen and tooting of automobile horns at Lakehurst more than 3,000 miles away.

For two hours the broadcast came over with crystal clearness with the exception of a few minutes of blurred transmission when microphones at Lakehurst were first tuned in. The program from the United States began at half-past twelve. British Summer Time, when a musical program came from WGY studio, Schenectady. Only the slightest background noise indicated that the transmission was coming across 3,000 miles instead of being a usual studio broadcast.

As soon as the broadcast was transferred to Lakehurst, the quality of the transmissions broke down, until it resembled the foggy transmission at the time of President Hoover's inauguration last March. Conditions speedily improved, however, until Dr. Eckener and Lady Drummond Hay were heard perfectly. Even Lady Drummond Hay's nervousness was clearly apparent, and many of her friends heard her say "Here we are back in Lakehurst after this wonderful—" And then, "Oh, Lord."

The most vivid picture of all came from the announcer watching from the roof of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. When the Zeppelin came in sight Londoners heard him say, "It is a beautiful and thrilling sight in the morning haze. Ten or fifteen planes are flying like wasps around her."

The Zeppelin's world flight has done more to convince the British of the practicability of airship travel than either of Dr. Eckener's recent transatlantic flights. With two giant British airships not yet out of their hangars, British imagination has been captured by the Zeppelin's achievement, both as a gallant adventure and a businesslike performance.

"Nothing approaching it has ever been attempted before," says The London Times, "and no previous experience of travel by airship has done so much to establish a feeling of confidence in its future possibilities. Whatever may be felt as to the comparative merits of airship and steamship for purely ocean voyages such as Atlantic crossings, the flight of the Graf Zeppelin has shown that for long overland routes the usefulness of the airship definitely has been proved. If when they take the air the two new British airships now at the point of completion fulfill the expectations of their designers as thoroughly as the Graf Zeppelin has done, British designers will have every reason to be content with their work."

The Journal of Commerce, influential British shipping paper, finds it significant that the Zeppelin should be flying the flag of the Hamburg-American Line, and says that British shipowners have a lesson to learn from German enterprise.

"The time has arrived when the potentialities of air transportation are such that British liner companies—for their own prestige as well as for commercial consideration—can no longer afford to stand aloof.

SAYS FLIGHT SHOWS WEATHER DATA LACK

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—The chief lesson learned from the round-the-world flight of the Graf Zeppelin was that more adequate meteorological data must be provided if long-distance dirigible aviation is to be a commercial success, according to Lieutenant Jack Richardson, navigator of the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles, who was aboard the Graf Zeppelin as an observer. He advocated the establishment of an international weather service to provide aerological data in all parts of the world by radio for airships.

As it happened, the Graf Zeppelin was never greatly hampered by lack of weather data, he said. But this was due to good luck as much as anything else.

"At times," he declared, "the weather data was very meager. Dr. S. D. Seilkopf of the Hamburg Weather Bureau, who was taken along as an expert to assist Dr. Eckener—who himself is one of the world's greatest weather men—was able to make a rather sketchy weather map of Siberia, which fortunately turned out to be perfectly correct; but one could not depend upon that to happen every time.

"From the map, however, Dr. Eckener was able to make decisions that contributed greatly to our fast time. We had thought the charts were quite inadequate and inaccurate, but they did prove good enough to get us through in fine style. But in the future some kind of international weather bureau should be set up so that airship navigators would not have to do any guessing. Guessing is too ticklish when it comes to weather."

The biggest thrill of the trip, said Lieutenant Richardson, was getting back to Mrs. Richardson and their daughter, Barbara Anne, 6 years old. "The biggest kick I got out of the flight," he went on, "was when we reached San Francisco—the hundreds of airplanes and the Farallone Islands coming up through over the Golden Gate just as the sun was setting.

"Another thrill was passing over Siberia. The people on the ground were first astounded and then terrified. Looking over the side you could see them running for cover as if from a monster. We passed over a lot of territory that no civilized man had ever before seen."

He said that he had not assisted in the navigation of the ship to any great extent, but had taken observations with his own instruments which checked with those of the Zeppelin officers. "That was all only for my own instruction," he said.

The trip, he went on, had "vindicated lighter-than-air aviation as nothing else could have done. I don't believe that this trip, however, has proved the dirigible to be more valuable in naval warfare than it was already considered to be. But the future will see lighter-than-air aviation used exclusively in long-distance transportation, especially over water, when speed is a consideration."

He declared that the ship was in no great danger at any time in the voyage and that the "closest we came to anything wrong" was in the typhoon encountered early in the Pacific leg of the flight, when, he said, the ship pitched and rolled and lost or gained as much as 500 feet of altitude with each air bump. He said that he had felt distinctly the air bump encountered as they were leaving Los Angeles which nearly caused the ship to scrape against high tension electric wires bordering the field.

FAMOUS OLD CASTLE DESTROYED BY FIRE

SHELTERED SEVEN KINGS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Lulworth Castle, the old sixteenth century mansion overlooking the sea on the Dorset coast, in which seven English Kings are said to have stayed, is a mass of glowing ruins tonight. Only the stone exterior, which until recently sheltered many literary and art treasures, including the famous Luttrell psalter, remains with its ornamental front and allegorical statues of music and painting.

The canopied bed in the Kings' Room, in which King George III slept, has been destroyed. But what is considered the greatest loss from an artistic point of view is the destruction of the beautifully decorated ceilings, dated back to 1770.

The castle, built in 1588, has been in possession of the Weld family ever since and recently was the residence of Herbert Weld, explorer and yachtsman. It has long been one of England's show places.

Masses of art treasures were indiscriminately piled upon the lawns tonight, but Mr. Weld believes that the most important pictures and pieces of old furniture as well as the library's books and plates have been saved.

The first alarm was sounded by a servent who tolled the medieval bell on the castle roof, and five fire brigades from Weymouth, Dorchester and Wareham responded to fight the flames.

An attempt was made to lay a hose pipe line two miles to the sea through "Arish Mill Gap," a break in the high cliffs, but though three fire engines were stationed at intervals along the lines, no water came and the fire burned itself out.

Radio Expert and Air Line Head Address Rotarians.

H. C. Leuteritz, American representative of the International Radio Consulting Commission, who is to attend the International Radio Conference at The Hague during September and October, addressed the members of the Rotary Club yesterday after a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore. He outlined the developments made in aviation with regard to direction finders and radio communication between airplanes and the ground.

J. M. Eaton, general traffic manager of the Pan-American Airways, which operates air mail and passenger services between Miami, Fla., and the West Indies, the Canal Zone and South America, and between Brownsville, Texas, and Mexico City, followed with an address on "Linking the Americas by Air."

Captain Harry Adams, commander of the bark City of New York, the transport ship of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, was a guest of honor and spoke of the work now going on in Little America.

Director Milton Rich, who presided, then proposed a toast to Dr. Hugo Eckener for his contributions to aeronautics.

Mrs. Henry Botkin Gets Decree.

Mrs. Rosabelle Paris Botkin of 31 Minetta Lane gained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Henry Botkin, American artist, now residing in Paris, yesterday. The decree, granted by Supreme Court Justice Crain, was awarded on the testimony of Nathan Israels, a friend of the couple. The court confirmed a report by Official Referee Whitaker who heard testimony in the undefended action. Mrs. Botkin received custody of their 5-year-old child, Antoinette.

ZEPPELIN OVER CITY IN EARLY MORNING FOG

Few Glimpse Craft, but Roar of Her Motors and Those of Dozen Airplanes Is Heard.

The Graf Zeppelin came to New York in the fog and gloom of early morning. She stayed for only five minutes, cruising slowly uptown and back. As she drifted away over the bay in the direction of Lakehurst she dipped a salute to the Statue of Liberty. The rising sun, warming its way through the fog, touched her for an instant. Then she was gone.

It was the ship's fifth visit. Once again she heard the strident wail of the boats in the harbor, once again she looked down on the monolithic spires of lower Broadway. But their tops were shrouded in mist and their windows were vacant. Lumbering trucks and laborers hurrying to their day's work paid tribute. The rest of New York slept.

The airship came into view over the Hudson at a minute or so after 7 o'clock yesterday morning. A dozen airplanes circled around her, now hidden by the fog, now speeding through the tiny shafts of sunlight. As she started over the river a tug captain saw her and remembered the city's traditional welcome. Other captains heard the whistle and the blast was taken up on all sides. Soon the shrill wail of the smaller tugs was drowned in the dull booming of the ocean liners.

The Zeppelin went northward to a position about over Canal Street, then circled in a slow, wide arc to the Hudson. She poised, almost motionless, and then started her leisurely way down along the eastern bank of the river. As she went she drew the salutes of the river, a tintinnabulation of sound which echoed and re-echoed back and forth.

So quickly did the Graf Zeppelin pay her visit to New York that the greater part of the city did not know that she had come and gone, though her engines and those of the accompanying planes were clearly heard much above the midtown section.

Not long after the dirigible had disappeared the great trek toward Lakehurst began.

RIOTS PREVENTABLE, RABBI WISE ASSERTS

By the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—"Now that it is too late, I have no doubt that England will act promptly and effectively in the interests of peace and order in Palestine," declared Dr. Stephen S. Wise in an interview today with the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

"This outbreak could have been averted if the Colonial Palestine Administration had been mindful of the gravity of permitting the Arabs to pursue a seditious and incendiary propaganda.

"October, 1928, was the time to put a limit to the outbreaks, when the Palestine officials, under orders, attacked the Jewish worshipers at the Wailing Wall and violated the service of the holiest day of the Jewish year. Those responsible for that misconduct should have been severely punished, not only the policeman but his superior.

"The Zionist leadership naturally discouraged the solemn warnings of those who foresaw the consequences of the incident. Despite the warnings of the Jewish population and the polite remonstrances of the Zionist Executive, the Arabs were permitted to build a superstructure upon the so-called Arab part of the Wailing Wall and also to effect a direct passage from the Haram to the Wailing Wall enclosure. By this means thousands of Arabs can directly penetrate from the Grand Mosque to the Wailing Wall passage crowded with Jewish worshipers.

"It was a short-sighted and unstatesmanlike policy which the Zionist Executive ought to have made clear to the Colonial Office. The Jewish people in Palestine are reverential of the Moslem and Christian sanctities and claim only one holy place. The Wailing Wall was the holiest of holy shrines of worship for the nineteen centuries of Jewish dispersion. The Jewish people are entitled under the British mandate to that security for exercising their religion as are all other forms of religious worship.

"We rest not our case on law alone. The Jewish people made with the British a solemn pact by the Balfour Declaration and are not to be sacrificed at the altar of the seeming necessity of appeasing the Indo-Moslems and the Arabs. We are entitled to expect the British Government to do with vigor and dispatch before the events what it does after the events.

"The events and horror of the last days will recur again unless Great Britain serves notice to the Arab leaders that the mandatory power under the League of Nations will not tolerate a contravention of its purpose to facilitate the establishment of the Jewish National Home. That made clear and the Palestine officers loyal, there will be little likelihood of renewal of the outbreaks.

"This policy is more just to the Arabs than the overpatience, infirmity and timidity of the Palestine administration. The wounds can be healed. British honor can be redeemed if the British Government will at last fully execute the Balfour Declaration and the Palestine mandate in accordance with their spirit and letter."

the most suitable route and the board's decision to provide short extensions in Queens and Brooklyn lifted the cost estimate.

It is understood that among the extensions will be one serving the southerly part of Queens and another bringing relief to the Rockaway district.

The plans for the new construction program were drawn with an eye to possible unification of all rapid transit lines and are said to provide facilities for linking up new city routes with Interborough or B. M. T. lines in the event of a consolidation within the next few years.

URGES US TO SHARE MONROE DOCTRINE

CARIBBEAN POLICY AIRED

By LOUIS STARK.

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 29.—A plea for taking the Latin-American nations into full partnership in the application of the Monroe Doctrine and for a more liberal interpretation of that doctrine was made here today by Professor William Marshall Drown of Princeton University at the concluding session of the Institute of Politics.

He suggested that application by the United States of the Monroe Doctrine had been too long a "negative action" and he urged that we invite the Latin-American nations to share with us "the pride in the policy and belief in its efficacy."

Professor Herbert I. Priestley of the University of California, who had charge of the conference, spoke of the "contradictory policies" of the United States in the Caribbean region and asserted that the financial interests of Americans in the Caribbean had unfortunately not helped the natives to industrial independence.

Professor Priestley spoke of the many problems set up in this country by the migration of between one million and two million Mexicans into the United States in the past seven or eight years. Application of the quota law to such a demographic problem was no solution, he said.

Mexican Labor Held Essential.

Professor Priestley in his discussion told of the problems of health, sanitation, education and political responsibility that had been brought to this country by the Mexican immigrants. He declared that the average citizen might now find himself menaced by half a score of tropical diseases contracted from imported fruits and vegetables or which might come from the products of Mexican labor in this country.

It was clear, he said, that not many seasonal industries could survive and not many mouths be fed with sugar, beans, lettuce, tomatoes and citrus fruits without our present supply of Mexican labor. Nor could the cotton industry of the Southwest be maintained without these imported pickers.

"Unless some yet unknown substitute can be found for them, we should, if we suddenly lost them, go on a siege footing in our national transportation and supply," he asserted. "We are cruelly and viciously dependent for our very existence upon helot labor."

The task of solving the problem of Mexican immigration, according to Professor Priestley, was too great for governmental treatment, and he felt that the large foundations of the United States would have to play an important part in helping the condition of these Mexican laborers. He pointed to the large share of charitable relief of the county of Los Angeles expended on Mexicans and declared that the matter was one for justice, not charity.

Hits Military Rule in Caribbean.

Professor Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago disagreed with Professor Priestley concerning the menace of American business in the interests of self-development in the Caribbean region.

He believed that the natives had more to fear from maladministration directed from Washington and carried out by army or navy officers than they had to fear from American business. While the latter furnished the natives with more bathtubs, the army and naval officers tended to deprive them of their political freedom, he said.

Professor Jesse Siddall Reeves of the University of Michigan, a member of the Pan-American Commission of Jurists for the Codification of International Law and of the Permanent Court of Central-American Jurists, summarized the history of the attempts made since 1900 to codify international law in so far as the Western Hemisphere was concerned.

He discussed the proposed compulsory arbitration treaty between this country and Latin-America, showed that it was not actually compulsory because nobody could compel one nation to select the judges to hear a dispute, and feared that discussion of this treaty in the Senate prior to the resolution for American adherence to the World Court at the Hague might be a "red herring" to defeat the latter proposal.

Closer Ties With Canada.

At the concluding session of the round table on Canadian-American affairs, Dean P. E. Corbett, of McGill University, pointed out that the common business of the two countries was more and more coming to be handled by expert commissions.

Another development which was bringing Canada and the United States into closer relations was the tremendous development of joint, scientific, technical and labor organizations.

The influence of American universities on Canadian educational life was not so good, according to Dean Corbett, because of the "highly organized mechanical system" of this country's colleges, but he added that there had been a revolution against this system in the United States where more informal teaching and more responsibility for the student were being furthered.

The extent to which wage-earners as a whole have shared in the general prosperity of the nation will be shown in detail in a book to be published this Fall by the Pollak Foundation, it was announced by Dr. William T. Foster, leader of the "planned prosperity" round table. The study has been directed by Professor Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago.

"This investigation, a report of which will cover 800 pages, will reveal the fact that the real wages of employed workers in manufacturing remained virtually the same from 1923 to 1927, but rose 6 per cent during 1928," said Dr. Foster.

"This participation of factory workers in our prosperity was composed of a 5 per cent advance in average money earnings and a decline of 1 per cent in living costs. In 1927 the average earnings of the employed wage earners in manufacturing establishments were $1,266. That was 118 per cent above the average for 1914, and was equivalent to an increase in real wages of 28 per cent.

"But to determine the share of wage-earners as a whole in our recent prosperity it is necessary to take account of changes in the numbers who are unemployed. The man who has no job gains little comfort from reading about the gains made by the man who has a job.

"Fortunately such data can readily be obtained and fortunately one important step toward obtaining the needed data will be taken in the next census of population."

Admiral C. P. Hussey, retired, told the round table on armament limitation that economic necessity would force a reduction of world armaments. There was a brief discussion of land armaments and further discussion of American cooperation with the League of Nations as a move in the direction of disarmament.

In his concluding address tonight on the French political system, Dr. Andre Siegfried drew a contrast between French and Anglo-Saxon democracy.

"Let us consider the aim of the French democracy," he said. "Essentially it seems to be freedom for the individual, politically by resistance to tyranny and intellectually by resistance to the intervention of the Church.

"Our democracy is Latin in origin and therefore unlike the Anglo-Saxon democracies, where practical social accomplishments are the first consideration. Their program is to increase the comfort and material welfare of mankind, but they do not worry very much about its intellectual freedom.

"The emphasis in the one case is laid on the individual who thinks, and in the other on the individual who lives."

NEW YORK DOCTOR MISSING.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Police began a search today for Dr. Frank M. Ende, 121 East Sixtieth Street, New York City, who came to Chicago on business and was last seen here Aug. 19.

At that time he told his friend, John W. Shaver, a publishing house official, with whom he was dining, that he had a headache. He also told Mr. Shaver he planned to get some medicine to ease his pain. That was the last time Dr. Ende was seen.

White Plains Assessments Rise.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—City Assessor William J. Weise, in announcing this morning that the assessment roll for the ensuing year is complete, declared that valuations here have risen $12,000,000, bringing the total assessed valuation of the city up to about $150,000,000. Demands upon the increased income are already in evidence, he said. The school budget particularly will be considerably increased, he anticipates.

STRAWBRIDGE JR. HURT, PILOT KILLED IN CRASH

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Charles R. Stewart, a pilot, was killed, and Frederick H. Strawbridge Jr., son of a member of the department store firm of Strawbridge & Clothier and former Harvard football player, was seriously injured tonight when the plane in which they were flying crashed near the Municipal Airport.

Stewart was piloting the plane in which he was giving Strawbridge aviation instruction. They had taken off from the airport shortly after 6 o'clock. Fifteen minutes later, as the plane was flying toward the central section of the city at a height of a quarter of a mile, it turned over three times before spinning into a nose-dive crash into an open field, a half mile away from the airport.

Stewart was crushed beneath the motor and died on the way to the Methodist Hospital. Strawbridge suffered concussion of the brain and possible internal injuries. He is expected to recover.

Stewart, a pilot employed on the Ludington flying service line between Philadelphia and Cape Cod and as instructor, last week was forced from the Camden-to-Cleveland air derby at Bordentown, N. J., by a faulty oil line.

be made less stringent, no other building can be erected within 300 feet or more of its upper fifty stories. Mr. Smith said that this meant that the upper fifty floors of the building always would have plenty of light and air.

The Waldorf-Astoria property was sold last December to the Bethlehem Engineering Company by the Boomer-du Pont interests and was taken over subsequently by a syndicate organized by the Chatham & Phenix National Bank and Trust Company. Of the members of the syndicate, announced last June, Mr. Kaufman and Mr. Earle are on the board of directors of the new Empire State Building Corporation. At this time title to the property was taken by the Waldorf-Astoria Office Building, Inc. The original price paid for the hotel property was reported to be $20,000,000. It was at first planned to erect a fifty-story building. Tentative plans were then prepared for a sixty-five story building and it finally was decided to increase the height to eighty stories.

In announcing his selection to head the new company, Mr. Smith said that the erection of the building unquestionably was one of the largest real estate undertakings in the history of the country.

The proposed building will be able to house at one time more than 60,000 persons, more than are to be found in more than half the counties of the State. The building will be only two blocks from the Pennsylvania Station and nine blocks from the Grand Central Station. It will be on the line of the proposed crosstown vehicular tunnel. It will be only a block from the Hudson & Manhattan tubes, with B. M. T. subway and the Sixth Avenue elevated railroad and two blocks on either side of it are Interborough subways.

The building will contain 34,000,000 cubic feet of space and 3,000,000 square feet of floor space. Its tower will rise over one of the busiest sections in the world, and Mr. Smith suggested that it would make a splendid place for a radio station.

Assumption of the presidency of the building company will not cause Mr. Smith to cease his interest in local, State and national politics. The apartment house at 51 Fifth Avenue, in which he will make his home, is nearing completion, but Mr. Smith and his family probably will not move there until after election.

"The apartment is not ready yet and will not be for some weeks," he said. "During my residence at Albany I received many gifts and collected many souvenirs which I prize highly. I want to have these placed in my new home so that everything will be ready when we move in. It will take several weeks to do that, so I doubt that we will be ready to move before November."

BRITAIN REPUDIATES WEIZMANN REPORT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Colonial Office in an official memorandum declares that the statements regarding the policy of the British Government in Palestine, attributed to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, fail "by reason of their incompleteness and want of accuracy" to convey the purport of Lord Passfield's conversation with Dr. Weizmann at the Colonial Office yesterday and cannot be taken as authoritative.

It was reported that the government intended to give the Jews various concessions and compensations for wha has occurred in Palestine.

After addressing a Jewish mass meeting in Albert Hall on Sunday Dr. Weizmann will leave for Geneva to make representations to the League of Nations on behalf of the Jewry in Palestine.

A meeting will be held in Lausanne on Tuesday and Wednesday next week of the advisory committee of the Jewish agencies to take up Dr. Weizmann's report on the Palestine emergency.

The Palestine fund being collected here by the English Zionist Federation has been swelled by additional contributions of more than $75,000, making the fund, to date, $175,000, with contributions continually pouring in to the London Zionist headquarters from many British sympathizers.

DORAN ASKS GRAPE MEN TO INVESTIGATE SALES

Says Government Cannot Stop Legal Use of Product but Might Study the Questionable.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29 (AP).—Grape growers and grape shippers of California today had under consideration a recommendation by James M. Doran, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, that the organized producers and distributers themselves establish a policing system designed to prevent their product from being put to illegal use after it leaves their hands.

Addressing leaders of the industry here last night, Dr. Doran reaffirmed that the prohibition department would not interfere with the purchase by householders of grapes for "grape-juice purposes" in the home. He declared that such purchases were legal so long as the juices were exclusively for home use and were not sold.

Dr. Doran declared that the distributers in California should devise some means of checking up on the manner of disposal of carload grape shipments to Eastern States if possible.

"We do not wish to have to make a detailed check of shipments into the Eastern markets," he said. "But when numerous cars of grapes go into the hands of a man who does not sell them directly into household channels we will have to look into it."

The California grape crop, which has an average value of about $300,000,000, was described to Dr. Doran as the largest perishable agricultural industry in the United States.

CUSTOMS TO SPEED WORK.

Plans Discussed for Relieving Pier Delays When Travel Is Heavy.

A conference was held at the Custom House yesterday to discuss plans decided on at a meeting of officials in Washington last Wednesday to relieve pier congestion in New York during the heavy Summer season.

Assistant Collector of the Port H. C. Stuart said he has no announcement regarding the meeting except that the program as outlined by custom and treasury officials in Washington would be carried out. He said he believed the result would be the highest possible expedition of baggage examination.

Next Monday—Labor Day—the customs expect one of the heaviest days of the year in passenger arrivals. More than 10,000 vacationists are returning on liners from Europe. To aid the regular inspectors on Monday regular freight inspectors will be assigned, as they do not examine freight on holidays. Agents who ordinarily check passengers on excursion boats at the Battery also will be designated for passenger work.

As far as the immigration division is concerned the business of clearing alien passengers for entry in this port cannot be speeded up, according to Benjamin A. Day, Commissioner of Immigration, who made a special trip down the bay last night to watch his men at work on the Mauretania.

LADY HEATH HURT BADLY IN CRASH

at the air meet were at first notified that she was dying.

Captain William Lancaster, former Royal Air Force pilot, who with Lady Heath has been flying for the American Linus Engine Company of Belleville, N. J., after talking with physicians at the hospital sent the following cable to Lady Heath's husband, Sir James Heath, at the Carlton Club, London:

Showed Sportsmanship in Race.

Named as an entry in the women's derby from Santa Monica to Cleveland, she withdrew because of other flying engagements. The women who entered, however, heard a report that she declined to enter because she did not think "it would be fair for her to fly against the other girls."

That reported remark aroused some resentment and so the women, among them several of the derby fliers who competed against Lady Heath in Monday's closed course race, were avowedly "out to get her." Phoebe Omlie and Mrs. Keith Miller finished ahead of Lady Heath in that race but Mrs. Omlie was finally ruled out for cutting a corner.

Though Mrs. Omlie's foul put Lady Heath in second place she at once entered a counter-protest, stating that Mrs. Omlie had again circled the pylon, correcting her error. Lady Heath's generous gesture completely destroyed any resentment that the American women pilots had cherished and today they were quick to express their sympathy.

The accident to Lady Heath, the first serious crash at Cleveland during the air races, threw something of a shadow on the day's events, and the crowd, which approached 25,000 in number, was less demonstrative, and watched feats of daring in silence rather than enthusiasm.

Lindbergh in Squirrel Cage Loop.

Colonel Lindbergh and his navy comrades, Lieutenants Klvette and O'Beirne, again showed their skill as stunt pilots. They looped in V formation and then, changing to single file, put on a pretty demonstration of the squirrel-cage loop. With the Colonel in the lead they whirled about on each other's tails, first five and then, changing formation, four times.

Juan de la Cierve again demonstrated the flying capabilities of the autogiro. The army and navy put on their fighting formations again, and promise more intricate stunts for tomorrow and the day after.

A feature of the afternoon's air carnival was the flying of three officers of the Canadian Royal Air Force, the first time that Canadian military pilots have visited the United States as a part of a regular tour of duty.

Canadian Fliers in Stunts.

Flight Lieutenants F. E. Beamish, D. A. Harding and G. R. Howson, piloting Siskin fighteres, powered with air-cooled Jaguar motors, went aloft in formation and then, after a few loops and vertical banks in formation, put on a very pretty display of solo flying. Upside-down dives and climbs, inverted flights on a level plane until their motors died, falling leaves and "dog fighting" was only a part of their program.

The first race of the day was for women pilots, a sixty-mile event. It was won by Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., in Tex Rankin's Waco Whirlwind biplane with an average speed of 137.6 miles an hour. Mrs. Louise Thaden, in a Travelair Whirlwind, was second with 131.4 miles an hour and third place went to Mrs. Blanche Noyes in another Travelair. Ruth Nichols of New York and Mrs. Florence Barnes of San Merino, Cal., followed the winners across the line.

The fifty-mile light plane race for motors of 275 cubic inch displacement was won by E. B. Heath of Chicago in a Heath-Baby Bullet with an average speed of 109.4 miles. H. A. Speer of Marshall, Mo., came in second in a Genet powered Barling at 105.9 miles and Lewis Love of Richmond, Ind., flew his Davis Sport to third place.

Escapes Death in Landing.

In the fifty-mile race for planes with 180 horsepower or less, H. S. Myres of Los Angeles had a narrow escape from death. When diving for speed after rounding the home pylon his right wheel struck the ground and crumpled at a speed of close to 150 miles an hour.

Myres pulled up sharply while several other racers crossed over his head. Among them was Clarence D. Chamberlin in his own sport monoplane. Myres came in for a landing with only one good wheel and made it, but ground-looped, damaging slightly his left-wing tip.

The race was won by Eric Williams in a Whirlwind-powered Alexander Bullet. His average speed was 134.5 miles an hour. Verne Roberts with a Warner-powered Monocoupe took second with 128.8 miles an hour and R. T. Quimby in another Monocoupe was third.

The Toronto-to-Cleveland derby ended here today. The Class A race was won by Herbert St. Martin of Montreal in a Whirlwind Travelair with the elapsed time of 2 hours 10 minutes 24 seconds. W. J. E. Johnstone of Toronto was second in a Buhl air sedan and J. G. Crang was third in another Buhl.

Seeks Solo Endurance Record.

The Class B race went to Kenneth E. Whyte of Hamilton, Ont., in a Gypsy-powered Moth in 3 hours 20 seconds. Two minutes behind him finished R. C. Guest of the Toronto Flying Club, and twelve minutes later G. N. Irwin of Whitby, Ont., sent his Moth across the line. This was the most closely contested cross-country race of the meet so far.

Flew From Cape Town to London.

Lady Heath, better known in her early piloting days as Mrs. Sophia Elliott Lyan, is one of the pioneer women fliers of the world. She married Sir James Heath in December, 1921. She learned to fly when flying was a dangerous art and has kept her hand in almost continuously ever since.

She has been the holder of the women's altitude record several times in the past. When the record was as low as 13,400 feet she held it. Later she raised it to 17,000 feet and at last made a new record for light planes with pilot of either sex of 24,700 feet.

Lady Heath has narrowly escaped death many times during her career. Once in South Africa she fainted while flying alone. She felt herself going out, she said, cut her motor, headed the plane for an open space in what she thought was an even glide and landed unconsciously, but safely. She woke up in a near-by native hut, the occupants of which had revived her.

CASES DATE BACK TO 1917

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Overassessment of taxes in fourteen cases totaling $6,235,691.42 were announced today by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Leading the list were the Baldwin Locomotive Works and its subsidiary, the Standard Steel Works Company of Philadelphia, with $3,765,598.28.

The General Electric Company of Schenectady came next, the overassessment in that instance amounting to $556,917.21. One Pennsylvania family, Love by name, the members of which were covered by five awards, benefited to the extent of $1,426,597.38.

Love Awards Explained.

The heavy awards to members of the Love family attracted considerable attention. The only information made available in the brief decision by the bureau was the following statement, which was identical in each case:

"The overassessment represents a deficiency in tax and an ad valorem penalty previously summarily assessed under the provisions of Section 250 (D), revenue act of 1921, since the amounts which furnish the basis for such jeopardy assessments have, on further investigation, been determined to represent loans and not taxable income within the purview of Sections 213 and 213 of the revenue act of 1918 and the regulations thereunder promulgated."

In each instance the overassessment in connection with this family was in the year 1918.

BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS, INC., 1912, $7,391.25; 1913, $3,406.28; 1914, $3,666.99; 1915, $6,378.32; 1916, $1,676.76; 1917, $2,494.02; 1919, $101,575.37; 1919, $135,110.04; 1920, $781,150.57; 1921, $30,-144.08; 1922, $131,613.66; 1923, $133,062.21; 1924, $78,454.67; 1925, $57,267.90.

Quotes Decision.

The decision made public by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Robert H. Lucas, said in part:

"The entire overassessment for 1917 represents a deficiency in tax assessed but not collected within the statutory period provided for collection. New York and Albany Lighterage Company v. Bowers (273 U. S. 346).

"The overassessment for 1918 represents the cancellation of a portion of a duplicate assessment which occurred when a tax was assessed twice against a subsidiary company, once upon the net income reported by it in a separate return and again upon the basis of the net income reported for it in a consolidated return filed by the parent company.

"The entire overassessment for 1921 is caused by increasing invested capital conformable to the reduction in the Federal income tax of prior years. Article 845, Regulations 62.

"The entire overassessment for the years 1912 to 1916, inclusive ($27,-519.60) and $315,916.11 of the overassessment for the years 1919, 1920 and 1922 to 1924, inclusive, are caused by allowances of additional deductions for depreciation.

Deductions Have Been Revised.

"The deductions for depreciation included in the returns were in amounts which were merely estimated and arbitrary. These deductions have now been revised to reflect as nearly as possible in accordance with a consistent plan the actual depreciation sustained upon all the depreciable assets.

"Of the above overassessments, the amount of $237,110.85 is due to the transfer of items of income from the years in which reported to other years when they properly accrued, in accordance with the taxpayer's method of accounting and the facts in each case. The amount of $50,-691.45 represents the tax paid for 1920 on an item of income properly accrued in a prior year but erroneously reported as income of a later year.

"An overassessment of $85,914.80 is caused by the redetermination of the taxable profits on certain instalment sales, under the retroactive provisions of Article 42, Regulations 69. The amount of $100,540.60 is caused by elimination of income erroneously reported upon collection of accounts previously deducted as worthless in the income tax returns, such deductions in the prior years having been subsequently disallowed as not having been definitely ascertained to be worthless in such prior years.

Corrections of Inventory Value.

"Corrections of the reported inventory valuations account for a total overassessment of $137,190.92 for the years 1919, 1920 and 1922.

"A comprehensive investigation of the taxpayer's records by field examiners disclosed that no consistent method was used in establishing the values of the reported inventories and that such inventories were incorrectly valued.

"The entire overassessments for the year 1926 are due to an increase in the amount of the net loss for the year 1925 allowed as a deduction in computing the net income for the year 1926 in accordance with the provisions of Section 206, Revenue act of 1926.

"Certain capital assets were sold in 1919, 1920 and 1923, the cost of which had been erroneously charged to expense in prior years. Inasmuch as these charges have been reversed in the present audit, a deduction is now allowed for the loss when the assets were finally disposed of.

"The overassessment due to this adjustment is $20,267.19. The taxpayer retired at a premium certain of its outstanding bonds, and the losses thereby sustained, computed in accordance with the provisions of Article 544, Regulations 45, Articles 545, Regulations 62 and 65, have been allowed as deductions. The overassessment resulting from this adjustment amounts to $8,829.47.

Additional Expense Deductions.

"Additional deductions for allowable ordinary and necessary business expenses, which have been verified by field examinations of the taxpayer's books and records, account for an overassessment of $20,196.87. Elimination of non-taxable income, such as interest on State and Federal obligations, decreases the tax liability $12,325.46.

"The allowance of an increased deduction for amortization of war facilities causes an overassessment of $17,186.11 for 1919."

In the final adjustments in this case there were abatements of $638,-592.21, credits of $1,506,979.04, and refunds of $1,621,026.93.

1923, $17,458.97; 1924, $383,029.61; 1925, $156,428.63. The decision in this case read in part:

"Adjustments of the valuations of the opening and closing inventories for 1924 cause $213,317.98 of the overassessment for that year.

"Of the above overassessments, $4,-212.44 is caused by the allowance of an additional deduction for accrued taxes for the year 1924, since after investigation it is determined that the amount claimed in the return was erroneously understated.

"Reallocation of taxes between the taxpayer and its subsidiary corporations in accordance with agreements filed by them resulting from a change in affiliations causes $17,458.97 of the overassessments.

The company was given a credit of $26,098.80 and refunds of $530,-818.41.

In the Phelps Dodge Corporation case, it was stated that the overassessment was caused by the allowance of an additional deduction for depletion, since after comprehensive field investigation by bureau engineers it was determined that the deduction claimed in the return, which was for the year 1919, was materially less than the reasonable deduction to which the taxpayer was entitled.

In the case of the estate of Charles E. Johnson it was stated that the entire overassessment was caused by eliminating from taxable income for the year 1925, the amount included in a previous audit, resulting in the payment of the tax and interest now refunded and representing income owing to the decedent at the time of his death, but received by his estate thereafter.

RABBIS' MESSAGE CITES NEED OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

Central Conference Points to Textile Situation in South and Mooney Case.

A "finer definition of social justice" was pronounced a paramount need at this time in a message for Labor Day issued yesterday by the Commission on Social Justice of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Citing the textile situation in the South and in New England as one of "the fruits of social injustice which abounds today," the conference called attention to the following statement from its program of social justice:

"It is the tragic record of human kind that many of those who find comfort in the existing order often fail to apply themselves seriously to the ills that plague society. It is part of the great social message of the prophets of our faith that salvation can be achieved only through the salvation of society as a whole.

"It is therefore incumbent upon all men to study the ills of the existing social order and to form intelligent opinions on the subject of social reconstruction.

"Instead of questioning God's goodness because of the evils in individual and communal life, we should address our God-given intelligence to the extermination of those circumstances which allow slums, vice, feeble-mindedness, poverty, degeneracy and the like to continue, with only palliative efforts for their improvement."

Aside from industrial reform, the message stated that "there are other instances which evoke a strong protest in the name of social justice," and named the Mooney-Billings case in California in that category.

"No amount of external prosperity," said the statement, "can ever safeguard a land or government in which even the suspicion of so horrible a perversion of justice finds no immediate vindication in terms of righteousness. Wealth and power can never sustain a State or nation where civic, social and political rights are insecure."

ROOSEVELT SCORES RURAL UTILITY RATE

Governor Demands 'Reasonably Equal' Service and Costs Throughout the State.

SEES POWER MERGER TEST

In Syracuse Fair Speech He Lays Lack of Electricity in Two-Thirds of Farm Homes to Inequality.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Received by cheering thousands at the State Fair today, Governor Roosevelt drew a prolonged outburst of applause when he attacked the inequality and lack of standardization of telephone and power and light rates. He said it was one reason why nearly two-thirds of all the farmhouses in the State had no electricity and declared the situation manifestly unfair.

Motoring about the grounds, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt; his secretary, Guernesey T. Cross, and legislative leaders, the Governor received a tremendous ovation. In a short speech at the State Museum he announced that a reward would be offered by the State for a plan to utilize the fair grounds the year round.

In his principal speech, in Empire Court, the Governor made a statement which was construed as a reference to Senator Seabury C. Mastick, who recently accused him of incompetence in the outlay of public funds.

"Unlike some people I know, I shall continue today the record which I have made this Summer, keeping away from all subjects of partisan politics," the Governor said.

Public Utilities in Farm Life.

After a review of New York's progress in the relief of agriculture, in which he said that this State was "taking the lead in applying business methods and common sense to the problem of taxes and the problems of production and marketing," the Governor took up the utility rate question.

"There is one other broad economic division which relates to the agricultural prosperity of the State which it is time for our citizens to take an interest in. We all know the meaning of home economics and also we know that the School of Home Economics and the agricultural schools throughout the State are accomplishing great things in raising the standard of living on the farm.

"That is not enough. In the home life of every family in this State engaged in the pursuit of agriculture, just as in the home life of the dwellers in the cities of the State, important elements known as public utilities take a very definite place. I need mention but two of them—the telephone and the electric current in the home.

Contrast of Railroad Rates.

"It is an interesting fact that, while telephone and electricity are broadly classed as public utilities in the same fields with railroads, a different yardstick is applied to their regulation.

"If you buy a ticket on a railroad in this State it makes no difference whether you are traveling on the main line of the New York Central, where the traffic is heavy, or on a small, single-track road in a sparsely settled section of the State. Your railroad ticket costs the same per mile in both cases.

"This is on the theory that, even though there may be little or no profit to the railroad in running passenger trains on a branch line, it should be made up for by the profit of the heavily traveled section of the road, and that a citizen should not be discriminated against just because he happens to live on a branch line instead of a main line.

"The underlying theory covering all public utilities is that they receive the privilege of the special franchise from the people of the State themselves, and that for this privilege they must give the best possible service equally to all citizens of the State. That undoubtedly was the underlying thought in the earliest days in which franchises were granted by the State.

"In the case of railroads that theory is still recognized and lived up to. For example, a railroad is not allowed today to abandon a small branch line just because that line is not profitable unless, and until, the public authorities are convinced that the inhabitants of that part of the State can obtain at least an equally good method of transportation by some other means such as bus lines.

Reasonably Equal Service and Cost.

"Now, I am sorry to say that the principle of reasonably equal service at reasonably equal cost to all the people of the State has not been carried out with regard to the two latest forms of public service—the telephone and electricity.

"For some reason (the history of which it is unnecessary to go into) the original telephone companies were allowed to charge different kinds of rates, and now, when practically all telephones are controlled by the greatest of all American mergers, we do not insist on either uniform service or uniform rates.

"It is, of course, well known that the cost of the telephone to the farmer, for example, depends very largely on what county and even more on what particular road he happens to live.

"If he happens to be born on a farm on a highway away from neighbors, he has to shoulder practically the entire original cost and upkeep of his telephone line, whereas, if he happens to live close to many neighbors the cost of the very essential telephone is enormously reduced, both for service and installation charges.

"By the same token the service given by the telephone company is as a matter of public knowledge vastly better in some localities than in others. In other words, the practical use of the great utility known as the telephone is dependent in cost and usefulness in too many cases on the place where a man's house happens to be located.

Regional Differences in Rates.

"The other example, and one which is even more glaring in its unfairness, is that of the use of electricity in the homes. The railroad principle of fairly uniform rates has been thrown to the winds even by the public regulating body known as the Public Service Commission.

"Is it not time to stop and ask the question: 'Why does electricity in the home, the electric lights, electric refrigerator, electric sewing machine, the home machinery, cost as high as from 15 to 20 cents per kilowatt hour in some localities and as low as from 4 to 6 cents per kilowatt hour in other localities?'

"Why should families in one section be so grossly penalized over families in another section?

"This difference in charges is true not merely in its application to regions as large as counties, but is true in respect to towns adjoining each other and houses separated only by a mile or two.

"This is perhaps one reason why even today nearly two-thirds of all the farm houses in the State of New York have no electricity.

"I am wondering whether it is not time for the people of this State to ask for the application of a more uniform rate and a more uniform system of charging for installation.

Effects of Power Mergers.

"During recent years the small local company furnishing electric light has been rapidly absorbed into larger companies. There may have been some reason for differences of rates in the earlier days when each company stood on its own earning power. Today, however, things are far different.

"Very recently the greater part of all the electric companies in the State of New York were merged into three holding companies and within the past few months these three great holding companies have been merged into one colossal holding company. That holding company controls today over three-quarters of the entire area of the State of New oYrk.

"The first question to ask is whether the savings which have been promised in management and in overhead by the merger will be translated into four practical results: First, better service; second, cheaper and more uniform intasllation costs; third, definitely and materially lower rates for the use of the electricity in the homes, and finally a complete reorganization and simplification of the most complicated and impossible series of contracts between householders and the company which the legal profession has invented in all its ristory.

"I am not going to touch upon the legality of these mergers at this time, but I am asking the very definite question: 'How long will it be before these material benefits to the householder in the State of New York will become accomplished facts?'

OTTO ROHRBACH FORMS NEW AIR CONCERN HERE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—As the result of negotiations which lasted for more than two months, and were personally conducted in New York by Otto Rohrbach, head of a well-known airplane plant in Berlin, a new company has been formed in the United States under the name of the Metal Flying Boat Corporation, with a capital of $2,000,000. The company will construct exclusively the Rohrbach metal boats, of the well-known Romar type, which have repeatedly proved their extreme seaworthiness and capacity for long-distance flights.

To meet American requirements, special boats of the same type, but larger dimensions, will be built, fitted with four air-cooled motors, and able to carry forty-five passengers.

The chief aim of the new corporation is to establish a closer contact with American air traffic, for which Mr. Rohrbach hopes he has paved the way.

Dr. Rohrbach's latest product is called the Rohrbach-Rostra, an eleven-ton all-metal flying boat which carries a five and a half ton pay load. The first model was made in Germany last Winter and a flight across the Atlantic with freight was planned.

The designer visited America last December at the time of the International Civil Aeronautics Conference at Washington. There was much speculation as to which of the aviation groups in America would buy the American manufacturing rights to his patents. It was believed that Dr. Rohrbach would turn them over to the United Aircraft and Transport, then in process of formation.

No person of authority connected with the United group could be found last night who knew of the details of the new company. Dr. Rohrbach is in Cleveland attending the National Air Races there. The plans for the transatlantic flight of his new plane have been postponed and it is expected that he will build a larger plane before the attempt is made. The present model has passed all its tests, however, and it is expected that it will be the first model to be produced in America.

BOOK INJUNCTION DENIED.

Court Declines to Interfere in Plans of Gordon-Haddon.

The application by Daniel Bayton, a lawyer, Dr. John Moss, and Israel Friedman, a writer, for an injunction restraining Clarence Guy Gordon-Haddon from carrying out an alleged contract with Harmon & Irwin, Inc., and Alexander L. Hillman, for the publication of a biography of himself and of the late Duke of Clarence, who he alleges was his father, was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Crain, who said that no grounds existed for the granting of an injunction or for the appointment of a receiver of royalties that may be payable to Mr. Gordon-Haddon.

In answer to the plaintiffs' allegations that a contract was made by which they were to edit and publish the book, Mr. Gordon-Haddon declared that he rescinded the contract last June because the plaintiffs did nothing to carry it out.

He also denied that he has any contracts with the other defendants and denied that he is about to leave the jurisdiction of the courts here.

Replying to Thomas, He Says He Is Not Candidate Till Primaries.

Mayor Walker, indirectly but emphatically, declined yesterday the challenge of Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, to a three-cornered debate with Representative LaGuardia, Republican designee, as the third debater, over WNYC, the city's radio station.

"If the station ever is used for politics, it will be given to them first," the Mayor said. "Anyhow, I'm not a candidate until I have been nominated in the primaries."

CHARLIE PADDOCK TO WED.

Sprinter and Madeleine Lubetty, Actress, Are Engaged.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29 (AP).—Charlie Paddock, sprinter, and Miss Madeline Lubetty of New York today announced their intentions to marry "some time soon."

They met in Honolulu in 1922, when Paddock was running in an athletic meet. The bride-elect is 21, and lives with her family in East Fifty-seventh Street.

The report of Miss Lubetty's engagement to Mr. Paddock came as a surprise to members of her family. Her mother, Mrs. André Lubetty, who is in Lynbrook, L. I., said she knew nothing about it, but was waiting to hear of it from her daughter, who left for Cleveland last Saturday. Albert Lubetty, a brother, who was reached at 243 East Fifty-seventh Street, said, "It's all new to us!"

Miss Lubetty's father is dead. She has three brothers. She has been on the stage in several productions and has appeared also in motion pictures. While on the Pacific Coast, a few years ago, she appeared with Richard Bennett in the plays "The Rear Car" and "The Fool." Some of her motion picture parts were in "The Eternal City" and "Cardigan."

Miss Lubetty was educated in New York, France and Switzerland. She returned from Europe a few months ago after visiting relatives. It was said last night that she is expected to return from Cleveland very shortly.

Paddock was once known as "the world's fastest human." He has held many national sprint championships and is one of the joint holders of the world's record for the 100-yard dash at 0:09 6-10. This time has since been beaten by George Simpson of Ohio State, whose mark has not yet been accepted officially. Paddock, representing the United States in the Olympic Games of 1920, won the 100-meter championship. He ran also in the 1924 Olympics. He has lectured on sports and has also appeared in motion pictures.

TO ASK THAT LIGGETT QUIT ROOSEVELT CLUB

MAGNOLIA, Mass., Aug. 29 (AP).—Robert M. Washburn, president of the Roosevelt Club, said today that on his return to Boston next week he would call a meeting of the club directors and submit a motion that Louis K. Liggett, Republican National Committeeman from Massachusetts, be asked to resign. He made the statement when asked what attitude, if any, he proposed to take in regard to Mr. Liggett, who has been involved in a controversy with James M. Curley, former Mayor of Boston.

Added interest attached to the proposed procedure through the fact that the club directors include Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, honorary president of the Women's Republican Club; Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, member of the Republican National Committee; John Richardson, director of the Hoover Organization in Massachusetts; Christian Herter, assistant director of the Hoover Organization; Eben S. Draper, former president of the State Republican Club; Mrs. Frank R. Batchelder, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, and William M. Butler, former head of the Republican National Committee.

After the outbreak of the controversy between Mr. Liggett and Mr. Curley, who is a candidate for the Mayoralty in the coming election, Mr. Washburn in signed newspaper stories was cordial in urging that Mr. Liggett resign. Mr. Liggett accused Mr. Curley of distributing anti-Catholic literature during the last general election. Mr. Curley retaliated with an attempt to indict Mr. Liggett and The Boston Herald for criminal libel. Investigation is now being made by the office of the District Attorney here.

45,000 See Chocolate Win Decision From Singer in 12 Rounds at Polo Grounds

CHOCOLATE SCORES VICTORY OVER SINGER

MANY FANS DISAPPROVE

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Kid Chocolate, spectacular Cuban negro, last night was declared the winner over Al Singer, Bronx youngster, in their twelve-round bout at the Polo Grounds, but the divided decision among three capable ring officials failed to convince a crowd of some 45,000 contributing more than $200,000 in gate receipts to see the spectacle, that the Cuban was the better lad.

For twelve rounds the ring youngsters battled sparklingly. Singer was in the ring shouldering the responsibility of establishing himself as another Benny Leonard, who, by the way, viewed the battle with exciting emotions, and disagreed with the verdict.

Chocolate with his remarkable, unblemished record in 154 ring engagements, was in there trying to prove the justification for those encomiums which liken him to the immortal George Dixon, the little Chocolate of a by-gone ring era.

Neither measured up to the standard of the idol of comparison, but though the verdict went to Chocolate many were unconvinced. Some cheered the decision.

Crowd Shouts Disapproval.

When the decision was made known many set up such a cry of disapproval that Announcer Joe Humphries was unable to make himself heard above the din introducing the principals in the semi-final bout, which followed the feature in the ring. This writer feels that Singer had a slight edge.

It was announced by Chairman James A. Farley of the State Athletic Commission at the ringside that the vote among the three bout officials was divided, Referee Lou Magnolia and Judge Charles E. Mathison voted for Chocolate and Judge George Kelly for Singer. In the outburst of dissension it is reasonable to suppose that the cries of those who backed Singer at as high as 11 to 5 to win were loudest. The answer to the question in the minds of many undoubtedly will be another meeting between the lads in Madison Square Garden this coming winter, and the match will be welcomed.

On my score card I had Singer winning by six rounds to four, with two even. Singer won the first, second, fifth, seventh, eleventh and twelfth rounds. The sixth and tenth rounds were about even.

Confident as a conqueror with the sublime indifference of the master to any foe, Singer was before the battle the epitome of self-assurance. But his work reflected a cagy, timid, careful fighter whose overanxiety was his greatest handicap. Chocolate was, if anything the indifferent fighter. He carried himself as if he regarded the battle as just another encounter in his career which, in the end, it was, and refused to become flustered.

Leaving the ring Singer looked the beaten boxer. That cannot be denied. He had a cut an inch long under his right eye sustained in the fifth session when Chocolate drove a vicious counter right to the face after Singer had grazed the jaw with a right.

Tries to Weaken Singer.

Chocolates main object was to weaken Singer with a body attack. Singer, on the other hand, was sharpshooting for the jaw with his right, but never really connected. They were extremely cautious in the first two rounds, but Chocolate went on the attack in the third and fourth sessions and backed Singer around the ring repeatedly.

Singer gave the crowd its first real thrill in the fifth when he almost upset his rival with a right and left to the jaw, but Chocolate returned to the fighting and fought viciously, forcing Singer to the ropes with lefts and rights.

Singer did the leading and boxing in the sixth, grazing Chocolate's jaw with a right hand, which infuriated the little Cuban, but Chocolate pounded both hands liberally to the body at close quarters and the session was about even.

In the seventh Singer's boxing was the paramount issue, but in the eighth and ninth Chocolate carried the action, shaking Singer with a right to the jaw in the eighth and hammering the Bronx lad freely about the head and body in the ninth, while Singer found surcease in retreat and clinching.

The tenth was about even, Singer almost upsetting his rival early in the round with a left and right to the jaw only to have Chocolate rebound to the attack and hammer away to the body until Singer held for relief. But in the eleventh and in a desperate twelfth, when both lads were weary and each alternated in the attack without producing any serious damage or threat thereof, Singer carried the honors and seemed entitled to the decision.

Singer's Retreats Orderly.

An analysis of the style of Singer's fighting shows that, despite his defensive tactics in earlier rounds, Singer retreated in orderly fashion except in the fourth when he swung wildly and was stung by Chocolate's left right to the body. Chocolate at this point thought he saw victory and pounded tirelessly in this round which ended with the lads locked against the ropes and the Cuban battering his opponent.

Singer's best wagon of attack was a combination left hook to the body and a lightning-like right cross for the jaw. He tried many times with his favorite weapon but was rarely successful. Chocolate, ranky, catlike, cool and collected, pulled away from rights to the jaw that Singer started so that the best Singer could do was to land grazing blows.

Chocolate was roused several times by Singer's blows and turned loose furious exhibitions, not always successful, however, for Singer proved adept at tying his foe's hand in the clinches. This defensive movement undoubtedly cost Singer heavily in the calculations of the two bout officials who voted against him. For Singer unquestionably outboxed and outfought his rival.

Before Singer and Chocolate entered the ring Jimmy Wilde, former world's flyweight champion, and Tommy Loughran were introduced from the ring. Singer weighed 128¾ pounds, Chocolate 125.

The gathering which witnessed the battle represented all walks of life. The record-shattering gate for little fellows was insured when the last day's interest brought $23,000 in ticket sales, despite overcast skies. The receipts, it was estimated, approached $200,000, a mark heretofore undreamed of in connection with a non-championship battle away from the heavyweight class.

Walker and LaGuardia Present.

Conspicuous among those in attendance was Mayor Walker and his opponent in the forthcoming election, Fiorello H. LaGuardia. Also present were the following, who attended a pre-battle dinner at the home of William F. Carey, Garden president:

The crowd came early and by every possible means of conveyance—trolleys which bore the mark of antiquity, subways, elevated, taxis, privately owned cars and on foot. The steady swirl of humanity at 4 o'clock caused Vice President Frank Bruen of Madison Square Garden to order the opening of the baseball yard to general admission ticket purchasers. At 6:30 the entire plant was opened, when holders of grand stand and ringside tickets began to arrive, and thereafter until the principals in the main bout stepped into the ring, men and women filled the arena until a record gathering was on hand.

Berg Outpoints Meyers.

In the semi-final of ten rounds Jack (Kid) Berg of England, 137½ pounds, won the decision over Spug Meyers of Pocatello, Idaho, who weighed 139¾.

Ebbets won the decision after a savagely fought battle in which he staggered Grove in the sixth session, floored the Bronx boy for a count of nine in the eighth and had Grove staggering and weary in the ninth round. The award to Ebbets was popular.

Murray Kezd, east side lightweight and stable-mate of Singer, won the decision over Harry Friedman, Brownsville, in their four-round bout, but was perilously near defeat himself in the fourth chapter. After leading for three rounds Kezd staggered under a right to the jaw in the fourth, and was in danger of a knockout. But he rallied quickly. Kezd weighed 137½ pounds and Friedman 139¾ pounds.

Barney Tomashaw, Yorkville featherweight, proved too rugged for Enrique Quintana, stable-mate of Chocolate, in their four-round engagement and when the bell clanged at the end of the bout, Tomashaw received the decision. Tomashaw weighed 120¾ pounds and Quintana 123.

In the opening bout of four rounds, Stanley Knapack, east side featherweight, won the decision over Nick Carlino of Albany after an interesting skirmish. Knapack weighed 126½ and Carlino 132¼.

LOTT AND DOEG STOP TILDEN AND HUNTER

BELL-WHITE ALSO ADVANCE

Win Way to Title Round by Eliminating Coen-Coggeshall, 7-5, 8-6, 6-3, 6-1, at Longwood.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 29.—The waning star of William Tilden and Francis T. Hunter, formerly the foremost doubles team of the country, sank below the horizon at twilight this evening when the 1927 championship combination walked off the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club on the short end of a score that marked "finis" to their efforts to regain the crown they were unable to defend last year.

George M. Lott Jr. of Chicago and John Doeg of Stanford University, who joined forces three weeks ago for the first time since 1927, convincingly demonstrated their superiority over the Davis Cup veterans in the semi-final round of the championship tournament, repeating their victory gained in the Newport invitation doubles last week. On that occasion the verdict was reached in the third set.

Today Tilden and Hunter succeeded in salvaging a set, but although Tilden was seldom keener to win, and though at times he strode the court like the colossus of former years, blasing away with wrathful strokes and carrying the attack to the enemy, his efforts were unavailing. For all his guile and resourcefulness, for all of Hunter's courage and the savageness of his forehand, there was no gainsaying the magnificent driving of Lott, the remarkable steadiness of Doeg's ground strokes under any amount of pressure, and the ruthlessness of the services, volleys and overhead slashes of both.

Close With a Rush.

Checkmated in the third set when they appeared to be headed toward victory in the most summary fashion, the Chicago-Stanford combination swept Tilden and Hunter off their feet with the loss of only one point in the first three games of the fourth chapter, yielded the next three to a rampant Tilden, and then closed with a rush to win the match at 7—5, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3.

The other semi-final, between Berkeley Bell and Lewis N. White of Austin, Texas, and Junior Coen of Kansas City and Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, Iowa, saw the conquerors of John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison gain the victory that appeared to be inevitable after their achievement of Wednesday, but not by the crushing margin that was looked for.

Had Coggeshall lent Coen the support that he furnished in the preceding rounds, four sets probably would not have been enough for a decision, for it was the Iowa youth's fatal error on a set-up overhead shot that cost them the opening chapter, and his persistent mistakes that finally led to the disintegration of Coen's game after they had taken the second set.

Bell and White, warming to their work as the play progressed, broke through Coen twice in the third set, once in the opening game and again in the last, and after the rest period they swept the Missouri Valley team off its feet to win at 7—5, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1.

Final Match Tomorrow.

The final will be held on Saturday, and for the first time since the practice was adopted in 1922 of seeding the draw the championship round will find a team that was left out of the favored list facing Lott and Doeg.

White and Bell, too, joined forces only recently, and so two scratch combinations have come through where such long-standing combinations as Tilden and Hunter, Van Ryn and Allison, and Fritz Mercur and J. Gilbert Hall were found wanting.

Tomorrow the courts will be given over to the finals of the veterans' championship doubles and the women's invitation doubles. Fred Baggs and Dr. William Rosenbaum of New York will face B. S. Blake and Channing Frothingham of Boston in the concluding round of the veterans' tournament. The final of the women's doubles will find Mrs. George W. Wightman and Miss Sarah Palfrey of Boston opposed to Mrs. B. C. Covell and Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron of England, runners-up at Wimbledon and again at Forest Hills last week in the national championship. Mrs. Covell and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron were on the courts for two hours in defeating Miss Edith Cross of California and Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., at 10—8, 5—7, 6—4.

English Teams Advance.

Two English teams reached the semi-finals of the national mixed doubles. Mrs. Covell and H. W. Austin gained their bracket at the expense of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guild of Boston, while Mrs. Phoebe Watson and J. S. Olliff played two rounds, defeating Miss Helen Jacobs and Wilmer Allison in their second match at 8—6, 5—7, 11—9. Miss Sarah Palfrey and Junior Coen narrowly escaped defeat in their quarter-final match with Miss Morrill and Bell, which was decided at 4—6, 8—6, 6—2.

The showing that Lott and Doeg made in defeating Tilden and Hunter today stamps this team as a strong Davis Cup prospect for the future, regardless of the fact that Van Ryn and Allison's sweeping success abroad this Summer seemed to have assured them of receiving the assignment for 1930. In every department of the game the Chicago-Stanford combination measured up to the highest standards.

Their strength of service and their ability as volleyers were proven assets before today, and no one has found that Lott's ground strokes could be trifled with. But seldom has the Chicagoan been so deadly in his driving as he was this afternoon, nor has Doeg's forehand stood up so well in many a day.

The reputed vulnerability of Doeg's forehand was the only point on which there were any misgivings about the Western combination. When the Stanford youth proved that there was no weakness there, the doom of Tilden and Hunter was sealed. With both Doeg and Lott serving in irresistible fashion, with Lott's rapier thrusts knifing through the smallest openings down the alley and both of them smothering everything in sight at the net, Tilden and Hunter found that their ammunition was not powerful enough to win for them without a liberal contribution of unearned points.

DOUBLE-HEADER SET FOR YALE ELEVENS

SEASON BOOKS TO BE SOLD

Sept. 16 Fixed as Date and Purchasers Will Get Preference for Big Games on Program.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 29.—Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic Association, tonight announced that on Oct. 12, when the varsity eleven is scheduled to meet the University of Georgia at Athens, Ga., a double-header will be played in the Bowl. The University of Pennsylvania Junior Varsity will meet the Yale Junior Varsity and the Yale freshmen will play Andover.

The Yale Athletic Association will place season books on sale Sept. 16, allowing one purchaser not more than two. The price will be $4.50 and the purchasers will be given preference in their applications for the Yale-Army, Yale-Dartmouth and Yale-Princeton games in the Bowl in case of any possible public sale.

Coupons will admit to the Vermont, Maryland and Brown games, and the two matches Oct. 12.

An innovation will be made in placing the Brown game in the list of reserved-seat contests. The increasing popularity of the Yale-Brown game caused Yale Athletic Association to place it on the same basis as the matches with Harvard, Princeton, the Army and Dartmouth.

NIMZOWITSCH'S PLAY LAUDED BY ALEKHINE

AN ARTIST IN HIS STYLE

FORCED TARTAKOWER PLAY

Saw Opponent Was Fatigued So He Started Lengthy Attack to Bring Collapse.

By Dr. ALEXANDRE ALEKHINE, World's Chess Champion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CARLSBAD, Aug. 29.—The fourth international grand masters' chess tournament at Carlsbad resulted in an exciting finish, Aaron Nimzowitsch being the man of the day. Other winners of prizes lent significance to the tournament.

That was a finish. Every day of the last round was a surprise, and the biggest was another victory for Rudolf Spielmann over Jose R. Capablanca.

This game former champion was defeated by Spielmann's heavy direction of play. From the first to the last move he was unable to do anything against the attack. It was all the harder for the Cuban to lose this encounter as his other competitor in the finishing phase showed an extraordinary pitch of vitality.

Spielmann took the lead at the beginning and kept it during the first half of the tournament. Capablanca gained ground according to his manner, slowly and apparently surely. Nimzowitsch played his speed and had a very narrow victory. Nimzowitsch's first prize, the first success in his chess career, was the only surprise from a sporting point of view. The widest circles expected Capablanca to win although he often disappointed his adherents last year. From a point of view of quality, there was only one opinion possible about Nimzowitsch's achievement at Carlsbad. It was by far most significant of all.

Plays Well at Start.

Right at the beginning of the tournament, he pleased his friends with a genuine game against Bogoljubow, who was a dangerous opponent. Then he showed some uncertainty which caused some dull draws and the sole loss of one game against Yates.

Driven back to the middle tournament list, he patiently waited for something to occur to give him back his self confidence and incite him to a new maximum of achievement. He actually received such incitement from his miraculous rescue in the game with Dr. Euwe. It was in the ninth round when, in promising position, the Dutch precedent player succumbed to a combination initiated by a gross trap by Nimzowitsch, who suddenly advanced to the first line, where he remained.

Nevertheless, four rounds before the finish, his prospects of attaining first prize were still poor. Standing one half point behind the leaders, he still had to play against the four big guns, Vidmar, Spielmann, Maroczy and Tartakower.

Fully Deserved First Prize.

Not only was it a fact that he won three and one-half encounters of these four games, but he did so in emphatic and deep style, worthy of a first prize winner of such a significant tournament.

If in addition one considers what Nimzowitsch attained against other winners, by far the best result four victories, three draws—than his success must be of higher value than the advance points, which at first glance only appear small.

In a preliminary article of the Carlsbad tournament we referred to Nimzowitsch as an advocate of a real artistic line. This victory of the meditating explorer of our art will gladly welcome all those who see more than entertainment or sporting record in chess.

In America he became known as a sensible player by participation with six champions in a tournament in New York in 1927, especially by his impressive start. However, one is only able to form a correct opinion of the chess artist and philosopher, Nimzowitsch, if he is acquainted with his books. His last book is especially interesting. Therein he illustrates by numerous games his strategy which he calls "system," and does this in such an original manner that the reader is led to a new kind of reflection on chess without noticing it.

Has Great Knowledge of Game.

His great chess knowledge certainly was a preliminary condition to his victory, but undoubtedly his fine physiological treatment of an opponent also contributed to the victory. That especially was noticeable in games against Spielmann and Tartakower. Knowing Spielmann would not be content with a draw, he drew him into a prolix variant exchange and thereby in the end obtained a very small but undeniable advantage.

He noticed that the grand master Tartakower was so fatigued that he had only capable and brilliant ideas, but could not stand through a game for hours. Therefore, he started a lengthy ruchade attack and Tartakower actually collapsed in the sixth hour of play after a splendid defense at the beginning.

According to the course of play following the allotments, Spielmann deserved a high prize on account of his splendid achievement in the first half of the tournament and Capablanca's defeat.

But Spielmann's nerves forsook him at important moments—in the game with Rubinstein and in the final game with Mattison, in which he already was on the winning point.

Capablanca delivered some games which owing to symmetrical style had a palliative effect. Even if there is any question of his indis

CRANE ANNOUNCES CHOICE

WIND PLAYS QUEER PRANK

Falls Loser for Five Minutes in Morning—Skipper Who Will Oppose Scotch Sloop Only 21.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 29.—The international eight-meter boat Gypsy, owned by Frank C. Paine of Boston and sailed by Ray Hunt of the same city, will defend the Seawanhaka Cup against the challenge of the Scotch sloop Caryl in the series opening Sept. 7 here. Gypsy was pitted against Johnston De Forest's Priscilla III in two races today and won both of them by decisive margins. As this made her record against De Forest's boat four victories in five races, it was almost a foregone conclusion after the last race that Gypsy would be named.

Official announcement was made at the clubhouse of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club by Commodore Clinton H. Crane. The boat will be sailed by Hunt in the challenge races, and he will spend the time before the races familiarizing himself with the eccentricities of Long Island Sound navigation. The skipper of Gypsy is 21 years old. He is well known at Marblehead and at Duxbury, where he has done practically all of his sailing, but this series marked his first appearance on the Sound.

Seven boats came out for the series, and all but Gypsy and Priscilla had been eliminated before today's races. It was a very even thing between the two until today, and the committee on selection was unable to reach a decision until the finish of the last race, as De Forest is one of the best of the Sound skippers. His boat, however, is a heavy weather craft, while Gypsy is better in light air, such as may be expected four days out of five on the Sound.

Five-Mile Course Sailed.

The first race was started at 10:35, in a moderate northerly wind that gave promise of dropping in an hour or so, and of being very tricky until then. A five-mile windward and leeward course from the Centre Island buoy to the Lloyd's Neck bell was set. Hunt, sailing Gypsy, had all the best of the position at the start, even though De Forest got Priscilla over the line first.

Neither boat could lay the mark, but Gypsy none the less came about. Had De Forest held on for a bit longer he would probably have averted what followed. There was, however, no way to know until it happened. The air had been most tricky all the time, first heading one boat and then the other, and then letting them both up. The breaks on this were fairly even, however.

But the moment Priscilla came about the wind left her as though by that act she had turned its off. She lay there, not moving at all, in one of the very softest spots ever seen on the Sound, while Gypsy was skimming along on the very edge of a northerly breeze. Priscilla was in the soft spot for about five minutes, and when she got out of it the race was over to all intents and purposes.

Gypsy rounded the mark at 11:21:58, and Priscilla fought her way around at 11:23:22, the start having been at 10:35. Spinnakers came out for the run home, and although Priscilla put down the distance separating her from the Boston boat, she could not come within a good deal of catching her. The finish times were: Gypsy 12:06:31, Priscilla III 12:09:20.

Priscilla Takes Lead.

A wind sprang up off the northeast at about 3 o'clock and the second and last race of the day was started at 3:25, with Priscilla getting the best of the start. The wind proved better for her in this race, which was twice around a four-and-a-half-mile triangle. The first round consisted of a beat, a run and a reach, and the second, due to a shift of wind, of a beat, a reach and a run.

A series of cross-tacks found Priscilla ahead, and a long hitch from the Long Island shore brought her into a position to lay the mark, with Gypsy off to leeward. De Forest rounded one minute and seven seconds ahead of Gypsy and it looked very much as though he was going to win, as Priscilla's forte is sailing off the wind, and the next two legs seemed made to order for her.

But it was not to be. The Boston boat picking up tremendous way considering the lightness of the air, had wiped out all of Priscilla's lead three-quarters of the way to the second mark, and led by thirty-one seconds when she rounded.

BAR HARBOR KEEPS JUNIOR YACHT TITLE

TAKES SERIES, 2 OUT OF 3

Special to The New York Times.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 29.—Captain William B. Cudahy of the Bar Harbor Yacht Club and Chicago, with his brother, Michael Cudahy, and Townsend Runson of Philadelphia, won the ninth junior yacht championshop today, defeating a crew of the Annisquam Yacht Club of Cape Ann in two out of three races, the first of which was captured yesterday by Annisquam.

It was the first time that a junior champion successfully defended the title, as young Cudahy took the Sears Cup last year under the colors of the Beverly Yacht Club, although Raymond Hunt, who has been sailing the Gypsy in the Seawanhaka trials this week won it twice, but not in succession.

Although the young Bar Harbor skipper, who sailed his last junior race, was seemingly slightly better than Gleason, a flip of the coin played an important part in the final contest, for all three contests were won in one boat, the Noname.

Annisquam sailed her to victory yesterday and Cudahy, under the change of boat plan, had no difficulty in winnig this morning's affair over a triangular course. The other boat, the Kuma, was given a new jib for the third race, and both skippers, who had agreed upon the two yachts at the outset, expressed themselves as satisfied and willing to abide by the toss. Cudahy won the choice and took the Noname.

Cudahy easily outmaneoeuvred Gleason, placing his boat on top of Annisquam a minute before the gun and holding her there until he had just time to swing away and head for the line. He had a margin of more than three minutes in the slide to the finish.

The Sears Cup was presented to the winning crew by Secretary Leonard W. Fowle of the regatta committee of the Eastern Yacht Club.

WEATHERWAX LOSES IN ISHAM CUP GOLF

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Aug. 29.—Upsets were numerous during the first and second rounds of match play for the Isham Cup at the Ekwanok Country Club today. H. Law Weatherwax of Albany, who had shown much strength recently, was defeated by M. S. Lindgrove of Baltusrol by 3 and 4 to play.

R. A. Jones of Westchester Hills was the second to lose, going out in the first round to Spt. K. Halligan of Montclair by 1 down. R. D. Rooks of Providence, who was tied for low score in the qualifying round, was defeated on the home green by C. D. Richardson of Memphis. Alfred Bourne of Garden City was pitted against Eugene B. Wadsworth of Albany, a 16-year-old player, in the first round and met a 39 as well as 3 stymies on the first nine, but lost by and 4.

putable superiority over precedent players, he nevertheless is one of the foremost and likely to remain so for a long time.

We told about Rubinstein's significant success in the last article. As to Vidmar and Euwe, they hardly fulfilled the hopes their adherents had placed in them. Professor Becker passed the first international test successfully.

Bogoljubow's last prize, of course, corresponds in no degree to his real playing strength. We know from example of the talented grandmaster Schlechter that deficient shape in any master may be only passing. Soon after his failure in the Petersburg tournament in 1909 he was able to draw a game with the giant Lasker. Bogoljubow is sure to show quite a different force in the forthcoming championship match.

The Carlsbad tournament, in which alert play and full ideas were shown, is of greater value to chess than merely the sport of comparison of results. It has shown that chess, even in its present shape, is exceedingly far from destruction owing to drawn games and unnecessary reforms which some desire to force upon the play.

GARDENIA VICTOR IN TORONTO SAILING

Defeats Yolanda by Wide Margin for Third Straight Triumph in 1st Division.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—Although the wind was not any too strong today, the racing under Lake Yacht Racing Association auspices was interesting. In the first division it was made three in a row for Gardenia. There was a shift of the wind on the second round, making it a beat to the second buoy home.

After rounding, the cutter came into a flat calm and she was just ghosting along, with Yolanda far astern. Acoma was a long distance behind both the other boats. The finish times were: Gardenia, 3:54:19; Yolanda, 4:28:26.

In the schooner class James Morrow's smart little boat, the Seneca of the Royal Hamilton Club, held a long lead at the finish, also making it three straight. At the end of the first round she had almost a two-minute lead on Eddie S. Lansing's schooner, Alice, from Watertown. William Casey's Kingston schooner, Blue Moon, was only forty seconds astern of Alice, while the Anitra was 2:05 behind Blue Moon.

In Class A of R boats Henry Richardson's Diana of the Kingston Yacht Club had a lead of 1:32 over Kathea II of Watertown at the end of the first round. This was a capitally sailed race.

Stephen Joynt of Watertown, a sailor, was injured when he fell on the cruiser Ontario's cabin top, breaking a rib. He received prompt medical attention.

The afternoon block went to Hoppe by 50 to 27 in thirty-eight innings. He made a big run of 8, while Matsuyama turned in one of 6.

At night the score was 50 to 25 in forty innings. The high runs were 5 for Hoppe and 3 for Matsuyama.

TORONTO SWIM SET FOR 11 A. M. TODAY

TORONTO, Aug. 29 (Canadian Press).—Unless conditions change overnight, the Wrigley-Canadian national exhibition fifteen-mile swimming race will start at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, Elwood Hughes, director of exhibition sports, announced this afternoon. Any change in the present plans will be announced tomorrow morning, if necessary.

Present conditions are favorable for the race, which has twice been deferred twenty-four hours because the water has not been of 58 degrees, the minimum set by the race sponsors as the result of last year's "freeze-out," when nobody was able to complete the course.

The temperature of the course on Lake Ontario at noon today ranged from 59 to 61 degrees.

The trainers of the 275 swimmers say that the delay will not have any effect on the physical condition of the entrants. Ernest Vierkoetter, winner of the 1927 marathon and popular favorite to capture this year's race, and his principal rivals, George Young and Mandel Burdett of Toronto, Byron Summers and Eddie Keating, have not shown any ill effects from the wait.

FOX TERRIER AWARD TO EDEN ARISTOCRAT

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

SYRACUSE, Aug. 29.—Champion Eden Aristocrat of Wildoaks, the noted wire-haired fox terrier owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bondy of Golden's Bridge, N. Y., was judged the best fox terrier this afternoon at the second day of the sixteenth annual dog show of the New York State Fair.

There was a splendid entry of wires and the competition throughout the judging of the breed held the attention of a large gallery.

Hubert Rutherford Brown of New York judged the breed and selected as the best of the dogs the home-bred Warily Playboy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald M. Lewis of Bedford Hills, N. Y. Another home-bred was placed in reserve, this being Mr. and Mrs. Bondy's Supremacy of Wildoaks.

It was a most successful afternoon for the Bondy representatives, as winners bitches went to another Bondy home-bred, Gloria of Wildoaks, reserve being taken by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis's Warily Peggy Anne. Gloria of Wildoaks reached best of winners, but went down before Eden Aristocrat of Wildoaks for best of breed.

Lenoir Judges Beagles.

Frederick J. Lenoir of Greenwood, Mass., found a nice lot of beagles. From among the smaller division of the little hounds he chose Meadowlark Dreamer, owned by F. L. Schweinler, which went on to defeat the winning bitch, his kennelmate, Queenie, for best of the 13-inch winners.

In the large division the winning dog was Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Reed's Continental Sportsman. He was defeated for best of winners in the 15-inch division by the winning bitch, M. R. Ward's Lady Sunshine. Best of breed, however, was carried off by the well-known champion Tinker Bell II., owned by Frederick A. Hartmann of Union City, N. Y.

Boston terriers made up one of the biggest breeds of the show and were judged by Mrs. Hilda M. Ridder of New York. Mrs. Ridder named as best of breed Doughrey's Kwali Kid, owned by Frank Doughrey of Glens Falls, N. Y. This was a considerable surprise, but Mrs. Ridder remarked after the judging was over that she considered the dog to be in wonderful form, with a clean-cut head and splendid expression.

Another local dog was reserve to the winner, this being High Ball Count, owned by the High Ball Kennels of this city. Another Syracuse entry went to winners bitches in Flirtation of Rosewood, owned by the Rosewood Kennels. Reserve went to Mrs. A. W. Orr's Ruinart's Miss Bubbles. The dog defeated the bitch for best of winners and went to best of breed.

Chetwin's Dog Scores.

Thomas Hissey of Elmhurst, N. Y., the all-around judge, had a good entry of bulldogs. He placed at the top of the home-bred Coldstream Challenger, owned by the Syracuse breeder and judge, William E. Chetwin.

Mrs. George Holmes of Buffalo had the winning bitch in Miss Setsu of Homedale, another homebred which is by the famous Sessue.

Dirt Track Auto Title Race To Be Held at Louisville Sept. 29

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 29 (AP).—The National Dirt Track Championship Race, sanctioned by the United States Automobile Racing Association, will be held Sunday, Sept. 29, the day before the opening of the American Legion Convention, it was announced today by E. M. Miller, president and general manager of the association. The event was held last year at Minneapolis and was won by Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis. A $5,000 purse is planned for the winner of the main event, Mr. Miller said.

JONES SHOOTS A 71 ON A NEW COURSE

Von Elm Has a 72, Tolley a 73 Over Pebble Beach Course—Homans Makes Hole in One.

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 29 (AP).—Bobby Jones changed the scene of his activities today, but kept his golfing up to its usual trim style. The master of the game cracked par on the difficult ocean-bound Cypress Point Country Club course for a 71, one under par. He was practicing for the national amateur championship which will be played at the Pebble Beach course Sept. 2 to 7.

The national amateur champion from Atlanta paired with Francis Ouimet, who turned in a card of 75, three over par; Roger Lapham, vice president of the United States Golf Association, Norman MacBeth Jr., and Louis Lapham. Three birdies on the outgoing nine, with a 5, one over par on the first hole, netted Bobby a 35. Coming in, he slipped over par once in the eleventh, where his putt hit a ball mark and jumped to one side of the cup.

A gallery of 500 saw the Georgian slice his first tee shot in practice rounds for the national amateur championship at Pebble Beach, from the first tee. On the second, measuring 532 yards, Bobby was home with a drive and a spoon. His drive carried well over 300 yards and had but a short roll on the west fairway.

Sweetser's Play Impresses.

A gallery of several thousand devotees of Jones returned to Pebble Beach today for another glimpse of the Georgian, but had to be content with following other stars who turned in a few brilliant rounds.

Jess Sweetser and George Von Elm drew the largest share of the gallery, Sweetser, who won the British amateur crown in 1926, had a brilliant 75 for the first round this morning, but in the afternoon, experimenting with a new driver, he found his tee shots straying to the traps and to the rough and he suffered heavy penalties. His 37—37 this morning, despite a sprinkling of sixes, won favor with the gallery.

The crowd liked Sweetser, who plays with a sort of reckless abandon. His short swing and the tremendous leverage of his arms in the drives interested the gallery, and his spade mashie, which was a factor in defeating Jones at Brookline in 1922, was working to perfection.

Von Elm found his iron shots for the first time on the ocean course today and turned in a 35, 37—72, even par, for the eighteen-hole route. He had birdies on the third and seventh holes on the outgoing journey and the eighteenth coming home. The long fourteenth cost him six strokes and he wasted one on the short fifth.

Tolley Has a 73.

Playing with Eugene Homans, Thomas Bourne and Eustace Storey this morning, Cyril Tolley, British star, turned in a 73, despite sixes on the first two holes. These two starting holes have proved disastrous ones for the Britisher and he has wasted several strokes to par on each round as a starter.

Tolley drew a large gallery to watch him make some long drives. The followers were doubly rewarded when Homans, a young New Jersey amateur, sank his tee shot for a hole-in-one on the 165-yard twelfth hole. Homans had a card of 74.

Don Moe, Portland amateur, who is eighth in the ranks of the seeded players turned in a 73. He was out in 36 and back in 37. He is one of the dark horses of the tournament and his remarkable showing at the Western amateur this Summer, when he won the 1929 title, gave him greater weight among the contenders.

Held Ties the Course.

Eddie Held of New York City covered the Ocean course in 73 this afternoon for his first round. Held won the medal and the final in the Canadian amateur tourney. Held said the Pebble Beach course presented the most difficult championship layout he has encountered in his gol

COIN COLLECTOR IN FRONT

By BRYAN FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Richard T. Wilson's Sunfire has the reputation of being a router, but if he keeps on performing as he has at this meeting he will be feared as a sprinter also. Sunfire won the Ballston Handicap at seven furlongs today, when he was the third chance in a field of four.

The race was his fourth start and his second victory of the meeting, the earlier triumph being at a mile. His first defeat here was in a mile and a quarter race and the second in a mile and a furlong test, so that Sunfire has a better Saratoga record as a sprinter than as a router.

Sunfire won by a length and a half today from Rudolph Spreckel's Sageboys, the 11-to-20 favorite, with Joe Stern's Gun Royal four lengths further back. Hedemora, an added starter and a 30-to-1 shot, was a distant last. Sunfire was 4 to 1 and finished the seven furlongs in the fair time of 1:24 2-5 to earn the purse of $2,500.

Sunfire Closes Strongly.

Until the head of the stretch Sunfire was counted out of the race. He trailed from the break and was eight lengths off the leader at one time in the backstretch. This was when it looked as if Trainer Tom Healey had dropped him in a race that was too short. But Healey was vindicated by Sunfire's closing dash when he romped past all the others and won easily, with Eddie Barnes sitting tight and all the others driving hard.

At the start it looked as if Hedemora was going to hand the spectators a surprise. She rushed away from the barrier with a world of speed, and despite the best efforts of Sageboys and Gun Royal she was not overtaken until the far turn.

Sunfire did not attempt to overhaul her and thus fell further and further behind. In the run around the bend Hedemora held on better than was expected, and it was not until the three swung into the straightaway that she began to fold up.

Sageboys and Gun Royal took a breather for a moment, but Sunfire was right behind and coming fast. Even with the extra breath neither of the two horses fancied by the public had a chance with the son of Clambala. The winner carried 116 pounds.

Young Jockey Jean Bejshak delivered a favorite home first, but the escape of this horse from defeat was as narrow as could be. He rode the Sagamore Stable's Coin Collector and got him home a nose in front of Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Sunvir. The winner was the 8-to-5 favorite in a field of nine and beat the gate at least a length. This extra margin was needed before the mile was finished, as Sunvir put on a most surprising closing rush and just failed to catch Coin Collector.

Runs in Front all the Way.

After the favorable start, Bejshak never flagged for a moment but kept his horse in front all the way and held him together long enough to win. Five lengths back of Sunvir finished Jean Valjean.

This race saw the second start on this side of Mrs. John D. Hertz's Gypsy King, the English horse by Son-in-Law that was one of several brought over with Reigh Count. Gypsy King was backed to 7 to 2, but finished fifth.

The Essex Stable's Datura won the Running Brook Steeplechase in easy fashion, having six lengths to spare over Endicott, while Bold Knight and Vocallan ran third and fourth, respectively. The race represented a turning of the tables on Vocallan by Datura. The last time these two faced the starter Vocallan came home first after Datura had an early lead.

Vocallan was in front for a turn of the field today, while Datura was a laggard. But in the last five furlongs Datura moved up fast and won easily.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Pony McAtee, who will have the chance of riding either Whichone or Boojum for Harry Payne Whitney in the $70,000 Hopeful Stakes Saturday, said today that he preferred Whichone. This caused some surprise, as Boojum is regarded by most observers as the faster of the two horses. McAtee, however, was up on Boojum in that colt's only two races and he piloted Whichone in the Saratoga Special.

LITTLE CANADA WINS STAKE AT SYRACUSE

THE WASP BEATS BUCKAROO

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Little Canada, the veteran bay gelding owned by the Long Acre Farm of Warrenville, N. J., ably ridden by Mike Devaney, carried off the long end of the $500 Syracuse jumper stake today, this being the best event on the fourth day's program of the eighty-ninth annual New York State Fair horse show.

Little Canada had to be going at his best to beat the field he was up against, but he turned in a clean performance his first round of the course. So close were the other performances that there was a jump-off for the best of the money. Second went to the Lyndon Farm's chestnut gelding, the Wasp, which had just a shade over Colonel Pierre Lorillard Jr.'s crack jumper, Buckaroo.

Governor's Day at the fair brought out a big attendance. When the Governor's party drove in one of the biggest jumping classes of the week was on in the ring and operations had to be suspended during the firing of the salute.

Miss America Is Victor.

The Scurry Stake was almost a sweep for the United States Army Horse Show team, which took the first three places. Here the competition was exceedingly close and the places were decided by fractions of a point at the end. The stake was over the special course, time being taken and each fault being added to the contestant's time.

This event found the veteran and somewhat temperamental mare Miss America going at her best, and Lieutenant Thompson gave her a first-class ride to take down her first blue of the show. Close on her heels was the bay gelding Dick Waring, with Major Harry Chamberlin in the saddle. Third money went to the gelding Babe Wartham.

The jumping had no opposition in the jumping event for officers over the special course without wings, and sent in eight of their big team to contest for the money. The performances were not as good as these horses have shown. The winner of the blue and $100 was the black mare Nigra. Second went to the gelding Tan Bark, with the bay gelding Timber Cruiser third and the bay gelding St. Paul fourth.

Buckaroo Gains Blue.

There were some fine performances over the regular course in the open jumping event and a big field contested. Eight had clean records after the first round and three jump-offs were required to decide the way the money should go. Old Buckaroo was at his best in this event and Captain W. B. Bradford had him going in great shape. He was given a hot battle by Minot B. Howard on his fine jumper Peter the Great, the latter taking second money.

Among the harness ponies the Alasa Farms of Alton, N. Y., added two more blues. In the class for ponies not over 13.2 hands Mrs. Strong drove her little bay gelding Glantham Harvel G. to victory over P. J. Lawler's Killegary Pride. In the class for harness ponies, amateurs to drive, Mrs. Strong carried off the plate with the farm's bay mare Braisfield Fanfare, again winning over Killegary Pride, over which Miss Rose Lawler handled the lines.

BEN MARSHALL WINS AT LINCOLN FIELDS

CHICAGO, Aug. 29 (AP).—Mrs. D. L. Keiffer's Ben Marshall, making his first start since winning the Tower Handicap at Hawthorne, easily captured the Outer Drive purse, the feature attraction at Lincoln Fields this afternoon. Mrs. E. Dementhark's Frances Milward was second and A. A. Baroni's Crofton was third. Eight competed over the seven-furlong journey and the race was run in 1:24 1-5.

Ben Marshall, away well, was taken into the lead right after the start and, increasing his advance throughout, won easily by three lengths. Frances Milward, away fast, was raced in closest contention throughout to take the place by a length. Crofton, racing close, dropped back rounding the end turn but came again and took the small end of the purse by a length. Mintaur was off poorly.

The race was worth $1,100 to the Keiffer Stable and Ben Marshall paid $7.54 for each $2 ticket.

WALKER OF GIANTS CHECKS ROBINS, 6-2

OTT CONNECTS FOR NO. 33

Reaches Moss and Ties for National League Home-Run Lead Before 15,000 at Ebbets Field.

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

The finger of fame beckoned to Lefty Bill Walker with compelling gestures at Ebbets Field yesterday and the Giant pitcher responded nobly for eight innings, while the feeling among 15,000 spectators grew tense as the Robins went down before his baffling curves. But in the ninth Johnny Frederick's forty-third double of the season ruined a no-hit game for Walker, and when the inning and the game had ended it was just a victory for the Giants by the score of 6 to 2.

Frederick's hit was almost scratchy, being a high fly that fell just inside the left-field foul line, out of Fred Leach's reach, and Rube Bressler's single, on which Johnny scored to avert the shut-out, was a dull pop to short right. Two clean Robin hits came after that, from the bats of Eddie Moore and Jake Flowers, but it didn't matter then.

Walker's pitching for eight innings unquestionably was of the no-hit brand, nothing resembling a hit being made off his southpaw slants. No unusual fielding plays by his teammates were necessary to cut off possible safeties, unless one excepts the uncanny position play of Ed Roush, who cut off a line drive by Jake Flowers to left centre and turned it into a double play. It would have been a hit with any other gardener on duty in that sector.

Starts in Place of Vance.

The Giants, on the other hand, had little difficulty in getting to Ray Moss, who was elected by Uncle Robbie to start in place of Dazzy Vance. The greatest thorn in the side of Moss and the Brooklyn fans was young Melvin Ott, who poled his thirty-third homer of the season over the right-field wall with Bill Terry on base, and who scored four runs during the afternoon. Ott's homer put him in a tie with Chuck Klein and Hack Wilson for the league lead.

Mel slashed out a double in the second and scored the first run on Eddie Farrell's sacrifice fly to Herman. The run was something of a gift, as Ott was safe at third on a fielder's choice when Moore made a wide throw to Gilbert.

In the fourth Ott drew a pass, which was converted into the second tally by Bob O'Farrell's triple to right centre. In the sixth Ott's homer followed Terry's single and was in turn followed by Travis Jackson's double and O'Farrell's single. Moss was removed in favor of Clise Dudley, who retired the Giants without further damage in that frame.

Ott Scores Sixth Tally.

But Dudley was guilty of a faux pas which let in Ott with the sixth and last run in the eighth. Ott walked and reached third on O'Farrell's third hit of the day, and when Eddie Farrell bounced a grounder to Dudley, the tall South Carolinian threw to first with a sure play on Ott at the plate.

It must have been a keen disappointment to Walker when Frederick's fly went for a double, but the hit was greeted by the fans with roars of hopeful applause, which grew in volume even when Babe Herman pushed out a sacrifice bunt which moved Frederick to scoring position. The bunt probably averted a shut-out, but wasn't a grand gesture from the league's leading hitter with his team six runs behind.

GIANTS BID YANKEES TO PLAY CITY SERIES

The Giants yesterday challenged the Yankees to play a city title series. Secretary James J. Tierney and First Baseman Bill Terry of the National League forces presented the challenge to Bob Shawkey of the Yanks, who promised to hand it to Colonel Jacob Ruppert for action.

The Yankees and Giants last met in a city series in 1914 and the Giants won handily. They had previously met in a series in 1910 and the Giants won that time too. They have faced each other since, of course, in the world's series games in 1921, '22 and '23.

Whether the series can be arranged remains to be seen. It is understood that the Yankee management is not overkeen for it and President Stoneham of the Giants is said to believe that it would be unfair to the Athletics and Cubs to stage a series here because of the proximity of Philadelphia.

PIRATES BEAT CUBS FOR THIRD IN ROW

Petty Holds League Leaders as Victors' Two Rallies Earn 5 to 4 Triumph.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29 (AP).—Led into battle a second day by their new manager, Jewel Ens, the Pirates today rode forth to their third conquest of the Cubs in two days. The score was 5 to 4. The Pirates thus reduced the margin of McCarthy's men to eleven and one-half games.

The Pirate success today was scored by the southpaw Jess Petty against a line-up of nine right-handed batsmen. Petty became one of the few left-handers to triumph over the Cubs this season. He scattered the ten hits and bore down in the pinches as the Pirates made good use of their eight safe drives.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

Robert T. Jones Jr., George Von Elm, Jess W. Sweetser, Francis Ouimet, Watts Gunn, Bon Stein, Eddie Held, Jesse P. Guilford, Harrison R. Johnston and Roland Mackenzie.

The ranking list of the leading heavyweight fighters, based on their 1927 performances and the votes of the boxing writers of the country, was:

Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey, George Godfrey, Tom Heeney, Johnny Risko, Jack Delaney, Paulino Uzcudun, Knute Hansen and Chuck Wiggins.

The curtain is lowered to denote the passing of two years. It goes up again and discloses the current ranking or seeding lists. Five of the ten golfers on the 1927 seeding list are on the 1929 seeding list, and four more are on a supplementary list to be used to fill in vacancies in case of withdrawal, non-starting or non-qualifying of players on the preferred list.

So the golfers have done well. They are durable. But of the leading ten heavyweights of two years ago, nine are practically out of the current crop of contenders. Jack Sharkey alone remains on the preferred list. Max Schmeling, who has taken an ocean voyage so that he will have time to think things over, might think that over, too. The pugilistic parade doesn't take long to pass any given point these days, and very few catch up once the parade has gone by.

Counting the Casualties.

Of the ranking ring heroes of two years ago, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey have retired, and, in spite of the rumors that crop up every so often, are likely to stay retired.

Jack Sharkey survives, and perhaps George Godfrey should be kept on the ranking list, but his ranking is merely technical in any case. Furthermore, the Leaping Leopard of Leiperville isn't getting any younger, and he didn't show much against Johnny Risko at Ebbets Field last year.

Tummas Heeney was slaughtered by J. J. Tunney and buried by the importation from the Argentine, Victorio Campolo. Johnny Risko was pushed around by Jimmy Maloney and Ernie Schaaf and knocked out by Max Schmeling.

Jack Delaney is out of the picture entirely, and Paulino Upsidedown was disposed of by Herr Schmeling. Knute Hansen was knocked out by a total stranger in Paris not so long ago, and if Chuck Wiggins is still fighting somebody should tell him that the war is over and it's time to go home.

More Survivors.

There are far more survivors on the links. Bob Jones, George Von Elm, Jess Sweetser, Francis Ouimet and Harrison Johnston of the First Ten of 1927 are also in the First Ten of 1929. You could go back for ten years and find those same names on the preferred list if there had been such a list through those years, but the seeding list is a comparatively recent innovation. The old seeding method was based on qualifying scores entirely.

Watts Gunn, Bon Stein, Eddie Held and Jesse Guilford of the 1927 First Ten have been dropped down to the reserve squad for 1929, and Ronald Mackenzie was lopped off altogether.

The newcomers among the First Ten for this year's seeding are George Voigt, Dr. O. F. Willing, Phillips Finlay, Fred Wright and Donald Moe. Dr. Willing, of course, is the Oregon veteran who dropped out of front-rank competition for a few years, but came back at Brae Burn to beat Watts Gunn and Eustace Storey of the British forces.

True to Form.

Approximately 160 players will tee off in the qualifying round at Pebble Beach next Monday, and four out of five will be spectators after the scores are checked up. There have been years of frightful upsets in qualifying rounds, but last year was not one of them. The playing ran true to form at Brae Burn, which was news in itself. There may be enough upsets this year to strike a balance.

Thirty-two golfers will survive the qualifying test to go into the match-play rounds. It isn't on record that any astrologer, fortune teller, crystal gazer or other gifted seer ever picked the thirty-two qualifiers in advance of the official scorers. But what would be a good guessing average for a volunteer prophet? Twenty out of thirty-two? Fifteen out of thirty-two?

Guessing fifteen qualifiers wouldn't be bad at Pebble Beach because of the hidden hazard of the fifty or so California entries. These are "dark horses" for the most part, and with so many of them in it some of them are bound to turn in good rounds and cut down the available supply of reservations for match rounds.

New England's "dark horses" didn't do much at Brae Burn, but this is another year, and, anyway, any Californian will tell you that they have bigger and better and darker dark horses out there.

All Alike to Jones.

One of the first things Bob Jones did at Pebble Beach was to set a new record for the course. All links look alike to that chap. He drives, approaches and then holes out in two putts or less. It's a wonder that he sticks to the game. There can't be much fun in it at that rate.

The big thrill to the ordinary golfer lies in the uncertainty of each shot. It may be 250 yards down the fairway. It may slice horribly into the woods. It may hook to the goldenrod on the left. It may even fly off the toe of the club and hit Mr. Jenks in the back of the head.

That makes it a game of chance, and the golfer is a gambler. But the Jones way of playing doesn't leave it a game at all. Bob is simply a scientist demonstrating an improved method of getting a ball from a tee into a cup. At times it even becomes tiresome to watch. After following Jones year after year, a spectator unconsciously begins to pull for the other fellow as he would pull for a man against a machine.

There will be one fellow at Pebble Beach who won't ask any odds from Jones, however, and that's George Von Elm. He ranks next to the Atlanta barrister among amateur linksmen, and if he can get past those eighteen-hole matches, the hazards that ruined him at Minikahda and Brae Burn, he'll give any one a run for the cup, including the present holder thereof.

Three Errors in Seventh Inning Aid Mackmen to Score Three Runs and Triumph.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29 (AP).—Three errors by the Red Sox in the seventh inning helped the Athletics to score three runs and gain a 7 to 6 victory in a home-coming game today.

The Red Sox miscues ruined Jack Rothrock's attempt to win the game single-handed by hitting a home run with the bases filled in the fourth inning.

Big Ed Morris went the full distance for the visitors. The Mackmen touched him for five hits in the third inning and that gave them four runs and a lead of two. These four runs were recovered on Rothrock's homer in the following round.

Today's victory, while the Yanks were breaking even, enabled the Athletics to increase their lead to thirteen and one-half games.

Benge was retired from the box in the tenth after Sporer's long double had scored a Boston run. He was relieved by Collins, who halted the Boston rally. Thompson and Friberg did the Phillies' heavy hitting.

KINGDON STARS IN FIELD

BUFFALO, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Newark Bears evened the four-game series with the Bisons here today by hammering out a victory against three local hurlers. The score was 9 to 5. Lee Meadows was found for fourteen hits, but managed to check the Bisons most of the time. Errorless support and three double plays helped Meadows over the rough spots.

Kingdon of Newark featured in the defensive play, handling fourteen chances in faultless style. Mueller made three hits for the Bisons, while George Fisher hit his thirty-fifth homer of the year.

THORMAHLEN DEFEATS JERSEY CITY BY 2-1

Montreal Southpaw Triumphs Over Bream in Mound Duel and Gains Twelfth Victory.

MONTREAL, Aug. 29 (Canadian Press).—Herb Thormahlen and Maurice Bream engaged in a great hurling duel today, and the Royals' southpaw got slightly the better of the argument to give Montreal a 2-1 victory and an even break in the series.

The victory was Thormahlen's twelfth of the season and put the Royals back in fifth place by a slight margin over Reading, which lost at Toronto.

SPEAKS AT GLACIER PARK

Criticizes "Bubble" Mergers and "Customer Ownership" Plan in Stock Selling.

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Aug. 29 (AP).—Governor Clyde M. Reed of Kansas in an address here today declared that "interference" by the Federal judiciary in the regulation of public utilities by the States presented "a grave threat to our form of government in which the States have a vital part."

Asserting that regulation of public utilities and common carriers in the past twenty years had not been "successful in the true sense," the Kansas Governor declared "much if not most of the cause of the failure lies in the interference with State power by Federal courts, led by the Supreme Court of the United States."

Mr. Reed addressed the National Convention of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners. Discussing the tendency toward big business mergers, Governor Reed said:

"To any one familiar with the various stock and other forms of financial Exchanges there has come the fear that the American public is indulging in a speculation orgy compared to which the South Sea Bubble and the later Mississippi Bubble were bubbles indeed.

"Doubtless some of these mergers have economic reasons behind them, but equally doubtless, many of them are only financial tailspins, to catch the public eye and unload while the unloading is good.

"Customer ownership, it is called in public utility financial terms. A fetching and catching phrase, but the poor customer doesn't realize that in most cases he hasn't any ownership to speak of and absolutely no chance for the slightest influence in management or control. All he has done is lend his money on a basis of margin of unreasonably high earnings, and when that condition is corrected, as sooner or later it must be, the customer owner will be holding the sack."

Governor Reed declared there was a tendency on the part of the Federal courts to "assume legislative powers" and override the efforts of the States to regulate public utilities.

"We have found," he said, "that State Legislatures, State commissions and State Supreme Courts are only weak and futile gestures, and that all power of final decisions is lodged in the Federal judiciary."

National legislation tending to interfere with the present authority of State regulatory bodies, or interrupting their present amicable relations with Federal agencies, was frowned upon in a committee report today.

LAW APPRECIATION PLEA TO GO ON AIR LABOR DAY

Aeronautical Ground School Course for Women to Be Begun on Radio Tonight.

The third holiday appeal over the radio for "law appreciation" will be broadcast on Labor Day over a large number of independent stations throughout the country, according to C. A. Earl, president of the Earl Radio Company of New York. Mr. Earl heads a radio law appreciation committee created to foster this theme.

In addition the radio campaign will be carried on daily during Labor Day week over a large group of stations, he said. The stations will not be connected by wires as for ordinary chain programs, but the message is to be read before the individual microphones of as many stations as possible at about the same time.

Mr. Earl listed twenty-eight broadcasting stations over which the address will be read on Labor Day, and more than sixty for the readings from Tuesday to Saturday, inclusive. Among those listed to broadcast are WGBS, New York, and WNJ, Newark, N. J.

A ground school aeronautical course for women is to be begun tonight at 6:30 o'clock over WRNY by Captain William L. Purcell, who is director of the Roosevelt Field Flying School. The instruction will be presented each Friday evening at the same hour, during the Women's Aviation Hour program.

Captain Purcell is said to be intent on proving that flying can be taught successfully over the radio. A musical program also will be given. Captain Purcell will be introduced on the air by Hal Kane Clements, director of the women's aviation programs.

BRADY FETED IN LONDON.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The rafters of the Carlton Hotel lunch room literally rang today when William H. Brady, American theatrical manager, was entertained by Charles B. Cochran and the Australian, Hugh D. McIntosh.

The party was small but representative of diverse interests. It included Senton Brancker, director of civil aviation here; Sir Milsom Rees, one of the King's physicians; Arch Selwyn and Noel Coward. The idea really was to celebrate the conclusion of a number of theatrical arrangements between Messrs. Brady and Cochran, but actually it developed into a story-telling contest between Messrs. Brady and McIntosh. The latter related tales of early association with the prize fighters Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns and the National Sporting Club, while Mr. Brady responded with diverting dramatic incidents in connection with the promotion of the Corbett-Jeffries contests.

GIVES FAREWELL CONCERT.

There were only a few vacant seats at the Lewissohn Stadium last night when the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, lead by Willem van Hoogstraten, played its farewell open-air concert. The concert was distinguished by some magnificent playing, to which the audience paid marked attention. Mr. van Hoogstraten conducted forcefully. Only three items, the "Pathetic" Symphony of Tchaikovsky, Wagner's "Meistersinger" Overture and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, comprised the program, which was selected by vote of some thousands of patrons.

At the conclusion there was loud applause, the conductor having to reappear many times while the audience was slow to disperse.

STOKOWSKI ARRIVES, DISCUSSES RADIO MUSIC

He Says He Has Studied Broadcasting Developments Before Agreeing to Give 3 Concerts.

Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, returned yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Reliance with Mrs. Stokowski and their baby daughter, Luba. He has been in a resort in the Alps, resting and working on programs for the Fall and Winter season.

Mr. Stokowski discussed his coming first appearance before a microphone when he will conduct for the first time radio broadcasting. He said that he had studied the possibilities of radio for a long time and was now convinced that it was developed technically to an extent suitable for orchestra broadcasting.

The first broadcast will be on Oct. 6 in a concert at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia under the auspices of the Philco Company. Two other concerts will follow, the first on Nov. 3 and the last on Dec. 8.

Mr. Stokowski said that he had perfected a system throughout the world by which he receives all important publications of musical scores. Agents in every major city send him every piece of music of the orchestra class.

Out of 1,000 musical numbers received he selects thirty for trial with the symphony orchestra. In such a trial, he declared, he gets "the living voice of the music." Out of the thirty an average of three numbers are finally selected for presentation in concert recital, he said.

'THEATRE ASSEMBLIES' PLANNED FOR PRINCESS

Walter Greenough to Launch a Campaign for 5,000 Subscribers to Intimate Plays.

A subscription season of intimate plays for "exclusive audiences" is being planned by Walter Greenough, who has acquired the Princess Theatre in Thirty-ninth Street. "New York Theatre Assemblies" is the title Mr. Greenough has given to his undertaking, and he intends to launch immediately a campaign for 5,000 subscribers in New York City, Long Island, Westchester and New Jersey. The first production of the organization will probably be made in October.

Mr. Greenough announced yesterday that the committee of founders for the "New York Theatre Assemblies" included Mrs. William Dana Rham, Mrs. Francis P. He further announced that he had under consideration plays by Elmer Rice, Noel Coward, Fannie Heaslip Lea, Paul Osborne, Katherine Clugston, Knowles Entriken and Donald McGibeney. Six productions are scheduled for the first season at the Princess.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The results of an extensive study made by Dr. Richard S. Uhrbrock, lecturer in the course in Hotel Administration at Cornell University, on the ability of employers to estimate the intelligence of applicants from photographs tend to disprove the assumption that the average man can judge mental ability from pictures.

Dr. Uhrbrock found that men of high intelligence were judged low and men of low intelligence were judged high.

A group of 600 men received the Thorndike intelligence test. Six who made high scores and six who made low scores were photographed. The pictures were judged for general intelligence by 253 men and 350 women.

One photograph, of a man of very high intelligence, with a drooping mouth and averted eyes, was judged low in intelligence by 75 per cent of the men and 81 per cent of the women. A stupid individual with an agreeable expression was rated high by 70 per cent of the men and 78 per cent of the women.

DANCE TEACHERS HERE LIKE 'LONDON FLICKEY'

European Variations of Fox Trot Demonstrated at Session of National Convention.

Popular ballroom dances of London and Havana, an interpretative study of modernistic classic dancing and a square dance reminiscent of other days were demonstrated yesterday at a meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Dancing, which is holding its annual convention throughout this week at the Hotel McAlpin.

Eighty delegates from all parts of the United States approved the foreign fox trots introduced in this country for the first time. "The Flicker," sensation of London and the Continent, introduces a new rhythm on the seventh and eighth counts. The steps are taken in a long draggy manner.

"The Danzon" introduces a rhythm in slow fox trot tempo with a Cuban influence. An off-time dance intended for collegians is the "Off-Beat Rhythm." It combines pointing, waltzing and the two step. The time is on and between the beat.

A classic work, "Princess Feather," depicting a water scene, was interpreted by Miss Ruth Blankenhorn of Englewood, N. J. It combined a number of modernistic exercises which have evolved from the Russian school into the American classical ballet.

"The music of today is played too fast and makes the party rough," declared Henry Doring, 73-year-old instructor of Troy, N. Y., who first taught dancing back in 1875 when four square to every round dance were the vogue. "There have been numerous innovations in the waltz," he said, "but it is still the popular dance. The exaggerated shoulder-shaking movements of today are not wanted. The trend is toward slow and graceful movements which can be admired."

Mrs. W. D. Weinberger Recovering.

Mrs. William Degen Weinberger, wife of the secretary of the Friars Club, who fractured a hip nine weeks ago in San Francisco, was taken yesterday to the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled for the removal of the cast. According to Dr. Armitage Whitman, she will suffer no permanent disability from the accident, although it will be several months before she is fully recoveded. Mrs. Weinberger formerly was the wife of the late Barney Bernard, the comedian.

Play's Title Is Now "Complex."

"Complex" is now the title of the play known in England as "Rope," which Lee Shubert is bringing to New York. The play is the work of Patrick Hamilton and it will be acted by an English cast. It is now scheduled to open at the Theatre Masque on Monday, Sept. 16.

LOS ANGELES POLICE ARREST TEN IN PLAY

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29 (AP).—Ten persons connected with the presentation of a play called "Bad Babies" at a local theatre were at liberty under bond today, following their arrest at the final curtain last night. They were charged with staging an "indecent and lewd exhibition."

Patrons of the show, who witnessed the rush of detectives from the audience to the stage, applauded the action, believing it to be a clever finale.

Eight players, the stage manager and author, were taken to the police station, where they gained release on $500 bail each.

Those taken into custody were Jobyna Ralston, Arthur Rankin, Marvin Williams, Marjorie Montgomery, Norman Peck, Elinor Flynn, Annette Westbay and Dario Shindell, all performers, and Frank Jennings, stage manager, and George Scarborough, author.

Lloyd Nix, city prosecutor, who ordered the arrests, said he had received many complaints against the show, which was billed as "a comedy drama of modern life." The play was built around the intrigues of a group of high school boys and girls, and the complications which resulted when a society woman fell in love with one of the boys. The show was suspended pending the outcome of a hearing.

Ruth Elder, transatlantic flier, was married at noon yesterday to Walter Camp Jr., president of Inspiration Pictures, Inc., and son of the famous Yale football coach.

The ceremony was performed by City Clerk Michael J. Cruise in the Municipal Chapel, the only witnesses being Miss Margaret Baker and William Dunn of Mr. Cruise's office staff.

The bride gave her age as 24 years in the application for a license and her residence as Beverly Hills, Cal. Mr. Camp, who is fourteen years her senior, gave his address as 39 Broadway, and stated that he had been a widower since 1928.

Previously she had been divorced from Claude E. Moody, a postal clerk at Jacksonville, Fla., whom she married in her 'teens. The bride is a native of Anniston.

COOPERATIVE PLAN FOR NEW ORCHESTRA

EXPENSES ARE GUARANTEED

A new orchestra, called the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra, has been organized in New York on a cooperative basis and will begin its season of symphonic concerts at popular prices on Sunday evening, Oct. 20, in Mecca Temple. The conductor of this orchestra will be Henry Hadley. The orchestra announces its membership as numbering 100. It gave two concerts at popular prices and with semi-popular programs on June 9 and 11 in Starlight Park, and another concert at Playland Park, Rye, N. Y., two weeks later. At this concert the sponsors and guarantors of the orchestra were present.

The backers have guaranteed in advance the running expenses of the concerts, including the payment of the players for the performances. But the men give their time for rehearsals without pay, which is not the case with non-cooperative organizations of union musicians, and divide any profit that there may be from the concerts after expenses have been deducted at the end of the season.

The prices of tickets for these concerts, of which thirty will be given on successive Sunday nights, will range from 25 cents to $2. The programs given thus far, which are indicative of the programs to be offered in New York this Winter, have consisted of Wagner, Tschaikovsky and certain semi-popular composers, such as Victor Herbert. It is the plan of the orchestra to put at least one composition by an American composer on each program. Among those listed as patrons and patronesses sponsoring the concerts are Adolph Lewisohn, Walter Fischer, Montague Glass, Arthur Bergh, Frances Starr, Carolyn Beebe, Otis Skinner, Alfred Rossin, Julia C. Levi, Charles Triller, T. B. Terhune, Steinway & Sons, Mrs. E. Corcoran, Judge R. Campbell, Mrs. S. R. Guggenheimer and Mrs. A. Friedlander. The expenses having been guaranteed, the thirty concerts will be a test of public attitude toward the new body and the quality of the programs that it promises.

JACK DONAHUE AS STAR.

Jack Donahue, who had been scheduled to reach stardom this season in a Ziegfeld show, will instead appear as the star of "Tin Hats," a musical show in the production of which Bobby Connolly, the dance director, will be concerned. "Tin Hats," which will have a book by Guy Bolton and Fred Thompson, will go in rehearsal in about ten days. Arthur Swanstrom will be associated with Mr. Connolly in the production.

WARNER BROS. OFFER YOU A NEW THRILL!

THE parade of progress cannot be halted. The best musical show you have yet seen on Broadway, regardless of who produced it, will seem an amateurish effort after the premiere of "GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY" at the Winter Garden tonight.

What we said about shows also goes for pictures. If you think you have seen good pictures in the past, then all we can say is,—"You ain't seen nothin' yet."

Warner Bros., who gave you something new with talking pictures and then with singing pictures and then with color pictures,—now give you another thrill!

A typical Winter Garden show, plus Avery Hopwood's play as staged by David Belasco. Plus a singing, dancing chorus of 100 Hollywood beauties. Plus costumes that would make a woman with thirteen children forget her troubles. Plus half a dozen Witmark songs that you will have to whistle willy-nilly. Plus dances as only Ann Pennington can dance them. Plus love scenes as only Conway Tearle can play them. Plus tunes as only Nick Lucas can croon them. Plus wise cracks as only Winnie Lightner can pull them. Plus perfect dialogue as only Vitaphone records it. Plus all the colors of the rainbow. Plus all the unlimited resources of Warner Bros., showmen extraordinary. And the entire production in 100% Natural Color by the Technicolor process.

Put these all together and you have merely an idea of "GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY."

World premiere tonight, 8:30 sharp, at the Winter Garden, Broadway and 50th St., Twice Daily after the opening, 2:45—8:45, with an extra show at six P. M. on Sunday. Seats for the premiere and the first eight weeks now on sale.

THE REAL VICTOR.

Disputes over what country won at The Hague conference are made to look futile by the event. All countries won. There has been too much réclame about England and Mr. SNOWDEN. He himself deprecates the fuss that has been made over his personality. Doubtless his course has been a splendid stroke for the Labor party in England; but in time a truer measure of the results obtained at The Hague will be taken, and then the temporary glory won by this or that man will pale.

If we are soberly to ask who won the biggest triumph at The Hague, the answer must be, not any individual, but a great conception. The Young plan emerges as the true victor. After all the denunciations of it, and the efforts to escape from it, it stands today accepted and secure as the arbiter of European peace. This may not seem so remarkable an achievement in the United States, where the Young plan was generally acquiesced in by the people, although the Washington Administration was notoriously cold toward it, as it must England, where it was openly and bitterly attacked.

Toward the end of July, Mr. LLOYD GEORGE said in the House of Commons that he "had read the Young "report with feelings of amaze"ment." To him "it was incredible "that anybody could have signed "that report." The tale was taken up the same day by Mr. SNOWDEN, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who asserted that "all the proposals" of the Young plan were "open to consideration and negotiation." For the Labor Government he stated that "they would not regard them"selves as being compelled to accept "whatever conclusions the experts' "committee [that is, the Young ex"perts at Paris] might recommend." Nothing could be plainer than the intention to make the Young plan all over. But at The Hague those who tried to bite into it simply broke their teeth. The wisdom and the comprehensiveness of the Young plan were established beyond all cavil by the fact that even those who did not like it, and who would have been glad to rewrite it from beginning to end, were forced at last to accept it, in the words of the Young report, as "an indivisible whole."

Behind the Young plan stands its animating principle, now triumphant. It is the spirit of friendship and of peace between nations. Without that the Young plan never could have been drafted; without it acceptance never could have followed. We get a clue to the great civilizing and appeasing forces which were at work before and through the Young plan when we notice how it draws along with it happy consequences outside its avowed scope. Mr. YOUNG and his colleagues had no word to say about the evacuation of the Rhineland. Yet their scheme to liquidate the economic consequences of the war inevitably carried with it arrangements to obliterate some of the last political consequences. Here we have the British and the Belgians and the French agreeing to withdraw their troops from German soil four years earlier than was set by the Versailles Treaty as the term of their occupation. By next June Germany will not have the humiliation, now become needless, of seeing foreign soldiers posted in some of her cities. Moreover, the evacuation is to be accomplished by harmonious agreements between Belgium and England and France. Mr. HENDERSON is no longer saying truculently for England that she will withdraw her troops instantly, no matter what France might do. This return to cooperation is one more indication that the hasty talk about England having at last resolved to put France in her proper place and assert for herself a kind of proud and independent leadership on the Continent was largely froth.

It cannot be denied that The Hague conference had its dispiriting side. It was not a gathering of brethren loving to dwell in unity. But the very fact that out of the squabbles and the bitterness came this large agreement to work together for creating the new Europe is a strong proof of the invincible nature of the movement sweeping from country to country. Some of The Hague delegates sought to check it or to break it, but in the end were themselves carried along by it. It was peace which won the greatest of the victories at The Hague, and extorted submission and praise even from the wrath of man.

CIRCUMNAVIGATED BY AIR.

The small boy, watcher of the skies at Lakehurst yesterday morning, who first saw the Graf Zeppelin loom through the mist will always remember his thrill. The early rising thousands of New York City who watched the airship circle the town on its way to the end of its epochal journey could not wait to inform the sluggard that they had been present on the great occasion. The millions outside the Zeppelin's orbit who did not actually see the finish of the spectacular flight heard by radio, newspaper and telephone that the task was done. Not in years has public interest been so warmly captured by an event. It is something to have lived in the day when the world was first circumnavigated by air; when the Pacific was crossed in a non-stop passage from the Orient, and when the same set of passengers, luxuriously housed, saw the whole earth unroll like a scroll beneath them.

From the standpoint of the pilot, and of the experts who constructed the airship, this flight is but an "experiment." Ships like the Graf Zeppelin must be much larger, they insist. Provision must be made against storms and the ever-feared menace of lightning. Better time must be made, although to girdle the earth in actual flying time of 11 days, 23 hours and 33 minutes suggests the magic carpet of Eastern tale. Yet it is this very unwillingness of science to be content with achievement that has sent civilization so swiftly on the path of progress.

Among those who now concede that the dirigible airship is the best means yet perfected for transoceanic travel are the airplane pilots, Colonel LINDBERGH among them. They could not, as aviators and sportsmen, have withheld such an admission from ECKENER after his notable flight. Through fogs and around storms he safely guided his great craft, and the "GOTT sei dank" which he is said to have uttered at Lakehurst when the Zeppelin settled down could not be construed as in any sense implying doubt his ship could come through safely. In the same spirit MORSE said, "What hath GOD wrought!"

CROOKES POINT PARK.

New York is fortunate in its harbor and sky-line. They distract attention from the frequent squalor of the waterfront. The docks and piers and ferry slips and industrial plants that border it are the core of the city's economic life, but they might have been much better distributed and fitted into the landscape if they had been planned in a more orderly way. Here and there a park or driveway or beach relieves the drabness of the general contour, but too often the park or the driveway is spoiled by its surroundings and the beach polluted by sewage. Dwellers on Manhattan smile when they read of the charming glimpses of the Hudson promised them by the city planners of a century ago.

Children of the tenements still bathe in the filth of our rivers and bays, and turn to Coney Island as to a paradise. The recreational facilities of the waterfront constitute one of the city's greatest neglected opportunities. New York has about 191 miles of shore line, and uses only about twenty-five for park purposes. It has seven miles of public bathing beaches for six million inhabitants. Their enjoyment of those beaches it does its best to ruin by emptying a billion gallons of sewage a day into the waters that wash them. Public authorities have bartered away shore rights without thought of the future needs of the region. Sometimes, as at Coney Island, they have had to buy back the very foreshore that they once gave away!

Enlightened by reports like those from the pen of the Regional Plan Committee, the city is commencing to realize that the waterfront still available for recreational use constitutes a "treasure of inestimable value." It has made a beginning with Riverside and Pelham Bay and the Shore Road in Brooklyn. Just now it has a rare opportunity at Crookes Point, Staten Island, where modern engineering skill can readily turn a marshy point, submerged flats and a long sandy spit into a magnificent landlocked habor two miles across, with a fine beach fronting Sandy Hook. The State has agreed to cede the land under water; the Federal Government has promised to do the necessary dredging. The city must buy the upland—it has already appropriated $700,000 for that purpose—and do the filling in. Here is a chance for the city to develop something entirely original in the way of a real marine park, with facilities for boating and swimming and water sports. Until better transportation facilities are available it may be used chiefly by residents of Staten Island, but in the years to come it should be a valuable asset to the entire community.

NOT THEIR BUSINESS.

After a consultation between the Federal prohibition authorities in Washington and New York it was decided, ostensibly for the purpose of relieving the congested calendars of Federal courts, that henceforth in this State complaints against speakeasies that may be construed as coming under the "nuisance" article of the penal law are to be left to the local officers and courts. On Monday Mr. MAURICE CAMPBELL reproved District Attorney BANTON and Police Commissioner WHALEN and reminded them of the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Vandewater case.

He would send to the District Attorneys of the metropolitan district the evidence collected by his agents and permit them to testify in the local courts. If the police and the District Attorneys did their duty under the State law, New York's speakeasies would "speedily fade away." So simple the process looks to the Administrator! Under the Vandewater decision the "habitual" selling of liquor must be proved. How large a force of police would be required, doing nothing else, to produce such evidence in the case of the 32,000 speakeasies—at present the hieratic number? The Acting Chief Magistrate, the District Attorneys of the five counties and the Police Commissioner discussed Mr. CAMPBELL'S ultimatum. Mr. WHALEN'S reply is effective both in defense and attack.

The New York police has all violations of the penal law to look after. It cannot concentrate on offenses under a particular section of it. The prohibition agents have the same powers as the police in regard to violations of the prohibition act which are also violations of the law defining public nuisances. Let them collect the evidence, instead of merely sending a complaint. If the evidence is sufficient, the prosecuting attorneys and the courts will do their duty. Why are the Federal prohibition enforcers eager to give up the far severer penalties which the national act imposes for maintaining a common nuisance by making, keeping or selling liquor, for the far milder penalties imposed by the State law? Why are they willing to change a national felony into a State misdemeanor?

These recurrent tirades against the "inactivity" of local officers of the law only accentuate in the public mind the essential impotence of the Federal officers. Where does the liquor come from that flows in such a multitude of speakeasies? Why don't the executors of the Volstead act fulfill their promise, tediously repeated, to stop the stream at the source? To clutter up the State courts as the Federal courts are cluttered up would be another blessing born of prohibition. Perhaps Mr. CAMPBELL can do it. He can't get it done for him, even if the additional police necessary, according to Mr. WHALEN'S calculation, would cost only $15,000,000 a year.

YUGOSLAV TENSION.

It does not promise well for the speedy liquidation of Yugoslavia's difficulties that ANTON TRUMBITCH should now be a fugitive from his country and on his way to Geneva to lay a formal complaint against the dictatorship at Belgrade before the League of Nations. It is almost as though EDUARD BENES were out in open war against the Czech Government or IGNACE PADEREWSKI were mobilizing public opinion against the new Poland. Dr. TRUMBITCH was one of the chief builders of Yugoslavia. He was one of the three Yugoslav delegates at the Paris peace conference, representing the Croatian lands just emerged from Hapsburg bondage. The fact that his name has not figured prominently in the strife of recent years between Serb and Croat, culminating in the proclamation of a royal dictatorship, would argue that this is no partisan hothead of the Stefan Raditch type. His flight is all the severer comment on the present situation. It argues an intolerable state of affairs even for men of moderate views.

When the suspension of constitutional government was first proclaimed last January at Belgrade there was reason for differentiating the new dictatorship from the Italian or Spanish model. This was no rejection of the parliamentary system for a new political philosophy as with MUSSOLINI, and there was no subordination of the Crown to a dictatorship outside itself as in Spain. Rather it appeared that King ALEXANDER had lived up to his duties as head of the entire Yugoslav people by intervening personally against factionalism running riot. A cooling-off period for both sides appeared to be the need of the moment. Unfortunately there is no sign of better temper in either camp, Serb or Croat. From the Crown there has not been forthcoming the broad gesture of conciliation that was expected. In Croatia there certainly has been no appeasement. Instead have come charges of mass repression and individual persecution. The flight of Dr. TRUMBITCH would suggest that there has been less exaggeration in the Croat complaints than has been generally assumed.

The outlook in the South Slav kingdom would be, nevertheless, more discouraging if there were not a recent example of a similarly intense situation in a neighboring country taking a decisive turn for the better almost overnight. In Rumania the struggle between the politicians of the Old Kingdom and the representatives of the redeemed Ruman populations was at times almost as critical as the conflict between the Old Serbs and the redeemed Croat brethren. Civil war threatened. The unexpected solution came with the retreat of the Bratianu party and the transfer of power to a Peasant Ministry. In Yugoslavia the issues are more complicated since it is in large measure a struggle between the Serb idea of a centralized State and the Croat Federalized State. Yet it is not inconceivable that a bold stroke by King ALEXANDER in the form of the restoration of parliamentary rule under a Croat Premier would operate as quickly and beneficently as in Rumania.

REGIONAL PLANNING FOR AGRICULTURE.

Governor ROOSEVELT'S address at Syracuse should help city people to realize that we do not have to go far to find farming problems. We have them at our own doors. If we were to give more attention to near-by production and distribution we should be best aiding the working out of a national agricultural program. Its basic principle is to put the soil of each region or section to its highest possible use. New York has a marvelously varied fertility, from the truck gardens of Long Island to the vineyards of Chautauqua. Its soil brings forth now a turnip and now an apple; now an onion and now a rose; everything in a season's round from an Irish potato to an exquisite orchid. It is first among the States in its production of milk and dairy products, hay and forage, potatoes, vegetables, strawberries, currants, flower and foliage plants, small fruits, buckwheat, nursery plants, onions and apples. It has let the Western States take over supremacy in the grains which it one time produced for home use.

Mr. ROOSEVELT urges a close study of soils and other factors of agricultural production, so that transport from region to region may be necessary only where superior production compels. It seems a wasteful practice, for example, to bring apples in the apple season from Oregon when as fine apples in both taste and appearance may be grown in our own orchards. Perhaps Oregon has something to contribute that cannot be equaled here, and vice versa. The obvious economical course is to produce near at hand the things that can best be raised in this region. The large communities of the State of New York, as the Secretary of Commerce emphasized at the same meeting, offer near-by markets to every farmer in the State. This is of little avail if he does not put his acres to the best use and take advantage of cooperative marketing to get his produce to the consumer. The city dweller's interest is economically and morally bound up with that of the producer.

So successful has been cooperation in certain "farm service institutions" of this State that the Secretary of Agriculture is saying to the farmers of other States: "What "cooperation has done for New York "cooperation can do for you." But there are farm products for which no such effective cooperation has as yet been brought about even here. Governor ROOSEVELT has proposed a sound procedure both regionally and nationally.

THE SEASON AT THE STADIUM.

A request program, which included the favorites of the symphonic music performed during the Summer, brought to a close last night the season's concerts by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at the Stadium of the College of the City of New York. The weather has been unusually favorable, nearly all of the performances having been out of doors. And the absence of static has made the broadcasting of the Sunday evening performances and the second half of the Tuesday concerts unusually successful. Thousands who ordinarily cannot obtain seats in the concert halls were able to hear the best music admirably played.

To be sure, the handicap of playing in the open has not been altogether overcome. Concertgoers are of the opinion that the seats outside of the "beam" of sound thrown by the sounding board are not so good as those directly in front. This is inevitable under the circumstances. Incidentally, it has affected the radio broadcasting even more than the audition in the Stadium, as some of the instruments—notably the horns and wood-winds—have not "come across" as clearly as the strings.

These are but minor details in an admirable series of performances. Under the leadership of Mr. VAN HOOGSTRATEN and of his guest conductor, Mr. ALBERT COATES, excellent programs have been given. Thanks to the judicious repetition of some of the symphonies, it has been possible for the public to become better acquainted with them than would be the case if the program makers strove always and only for novelty.

The final balloting for the program last night gives a measure of the taste of the concertgoers. TCHAIKOVSKY'S "Pathétique" symphony, BEETHOVEN'S Fifth, and WAGNER'S "Meistersinger" overture won first place. BEETHOVEN'S Third symphony, his "Leonore" overture, the symphony of CESAR FRANCK and the "Scheherazade" of RIMSKY-KORSAKOV were among the others that received many votes. It is safe to say that an audience which will choose these pieces is no longer musically unsophisticated. The conductors as well as the sponsors of the institution have reason to feel that they have been highly successful in helping the people of New York to understand and enjoy good music.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Skippers' Race.

When the five schooners entered for the local Fishermen's Cups cross the starting line off Gloucester breakwater next Saturday, what should be a great contest of sailing skippers will be under way. Yachtsmen may energize year in and year out, from Barnegat to Marblehead, but only when the vessels of the fishing fleet pause in their occupation do landlubbers have a chance to witness what master mariners going deep-sea can do piloting their ships around marking buoys.

Only Gloucester could stage such a contest as will be put on over the Labor Day week-end. And perhaps not even Gloucester will see again such skippers in battle as will be seen this year. The old days of "cracking on" sail to make a swift run from the Banks are definitely over. Although the future will breed men no less hardy than those of the past, they will not have the technique of their predecessors.

If there is no outstanding vessel this year, the Henry Ford and the Columbia having both gone down, there is, nevertheless, nothing but feverish excitement in the various yards where the several somewhat aged contenders are being put into shape for the event, hulls being scraped and painted, and topmasts stepped. And as the opening day approaches the excitement along the waterfront is beginning to equal that in the shipyards. Each skipper has his following; the betting is on skippers, not on boats. And if any is the favorite it cannot be discovered.

The First Battle of Hollywood.

The President of Actors Equity probably exaggerated at one end of his equation when he explained the recent failure of the strike as the natural outcome in a struggle between "$3,000,000,000 capital against approximately 3,000 actors, most of whom live from hand to mouth." But a billion or two more or less does not invalidate Mr. GILLMORE'S main contention. The disparity in financial resources between the film producers and the talkie actors is impressive enough.

Nevertheless this very difference in material strength, accentuated by the traditional inability of the actor to look after himself, is likely to favor the players' organization in the long run. When Equity was first established it was the common assertion that stage folk were by temperament unfit for cooperation. But the highly individualistic actors seem to have developed a loyalty to their organization that very few trade unions in any field can show. The basic reason is found in their very temperament and a congenital unfitness for business. Unless they are to submit to anything and everything, the actors must have some one—in this instance their own organization—to look after them.

The recent defeat in Hollywood may be primarily due to the fact that the talkies are now a pioneer industry, and trade unions never flourish under pioneer conditions. As industries stabilize the principle of collective bargaining emerges.

Discovering a Funny World.

Laughter has always puzzled students of human expression. The old theory that cruelty underlies a really hearty guffaw has been exploded, though people still continue to laugh when a pedestrian slips on a banana peel. But the source of laughter is very complex, and cannot be explained on one simple basis.

Children's laughter is often harder to understand than the merriment of adults. A committee of investigators at Teachers College has just reported the findings of a long study of this subject. Nursery and kindergarten children were watched, and it was agreed that they laughed because they were growing conscious of the things and particularly the people around them as entities separate from themselves.

It is a cheering thought for grown people that the youngsters start out by finding this a funny world. The notion that childhood was a happy period used to be accepted without argument, but there have been so many novels and autobiographies relating the misery of early life that nowadays that convention has been abandoned. If the child researchers can restore something of our old belief in childish gayety they deserve a vote of thanks.

Seeding by Airplane.

Perhaps adults now living may survive to see an airplane one of the necessary pieces of machinery on the farm. This is suggested by the news that a quarter section on Lummi Island, Washington, was seeded this week from the air in alfalfa, timothy, clover and orchard grass. The operation required one hour and forty minutes; the plane traveled at the rate of ninety-five miles an hour. The owner of the land, through a trapdoor in the cockpit, poured out the seed from bags in a six-inch stream.

Both aviation and agricultural worlds will await the growth of that alfalfa, timothy, clover and orchard grass with keen interest. If the quarter section shows a good stand farms of large acreage will be justified in adopting the method. Some crops can be planted only by hand, but the genius of aviation engineers may be able to deal even with these. When that time arrives seeding season will merely mean wheeling out the Robin and taking the air with her, loaded with sacks.

Evidently, complications are possible. Suppose a sudden gust of wind scatters the seed into a neighbor's field where it is not wanted? Which one would "have the law" on the other? The wise farmer will carefully observe the weather before harnessing his airplane.

New Jersey's Waterfront.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When one travels and sees the wonderful waterfronts in the European countries one cannot help wondering why we do nothing to increase the natural beauties of New York Bay and the Hudson River. The entire waterfront is a wreck, with its old piers and derelict boats.

The west shore, New Jersey's water line, is a thing to weep over. Take the waterfront north of the Fort Lee Ferry; naturally beautiful, but the powers that have been and are permit old, abandoned boats to be left to rot. River Road, which should have been finished to meet the Interstate Park, is being built up with shacks, gasoline stations and parking places.

Never has the river been made so hideous as it is this Summer, and while protests have been made they are answered with shrugging shoulders and the plea that it costs money to improve property.

New Jersey certainly has money to spend in every direction. Why can she not look at this waterfront as it stands today, roll up her sleeves and start into action? H. B. G.

LaGuardia's Independence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES editorial "A Good Enough Republican" is a fine example of fair play and independence in the Mayoralty election. It deserves the commendation of every fair-minded voter in the city. His closest friend could not describe Major LaGuardia as a politician any better than you did.

Even the most ardent Tammany supporters admit that he is the most independent man in politics in New York City. His opponents envy his independence; his friends delight in it. If we had more men of Major LaGuardia's type in politics it would be good for our country.

California's Grapes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES published a letter from a resident of Maine stating that a large part of California's grape crop is used for making wine, directly and indirectly, and deploring the fact that the Federal Government is assisting the grape industry to the extent of $9,000,000.

Having lived most of my life in California, I wish to make a slight correction in the record. While it is true that many tons of California grapes are used to make grape juice, much of which may later ferment, thousands of carloads are sold for table consumption and other thousands of carloads are used in the making of raisins. I doubt if more than half of the total tonnage is used as this correspondent asserts.

And $9,000,000 is about as big a matter in the grape industry in California as it might be in the building of subways in New York.

THOSE WHO ARE BLIND.

Lovers there are who promise love will stay
Forever in their breasts, who speak a vow
That this fine surge of rapture will endure
As does eternity; lovers there are
Who, blithe, forswear the mutability
Of day on day. There is no piping fool
Who dare try cage a song, to gyve the sea,
To fetter April rain or pointed star;
There is no child who would attempt to rule
The waning of the moon, or would decide
To shackle blossoms of an apple bough;
Even a poet in his singing pride
Would not pretend that he might ever sway
The pendulum of wind. Lovers should know
That ecstasy must come and must depart
As simply as all beauty sprung of earth.
Who would hold love when love was wont to go?
That which is ash can never know rebirth,
Despite the chains which forge it to a heart;
Lovers, take heed; your gift was never meant

MANGANESE TO THE FORE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Manganese has come into the limelight of late in quite the same manner as an individual occasionally lands in the papers by being kicked into the street. Mr. Average Citizen would probably never have heard of it had not the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee suddenly changed their minds, voting 6 to 5 about continuing the protection the metal has had since 1922, and placed it on the free list of the proposed new tariff bill. The suddenness of this reversal was startling, all things considered, and the motive was obscure.

That a domestic industry exists no one who has followed the hearings on the manganese tariff in Washington will seriously deny. For this reason the manganese producers and those interested in their fortunes will resent most strongly the statement made recently by Dr. T. T. Read of Columbia University in a metropolitan newspaper to the effect that "the tariff on manganese fosters no industry." Dr. Read avoids the entire argument in favor of the manganese tariff by pretending that the manganese industry does not exist.

Foes of the manganese tariff, in presenting their brief before the Ways and Means Committee last January, in referring to the domestic industry confined themselves to stating: "Under this excessive duty no development of a domestic industry in manganese ore has occurred."

The manganese question is difficult and most important, as the lengthy hearings given it in Washington indicate. It is not to be dismissed summarily with a wave of the hand. Surely it does not merit flippant treatment.

The importance of manganese, in short, is this: The metal is absolutely essential in making steel—not merely manganese steel but any steel. Metallurgists have signally failed to find a satisfactory substitute. Without a domestic supply of this commodity the United States must depend on imports from Russia, India, Africa or Brazil—a risky dependence in war and an unwise reliance in peace, for it is not inconceivable that some international trade agreement might result in curtailing our supply from abroad. Such things have happened before.

For this reason the further development of the domestic manganese industry is highly desirable. So far as known, the United States possesses only a very small reserve of the high-grade manganese ore desired by manufacturers of ferromanganese, the form in which manganese is used in making steel. But it has an enormous reserve of low-grade manganese ores which can be so treated as to raise their grade to the desired point, provided the market price for the product be high enough to pay the cost of treatment and leave a profit. This is possible only by virtue of an adequate tariff.

Since 1922, under the apparent protection of the 1-cent duty then provided, various interests have been led to invest their money in projects having for their object the development of manganese properties and the devising of ore-treatment processes. considerable progress has been made and some production achieved. During this period the Bureau of Mines has also done notable and successful work in discovering new ore-treatment processes; likewise the Minnesota State Bureau of Mines has conducted exceedingly painstaking research on the metallurgy of manganese with promising results.

All of this work requires time, one must remember. An industry or a process cannot be developed overnight. And a more important consideration than this is the fact that no capitalist will put his money into a manganese enterprise unless tariff protection for the metal is first assured. The continual threat during the last seven years that the foes of the manganese tariff would succeed in having it removed has greatly retarded the development of the domestic industry. But the failure of producers to persuade consumers to break their foreign connections has been the greatest obstacle.

More will be heard of the manganese tariff when the bill comes before the Senate for approval. The best that the domestic producers can hope for is that the question will be settled on its merits.

Food as a Crime Preventive.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The study of criminology has been made from the angles of psychology and sociology with but little success. It has long been my opinion that the proper avenue of approach would be the biochemical. Here the citadel of the energy has its weakest front.

Consider such a simple case as the weaning of even such a gentle animal as a calf. If the calf be once weaned and then by chance or design be given access to the mother, the desire for food is so pervading and so subtly intense that its entire being becomes one mass of scheming particles to get the food that "mother used to make" and still makes. I have had boys in my employ who were given to petty thieving and even much more serious offenses who, by good food over a pleasant table at only one meal a day, showed a complete remission of the symptoms of the young criminal, only to resume their "ways of sin" when this one eumetabolic meal was stopped. I am convinced that this is the basic fact of criminology—simple indeed in theory—but not at all easy of practical endemic demonstration.

DEMOCRATS ASSAIL TARIFF BOARD PLAN

By Senate Bill, Hoover Could Pick Commission Favoring Him, McKellar Says.

VALUATION CLAUSE OPPOSED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Attacks upon the sections of the Senate Finance Committee's tariff bill which deal with the Tariff Commission, and the proposal to let the commission transpose ad valorem rates into specific duties on a United States value basis, were made by Democrats today after they read the complete bill as approved by the committee Republicans.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee declared himself opposed to any change with reference to the commission except to abolish it. As far as the United States value scheme was concerned, he said, it was merely a plan to raise prices to the consuming public.

The Democratic members of the Finance Committee held another meeting during the day, but again failed to agree on definite features of their program. Five were present and these, so Senator Simmons, the minority leader, said, only discussed the bill generally.

In his criticism of the Tariff Commission change recommended by the committee Republicans, Senator McKellar said it permitted President Hoover to appoint a body favorable to him. This was an allusion to the provision that six commissioners shall be "hereafter" appointed by the President with Senatorial consent and that each member now in office shall continue to serve until his successor takes office.

This provision, Democrats assert, would allow the President to let the present commission die and to appoint new men sympathetic to his tariff views, in spite of the fact that under the bill the commission must be bi-partisan. The commission is now bi-partisan, with not more than three members of the same political party and members of different parties appointed alternately "as nearly as may be practicable."

House Made Selections Open.

The House struck out these terms and voted for a commission of seven members, with no direction in the law regarding political affiliations. The only thing mandatory about the selection of commissioners, under the House bill, was that they should be citizens of this country and, "in the judgment of the President, possessed of qualifications requisite for developing expert knowledge of tariff problems and efficiency in administering the provisions."

The Finance Committee Republicans rejected the House plan and threw the commission back to a bi-partisan body of six members, but agreed with the House that "hereafter" should be incorporated into the law.

"I am opposed to any change in the Tariff Commission law," Mr. McKellar said. "The only change that I would consider is to abolish the Tariff Commission. To the Congress of the United States is delegated by the people in our Constitution the exclusive right to deal with all matters of revenue and the Congress, in my judgment, has no right to delegate that authority to others. Our experience with tariff commissions in the past shows that they are virtually useless, with the exception that they make a very good fact-finding body.

"The only possible way that the Tariff Commission is of any value, even as a fact-finding body, is that it should be in truth and fact a bi-partisan body.

"The provision in the proposed bill puts it in the power of President Hoover to appoint a commission composed of members favorable to him. The proposition ought to be defeated, and I believe will be defeated."

Opposes New Valuation Plan.

Senator McKellar alluded to the United States value plan by the popular title of American valuation.

"I am opposed to the American valuation clause," he asserted. "The tariff is high enough now; it ought to be reduced instead of raised, and, of course, the one purpose of the American valuation clause is to raise the tariff on the consuming public of America."

After the Democratic members' meeting, Senator Simmons said he and his colleagues had dealt with controverted items of the bill, but had not taken up the administrative features.

He said that various Democrats had been assigned to study the schedules with which they were especially familiar with a view to possible amendments. There seemed no doubt that he, like other Democrats, was displeased with the Tariff Commission and the flexible tariff provisions of the measure.

Recently there have been charges that Northern Democrats thought Southern members of their party would have too much prominence in tariff making. It is said that New England Democrats have taken this position. But Mr. Simmons said that he wanted to "deal with the industries of every section" on an equal basis and without favoritism to any.

Senator Simmons and Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee have agreed that, while the tariff bill will be introduced in the Senate Sept. 4, it will not be taken up for debate until about a week later.

CELLER IN OLYMPIA PLEA.

He Hopes for Way to Accept Harden's Offer on Flagship.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Preservation of the Olympia, the flagship of Admiral Dewey, was advocated in a statement today by Representative Celler, Democrat, of New York. He hoped that some way might be found by which the government could accept the offer of Edward W. Harden of New York.

"The Navy Department states that the cost of preparing and placing the flagship in a suitable permanent location in Washington would be approximately $25,000," he said. "I am heartily in favor of proper legislation to this end."

Secretary Adams has announced that he was unable to accept Mr. Harden's offer to buy the Olympia and present it to the nation as a memorial.

SEARLES HEIR LEFT $8,317,766 ESTATE

R. F. Phifer Estate Taxable in New York Is Appraised at $1,172,834 —Sister Chief Beneficiary.

The manner in which the remaining millions of what was once the estate of Mark Hopkins of the Southern Pacific Railroad will be distributed was revealed yesterday by the filing of an appraisal of the estate of Arthur T. Walker with the State Transfer Tax Bureau in Brooklyn. Walker, confidential secretary to Edward F. Searles, inherited the bulk of the Searles estate, which Searles, in turn, had acquired by marrying Mark Hopkins's widow. The money has been fought over in the courts for half a century.

The net assets of Arthur T. Walker's estate were given as $8,317,766, the bulk of which will go to Walker's four sisters, two brothers and a niece in bequests of about a million to each. The estate was said to be between $25,000,000 and $70,000,000 when it came into Searles's hands and more than $15,000,000 when Walker came into possession of it.

To Miss Ina Cecil McEachran of 4,822 Cortland Avenue, Detroit, a niece, goes the largest share, appraised at $1,160,701, consisting of a dash legacy, furniture and one-seventh of the residuary. The brothers and sisters, each of whom is to receive $1,134,822, are Martha McBrine of 32 Maynard Avenue, Kitchener, Ontario, Canada; Frances Smith, 288 Waverly Road, Toronto, Ont.; Mary Ann Smith, Bear Line Rural Route No. 1, Dover Township, Kent County, Ont.; Eliza Irving, Rural Route No. 1, Blenheim, Ont.; David Walker, Charing Cross, Ont.; and William Walker, 227 Houstonia Avenue, Royal Oak, Mich.

$200,000 to His Secretary.

Walker appears to have remembered that he owed his wealth to his position as confidential secretary to Searles and his own secretary, Elgin E. Rudd of 225 Broadway, New York City, who is the sole executor, receives a $200,000 share. Other persons who were not related to Walker get legacies of from $25,000 to $400.

Miss McEachran was named in the will for a legacy of $25,000 but her mother, Mrs. Susan McEachran of Detroit, died after the drawing up of the will and her share reverted to the daughter.

Walker, who in 1910 became secretary to Searles at $2,500 a year, continued to live, as he expressed it, "in fifty-dollar-a-week style" even after he had come into possession of a fortune of many millions. He occupied a two-room bachelor apartment at 25 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, and was said never to have added a piece of furniture to those in the apartment from the time he inherited Searles's millions in 1920 until his own death, Aug. 7, 1927.

Settled One Suit for $4,000,000.

When Walker inherited his wealth he barricaded himself in his apartment and would see no one. His friends said that he appeared to be stunned by his sudden wealth. Relatives of Searles soon put in claims for part of the estate. None succeeded in breaking the will, but Albert Victor Searles, a nephew, brought a suit which was settled out of court for a sum in excess of $4,000,000. The University of California received a contingent bequest of $250,000.

The suit of Albert Victor Searles recalled one brought by Timothy Hopkins, adopted son of Mark Hopkins and his wife, after Searles had acquired the Hopkins wealth. Searles, an interior decorator, had married Mrs. Hopkins when she was 70 years of age and he under 50. She was the richest woman in the United States at the time. When the elderly woman left the Hopkins millions to Searles, following four years of married life, Timothy Hopkins was cut off without a cent. He contested the will and Searles settled the case out of court, paying an amount said at the time to be $3,000,000, but later put at a figure nearer $10,000,000.

An appraisal filed yesterday of the estate of Robert F. Phifer, who died Oct. 16 last, fixed the value of the estate taxable in New York at $1,285,662 gross and $1,172,834 net. Of this, $1,204,451 was in securities, including stock of the Cannon Mills Company valued at $417,560. In addition, he owned valuable property in other States. He gave $10,000 to the commissioners of Concord Cemetery, at Concord, N. H., to erect a memorial chapel, and $30,000 to the Public Library there after the death of two cousins who get the income.

The will left paintings, etchings and engravings worth $8,061 to the North Carolina State Art Society. The most valuable was a seascape by Julian Rix, appraised at $750, while two landscapes by him were valued at $250 each. Twenty water-colors signed "Phifer" were valued at $20.

Mr. Phifer left three-fourths of the residuary estate to his sister, Mrs. Sally P. Williamson of Chicago, in trust, and gave one-fourth to her son, Marshall, stipulating that if the son and two daughters of Mrs. Williamson all die without issue the entire residue, more than $1,000,000, is to go to the North Carolina State Art Society after $30,000 has been deducted for Davidson College.

GARMENT UNION WINS FIGHT

Eight Jobbers Join Association When Work Stops in 50 Cloak Shops.

By causing a stoppage of work in the shops of fifty cloak manufacturers said to be making garments for eight large non-union jobbers, the Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union yesterday forced the jobbers to join the Ladies' Merchant Garment Association, a jobbers' group which has a collective agreement with the union. The 500 employes in the manufacturers' shops then returned to work.

The victorious stoppage was hailed by the union as a demonstration of the value of the recent agreement for stabilization of the cloak and suit industry. The jobbers who joined the employers' association are now obligated to observe the forty-hour week, minimum wage scales and the requirement of cooperation with the Cloak and Suit Commission recently set up through the intervention of Governor Roosevelt.

Swordfish Wounds Fisherman, Ramming a Hole in Dory

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—As a result of a battle with a swordfish, which rammed its sword through the side of a dory and into his leg, Edward Welzow of the fishing schooner Vasco da Gama was taken to a hospital upon arrival of the schooner here today. Welzow's back was also injured in the fight with the fish.

Welzow, alone in the dory, had harpooned the fish and began to haul in the line. Suddenly the fish attacked, plunging its sword through the bow, where Welzow was standing.

The sword ripped through the dory and struck Welzow's right leg, tearing a hole in his rubber boot and penetrating the flesh. The fish withdrew with the harpoon still in it, and Welzow stuffed the hole in the dory with his coat before he collapsed. Shipmates went to his aid and he was taken aboard the schooner with his 150-pound catch.

THREE CHILDREN SHARE ESTATE OF M. A. MARSH

Melville A. Marsh, president of the A. Kimball Company, manufacturer of price-marking tickets, bequeathed most of his estate of more than $100,000 to his three children, it became known yesterday when his will was filed in Surrogate's Court. The children, who share equally in the residuary estate, are Alonzo K. Marsh, 307 West Broadway; Mrs. Dorothy M. Porter, Brookline, Mass., and Mrs. Mary M. Pope, Greenwich, Conn. The only other provision of the testament was a $2,500 life annuity for a niece, Adelaide Marsh of Summit, N. J.

The executors and trustees are the son and two sons-in-law, Henry W. Porter and Paul M. Pope.

Cyril Keighley, actor, left an estate of only $350 when he died intestate on Aug. 14, it was shown yesterday when Surrogate Foley granted letters of administration to Mrs. Isabel S. C. Wright of 620 West 135th Street, general guardian of the actor's widow, Isabel, who is under 21 years of age. Mrs. Keightley and three brothers of the decedent, John, Leo and H. R. Keightley, all of whom live in Australia, will share the estate.

Keightley, who was born fifty-three years ago in Wellington, N. S. W., Australia, was seen here in "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

COLORED ELKS END DISPUTE

Factions at Convention Agree, and Election Will Be Held Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 29.—The two factions whose wrangling has held up the procedure of the convention of the Independent Order of Colored Elks here for the last two days reached an agreement tonight. Tomorrow the election of the Grand Exalted Ruler will take place.

J. Finley Wilson of Washington, D. C., the present head of the order, named two committees, one from among his backers and one from the Chicago-New York supporters of Casper Holstein of New York. The committees granted the contention of the Holstein faction that the ballot be a secret one and recommended that the Grand Treasurer, J. C. Martin of Chicago, under suspension, be directed to file his report with the Grand Secretary for publication.

LOUIS MARSHALL BETTER.

Two Specialists Attending New York Lawyer in Zurich Dismissed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ZURICH, Aug. 29.—Encouraging improvement in the last twenty-four hours in the condition of Louis Marshall, who has been in the Cantonal Hospital here in a critical state since he underwent an operation for an abscess of the pancreas three days ago, was reported tonight by his physician, Dr. Emanuel Libman of New York.

Dr. Libman added that he hoped, if the improvement continues at the same rate, his patient would be out of danger in three or four days. The New York physician is still assisted by Dr. Clairmont, professor of surgery at the Zurich clinic, who performed the operation, but the presence of the other two specialists who were called in then is no longer considered necessary.

Dr. Libman said the aged New York attorney stood the effects of the operation better than any one expected.

Many inquiries and messages of sympathy for Mr. Marshall are being received from America. His sister, Mrs. Abraham Rosenberg of Philadelphia, who is constantly at his bedside, and his son-in-law, Billikopf, are the only persons who are allowed to see him.

MOTHER EUPHEMIA DIES IN 80TH YEAR

NOTED FOR CHARITY WORK

Had Served the Order of Jesus and Mary More Than a Half Century in Four Countries.

The Rev. Mother Euphemia, Order of Jesus and Mary, died late yesterday afternoon in her eightieth year at the Convent of Our Lady of Peace, 225 West Fourteenth Street, which she founded and where she had served as Mother Superior for eighteen years. Death followed a long illness. Burial will be at Provincial House in Sillery, Quebec. Mother Frances, now Mother Superior of the convent, will accompany the body to Canada, after a requiem mass to be celebrated in the convent chapel at 7:30 A. M. tomorrow.

Mother Euphemia was widely known for her charitable and educational work in this country, Canada, France and Italy.

Born on Dec. 25, 1849, in Quebec of a French-Canadian family of noble lineage, the reverend mother, then Catherine Letellier de St. Just, obtained her education under the order, which she entered as a novice in 1870 in Sillery. At the age of 35 she was named superior of the convent of the order in Manchester, N. H. She was superior successively of convents at Fall River, Mass.; Woonsocket, R. I., and in Canada. In 1900 she was called to France, but as the order had dispersed because of the expulsion of teaching orders, Mother Euphemia was sent to Rome. In 1902 she was ordered to New York City to start a school, but circumstances compelled the changing of the project to that of a residence for self-supporting girls and women. She served as superior of the house for the next eighteen years. In 1908 the present ten-story house, with capacity for about 200 guests, was the result of her efforts. In 1922 Mother Euphemia celebrated her golden jubilee in her order.

In 1921, her brother, the Rev. Arthur Letellier de St. Just, who built the Church of the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament at Seventy-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, died.

BEAN GROWERS ASK FARM BOARD'S AID

'$50,000,000 Corporation Could Combat Price Breaking,' Michigan Leader Says.

FURTHER LOANS SOUGHT

Colorado Association Applies for Larger Advances—Teague Recognizes Needs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Suggestions for aiding growers of small beans, among them one that a separate stabilization corporation be set up to maintain a "reasonable" price to the farmer, were taken under advisement today by the Federal Farm Board.

The board announced, after a committee of Michigan State officials and growers appeared, that it had been advised of various problems affecting the marketing of the product.

Peter Lennon, State Senator and farmer, of Lennon, Michigan, said he had suggested a stabilization corporation which would prevent price-breaking.

"With $50,000,000 such a corporation could buy all the beans produced in the country, at $5 a bushel," Mr. Lennon said, "and with its assistance the farmer could combat price-breaking."

The Michigan committee, headed by H. E. Powell, Commissioner of Agriculture, told the board that about 60 per cent of the white navy beans produced in the United States were grown in Michigan. He said this year's crop, almost cut in half by drought, will not exceed 5,000,000 bushels.

Joe Plummer, president of the Colorado Growers' Association, made application for supplemental loans to enable his association to make larger advances to growers.

C. C. Teague of the board recognized the need of the growers for assistance, adding, however, that the conferences today were chiefly for the purpose of exchanging information.

Giving assurance that Western wreat operatives have not rejected the proposed stabilization corporation, Mr. Teague said that operatives in Chicago yesterday discussed a plan which was only tentative. He said the board members here had not been advised of a refusal of the operatives to accept the plan.

NEAR 100 HOURS IN AIR.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP).—Whirling in great circles above the New York State Fair Grounds here, the Empire State Standard, piloted by Clyde E. Pangborn and Carl A. Dixon, tonight roared toward the 100-hour-mark in the fliers' efforts to set a new refueling endurance record. At 7 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, they had been in the air eighty hours, having taken off at 11:04:37 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, Monday.

Pangborn and Dixon in notes said they were reaching a routine stage and that regular hours of sleep now were a thing within reason. They alternate at the controls and to while away the long hours play cards, write letters and read newspapers.

The plane was refueled early in the evening to give Governor Roosevelt an opportunity of watching the contact. The Governor upon his arrival at the Fair Grounds sent the following message to the fliers:

"I wish you the fullest measure of success and good luck. You have provided pleasure and interest for many thousands at the New York State Fair."

TRIAL OF EATON CASE DEFERRED IN LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Ronald Bateman, a former Guardsman, and James Moore appeared in Marlborough police court today in connection with the alleged attack on Philip Eaton, Massachusetts schoolmaster, in a Mayfair flat on Aug. 12.

Bateman was charged with wounding Eaton with intent to murder and robbing him, while Moore faced charges of stealing and receiving various articles from Eaton's flat, and assisting Bateman to evade arrest.

The prosecuting counsel said he was unable to open the case today as the injured man was not yet able to make a statement, after which the magistrate remanded the prisoners for trial until Sept. 5.

Detective Bradley described the condition of Eaton's bedroom in his apartment in Half Moon Street after the attack. Bed clothes, furniture, walls and carpets were spattered with blood. The room appeared to have been ransacked. The detective produced broken pieces of a heavy chair and pointed to blood stains.

Dr. James V. Broad, a surgeon at St. George's Hospital, testified that when Mr. Eaton was admitted on Aug. 13, he was suffering severe injuries and shock with wounds on the face and head. The American was not properly examined, the doctor said, because "he was in a dangerous condition" and it was "necessary to put him to bed at once."

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal court yesterday by counsel for Waterson, Berlin Snyder & Co., music publishers of 1,587 Broadway. The petition, signed by Henry Waterson, president of the company, says that the company "owes debts which it is unable to pay in full," and that it is willing to surrender all its property for the benefit of its creditors, except such as is exempt by law.

The petition also says that the company is unable to file schedules owing to its inability to determine the correct amount of its indebtedness.

The difficulties of the company, it was reported, were largely due to the "rise of the radio with the development of talking and singing pictures and the use of theme songs."

In April, 1924, the company sued in the Federal Court to restrain Gene Buck, as president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, from printing, selling, broadcasting or otherwise using the song "Maybe," a musical composition belonging to the plaintiff. An order was also sought to compel the defendant to account for all licenses issued permitting the broadcasting of plaintiff's songs.

The plaintiff alleged then that during 1922 and later the establishment of large broadcasting stations and the practice of using songs and musical compositions for broadcasting purposes had greatly increased the value of the plaintiff's copyrights.

saying, "Fashions change, but feet do not; it is my feet that I want fitted, whatever the fashion may be."

Fashions are fitful and ever changing and sometimes hideously unfit for universal acceptance.

The chief idea and intent of this establishment is to be a faithful servant to the people who come to us and to suit these people with what they ought to have rather than just make sales as quickly as possible, which was the old fashion.

FEDERAL DRY CHIEF RETORTS TO WHALEN

CALLS THEM RESPONSIBLE

NEED OF MORE MEN SEEN

Denial Made That Effort Is Made to Pass Enforcement "Buck" to the City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Treasury authorities were somewhat chagrined, although not entirely surprised, at the letter written by Police Commissioner Whalen of New York in which that official notified Prohibition Administrator Campbell that it was his duty to prosecute offenses against the dry law falling within the class described as "nuisances" and that under no circumstances would the Federal unit be permitted to "pass the buck" to the New York City Government.

Officials here declare that if the up-State authorities follow the lead of Commissioner Whalen and ignore the plea of the Treasury Department that they take over the prosecution of speakeasies and roadhouses in the light of the Court of Appeals decision holding that such agencies may be closed by the State as "nuisances" under Section 5,530 of the penal code, the problem of "drying up" New York will be as far away from a solution as ever.

When Mr. Campbell announced on Sunday that he had notified District Attorney Banton and Commissioner Whalen that henceforth he would bring to the attention of State prosecuting officers in the Second Federal Prohibition District all complaints submitted to him wherein it might be construed that the offenses constituted a nuisance under Section 1,530 the Treasury made it known that the move had its approval.

To Confer on Action Up-State.

It was also made known that the Treasury had detailed Ray Hardenbrook, a special customs officer, to confer with District Attorneys and judges up-State with a view to determining whether they would cooperate in prosecuting "nuisance" offenses against Section 1,530 involving the illicit liquor traffic.

"I have read the statement of Police Commissioner Whalen in which he refuses to take any part in suppressing speakeasies and roadhouses, and suggests that the matter should be handled by the Federal authorities," said Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement and a former Lieutenant Governor of New York.

"Section 1,530 of the penal law of the State of New York is not a Federal statute but a State statute. Under this section the New York State Court of Appeals, in the case of the People vs. Alsder, Judge Vanderwater held that the District Attorney can suppress speakeasies and roadhouses as nuisances.

"The Federal Prohibition Bureau has no authority to compel District Attorneys and peace officers to perform their duties under this law. But if they fail to do so and such roadhouses and speakeasies are permitted to run, then the responsibility is theirs."

Federal Units Will Prosecute.

It may be said upon authority that if Police Commissioner Whalen and other New York State officials fail to prosecute speakeasies, roadhouses and other "nuisances" concerned in the sale of liquor, prosecution in these cases will be instituted by the Federal units in the State to the full limit of their resources in men and money.

The refusal of Commissioner Whalen to cooperate with the Federal dry administrator in New York is the first direct rebuff to the Federal Government since it renewed its endeavors in July to persuade authorities of the States, notably those that are classified as "wet," to give a larger measure of cooperation in the enforcement of prohibition.

Treasury officials await a report from Special Agent Hardenbrook on the results of his mission up State to sound prosecuting officers in that area as to what their attitude will be toward prohibition in view of the decision of the Court of Appeals holding speakeasies to be nuisances.

If Mr. Hardenbrook should report that up-State prosecuting officers and judges are of the same mind on the subject as Police Commissioner Whalen, the chances are that ultimately more money and men will be diverted for purposes of prohibition enforcement throughout the State.

Earlier in the week, in discussing Administrator Campbell's new policy, Assistant Secretary Lowman made it clear that if State officials refused to proceed against "wet" nuisances, the Treasury Department would have no alternative but to take cognizance of them itself. At the same time Secretary Lowman said that a Treasury circular had been sent out in July to administrators in all States urging them to determine to what extent the States could be persuaded to take over the prosecution of nuisance offenses against the prohibition law.

More State Aid Sought.

It apparently is the policy of the Hoover Administration to pass to the States a larger burden of responsibility in the enforcement of prohibition. This was indicated in a recent speech of Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran at the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, in which he said it was the function of the Federal government to deal with smuggling and the sources of supply and the duty of the States to look after the local violations.

This, he said, would relieve the congestion of Federal court dockets and limit the bureau in Washington to use its force in locating and prosecuting organized conspiracies against the law. A like resolution of the problem was suggested by George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Hoover Law Enforcement Investigation Commission, in his letter to Governor Roosevelt of New York, read at the Governors' Conference in New London, Conn., on July 16.

While Federal officials do not say so publicly, they indicate privately that if conditions continue as at present in New York and other so-called "wet" States, appropriations for dry law enforcement, now approximating $42,000,000 a year, will have to be vastly increased by Congress. In testimony before the House Appropriations Committee a year ago Commissioner Doran made the statement that "police" regulation of prohibition by the Federal government would cost about $300,000,000 a year.

Standard of New York to Cut Gasoline Price 3 Cents Today

A price cut of 3 cents a gallon for gasoline of the Standard Oil Company of New York is to become effective today, it was learned last night from unofficial sources. The cut is understood to be in tank wagon prices, and will be passed on to motorists in a lowering of the price of gasoline at the filling stations to 18 cents a gallon.

The lowered price is said to be the Standard Oil's answer to recent price-slashing by various rival companies and by the local retailers about New York.

CAMPBELL HITS BACK AT WHALEN'S CHARGE

Federal Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell retorted yesterday to Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen by suggesting that he was a "champion" at "buck passing."

In a prepared comment on the Police Commissioner's letter to him, Mr. Campbell argued that Mr. Whalen was inconsistent and illogical in refusing to have the police investigate complaints against speakeasies, although admitting that speakeasies were nuisances conducted in violation of the State law. To Mr. Whalen's charge that he was "passing the buck" to State law-enforcing officers the prohibition administrator replied:

"If there has been any 'buck passing' the commissioner has proved himself a champion."

Mr. Campbell declared that he agreed with District Attorney Elvin H. Edwards of Nassau County that district attorneys had the right to indict the police for willful failure to obtain evidence against speakeasies, and in his concluding paragraph he made the suggestion that the public demand such action in New York City if the police ignored speakeasy violations.

Mr. Campbell's comment follows:

"I have just received the letter from the Police Commissioner published in this morning's papers and will answer it in a day or so.

"At this time my only comment is that the commissioner's letter disclosed to the public his attitude with regard to criminal violations of the State laws. He recognizes the fact, which I originally brought to his attention, that Section 1530 of the State Penal law is applicable to speakeasy nuisances, and through his conference yesterday with the several District Attorneys and magistrates in Greater New York he has set up machinery and procedure that I, as a Federal officer, and in the status of a private citizen, might use to enforce a State law but which he refuses to use himself.

"I had thought it was the duty of the Police Commissioner to enforce all sections of the State criminal law, but he appears to regard it as my duty, rather than his, to enforce Section 1530 and investigate complaints applicable to it.

"The police are at present raiding numerous speakeasies, arresting proprietors thereof and arraigning them for prosecution in the United States district courts, apparently under instructions from the commissioner himself. The commissioner now suggests that prisoners arrested by my agents for conducting speakeasy nuisances be arraigned before police magistrates for violation of Section 1530 of the State Penal law and yet he does not see fit to prosecute similar cases investigated by his own force in the same manner. It seems incongruous for State officers to arraign their prisoners in Federal courts and for Federal officers, in similar cases, to arraign their prisoners in State courts.

"There has been at no time any intimation on my part to evade responsibility imposed upon me by my oath of office to enforce the national prohibition act, and I will be as energetic in the prosecution of speakeasy proprietors in the Federal courts in the future as I have been in the past.

"In my letter to District Attorney Banton and my action in forwarding complaints to the Police Commissioner, I endeavored to perform my duty by advising the State authorities of the possible violation of a State law and never suggested a suspension of my own actions.

"The commissioner called a conference of District Attorneys at which the acting chief magistrate was present, the apparent purpose being to determine a simple matter of police policy. This conference apparently decided that speakeasies are nuisances conducted in violation of the State law; that the Federal Government may institute appropriate proceedings under the State law to close them, but that the Police Department of the metropolitan district should do nothing whatsoever about it.

"If there has been any 'buck passing' the commissioner has proved himself a champion.

"I agree with Elvin H. Edwards, District Attorney of Nassau County, who publicly said yesterday that the speakeasy problem must be attacked through the State nuisance law and that District Attorneys throughout the State had the right to demand that the police procure evidence again speakeasies or be indicted for willful failure to do so.

"The police of New York City have ample evidence of speakeasy violations under the State nuisance law, and if they fail to present the same to the several District Attorneys the public should demand action from the District Attorneys in line with the suggestion made by the District Attorney of Nassau County."

When Mr. Campbell's statement was shown to him Mr. Whalen said he had no comment to make.

Banker Found Shot to Death.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 29 (AP).—With a bullet wound in his head and a pistol lying by his side, the body of Henry B. Crowell, 58, vice president of the Columbus Bank and Trust Company, was found in his backyard by his chauffeur this morning. A neighbor t ,tified at the inquest that he had heard a pistol shot about 2 o'clock this morning. No reason has been assigned for Crowell's death.

500 SPECIAL TRAINS FOR HOLIDAY EXODUS

HEAVY INFLUX MONDAY

More than 500 special trains have been arranged by the railroads serving New York City to handle the last great holiday exodus of the Summer season, it was learned yesterday. The traffic, always extraordinarily heavy over the Labor Day week-end, also will be augmented on Monday by thousands of campers and Summer vacationists who wish to be home immediately after Labor Day.

The outgoing traffic, which begins to flow through the city's terminals today, will reach its peak tomorrow, according to traffic managers, while Monday night is expected to be the peak for home-coming holiday-makers. By Tuesday night the rush will have spent itself entirely.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, serving New England, announced that it would run 144 extra trains and sections, besides 390 extra cars attached to trains running on the usual schedule. Since it connects New York City with northeastern railroads, it is counting on bringing some 14,000 children who have been to Summer camps to New York on Labor Day, in addition to its holiday business.

Extra Trains Scheduled.

This road's schedule, typical of others, showed that it would send thirty-six trains from New York today, thirty-three tomorrow and four on Sunday. It will have seventy-one extra trains returning to New York on Monday.

The New York Central's service to the west and north also has been augmented to care for extra business, and although no definite figures were available yesterday as to its arrangement, this road is among the leaders in its bulk of holiday travel.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, with 108 extra trains in addition to an unlisted number of extra sections of regular trains, announced that the major part of its special equipment would be in service to Atlantic City, Long Branch, Philadelphia and Washington. The Atlantic City Limited, usually operated to Atlantic City on Friday only, will be run tomorrow, and three special Sunday trains from Atlantic City will be operated Monday evening. These, like all other limited trains on the various lines, will operate in two or more sections.

Excursions to Niagara.

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad will add fifty trains to its regular week-end service, according to W. F. Griffith's, passenger traffic manager, who said that the Labor Day week-end usually represents the road's greatest holiday travel.

While this road serves much of the territory also touched by the New York Central and Pennsylvania systems, it is offering special excursions to Niagara Falls as a principal feature of its holiday preparations. The Falls trains will leave today and tomorrow and holders of excursion tickets will return on Tuesday morning.

The Jersey Central Railroad already has announced ninety extra trains as its holiday quota. The Lehigh Valley Railroad, while not announcing extra trains, will add several sections to its established trains, it was said yesterday.

The regiment, which is now at Camp Smith, the Croton Fire Department, Holy Name Society, Village Fathers, Board of Education and Croton Rotary Club will take part in the ceremony.

CITIZENS UNION LAUDS FINCH AND CALLAGHAN

Statement Urges Renomination of Two Republican Justices by Both Parties.

The Citizens Union issued a statement yesterday urging the renomination by both major parties of Supreme Court Justices Edward R. Finch, in the First Judicial District, and Stephen Callaghan in the Second Judicial District. Representative F. H. LaGuardia, Republican designee for Mayor, has been advocating endorsement of these two Republican judges by the Democrats and has proposed to make an issue of the reported intention of John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, to refuse to endorse Justice Callaghan.

The Citizens Union's statement said:

"The union recently made a canvass among lawyers and laymen for information concerning the qualifications and work of judges whose terms are expiring this year. This disclosed an unusual unanimity of opinion in favor of the re-election of both these officials.

"The continuance in office of Justices Finch and Callaghan is desired by an overwhelming majority of the members of the bar. They also command the respect of a host of laymen who know and honor them for their integrity and usefulness as citizens.

"Both have served full terms on the bench, Justice Callaghan having served in a lower court before elevation to his present office.

"There should be no partisan quibbling in these two instances. Judicial service cannot be measured by any party test and the public is becoming more and more alive to the necessity of preventing the imposing of any such test."

GLENNON COTTAGE BURNS.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Grandview, the Summer home of Judge Edward J. Glennon of New York, was destroyed by fire this morning. Members of the family, including Mrs. Glennon and Misses Janet, Dorothy, Edith and Gertrude Glennon and Miss Virginia Egan of New York, a guest, made their way to safety.

The cottage, the largest of the colony at Hotel Champlain, Bluff Point, was of wooden construction. The fire was thought to be due to crossed wires. Much of the family's personal property was saved.

Notorious Bank Robber Shot to Death After He Kills Two Tulsa Policemen

By The Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 29 (AP).—The colorful career of Dick Gregg, notorious outlaw of the Southwest, was ended abruptly today in a gun fight on the outskirts of Tulsa which also claimed the lives of two Tulsa County highway patrolmen.

Ross Darrow and Link Bowline, the officers, lost their lives in an effort to bring to justice the man wanted for a number of bank robberies in Oklahoma and Kansas. One of them was killed after Gregg himself had been mortally wounded.

The shooting occurred just at the edge of Tulsa on the Sand Springs Highway when the two officers, who apparently were expecting Gregg alone, met him, face to face, with a companion.

A woman who witnessed the shooting said that Gregg brought his automobile to a stop and one of the officers jumped to the running board of the car while the other started to turn the officers' machine around and drive up alongside the fugitive. The officer covered Gregg with a gun, but Gregg whipped out his pistol and shot him down.

Just as the shooting started the other officer drove up and opened fire on the bandit who returned the fire before falling. Both fell, dying. Gregg's companion fled when the shooting started but was arrested a short time later by a city motorcycle officer. He said his name was Bob Dyer.

Gregg and the two officers were rushed to a hospital but all were dead when they arrived there.

Dyer, an Indian, about 35 years old, of Pawhuska, who was held in the county jail, said he came here last night from Pawhuska with Gregg and drove around with him. They took their motor car to a local garage for repairs this morning, he said. Officers said they had found no police record for Dyer.

Gregg was being sought in connection with the hold-up of the Peoples State Bank of Wichita, Kan., July 26, and the robbery of at least three banks in Oklahoma. He escaped from the Osage County jail at Pawhuska in 1927, after being taken there from the Kansas State Penitentiary to testify for the State in one of the Osage Indian murder trials. He had been a fugitive from justice since that time.

LAGUARDIA ASSERTS HE SHAPES ISSUES

BENNETT ASSAILS BOTH

Declares Police Head's Decision Is Equivalent to Secession of City From United States.

Credit for shaping the policies of the city administration was taken yesterday by Representative LaGuardia, Republican designee for Mayor, in commenting upon Police Commissioner Whalen's refusal to comply with the request of Federal Prohibition Administrator Campbell and undertake the responsibility of enforcement by proceeding against the speakeasies under the State nuisance law.

"It was just what I expected," Mr. LaGuardia said. "I decided this particular issue for the city administration fifteen days ago. Of course, city officials representing the judiciary and the prosecuting and police departments had to go into a huddle yesterday on the matter of the speakeasies to make it look right.

"I had previously explained that enforcement of the prohibition law is a matter for Federal and not State prosecution. That's where the administration got its decision to reject Mr. Campbell's proposal that prohibition violations in New York should be prosecuted under the State public nuisance law. That is one of the many indications that I am shaping the issues of the administration right now."

William M. Bennett, dry candidate for the Republican nomination against Major LaGuardia, declared that Commissioner Whalen's decision was equivalent to "the secession of New York City from the United States," and asserted that Major LaGuardia's comment upon it showed that there was no contest between him and Mayor Walker on the speakeasy issue.

"The issue is sharply drawn," Mr. Bennett said. "Mr. LaGuardia admits that he will not close the speakeasies, and Mr. Whalen, Mayor Walker's Police Commissioner, says he will not close them.

"I pledge myself, if elected, to close the speakeasies, which are simply the breeding places of crime and which ruin legitimate business in their neighborhoods. This is not a dry issue nor a prohibition issue It is not only a moral issue but an economic issue of greater importance than the entire budget of the city of New York.

"If we assume that Grover Whalen's 32,000 speakeasies average $100 a day in receipts, that amounts to a total of $3,200,000 a day, or $1,168,000,000 a year. Ten per cent of this amount, which would be a moderate 'rake-off for protection,' would amount to $116,800,000, a sum beyond the dreams of avarice. This would leave $1,051,000,000 a year going into the coffers of the speakeasies for nothing of value. If the speakeasies were closed this money would go either into the savings banks or would be spent for clothing, food or other products of legitimate business.

"This election will serve to show the United States and the whole world whether or not New York City wants the Rothstein, Yale, Marlow and Diamond gangs to rule this city."

Lower Cable Rates to the Orient.

The Western Union Telegraph Company announced yesterday that, effective on Sept. 1, reductions will be made of 7 cents per word in the cable rate to the Philippines, 5 cents per word to Japan, Formosa, Corea and a number of Pacific Islands, and 2 cents per word to the Hawaiian Islands.

MRS. VON WIEN LEVY TRIES TO END LIFE

CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Mrs. Florence von Wien Levy, playwright and wife of William Auerbach Levy, etcher and caricaturist, was still in a critical condition, although slightly improved, last night in St. Vincent's Hospital following a determined effort to end her life yesterday morning.

After having walked the streets in a fit of despondency in the early morning hours she threw herself in front of a northbound Sixth Avenue elevated train from the Eighth Street platform.

She landed on the tracks with her body under the overhang of the platform. The trucks of the first car passed over her feet. Then, still conscious, she pulled herself upright by grasping an insulated cable at the side of the track and flung herself to the street thirty feet below.

She refused to identify herself after she had been taken to the hospital, and it was only after her father, Maurice von Wien, physical culture expert of Jamaica, visited the hospital that her name was known. Mr. von Wien said that his daughter had suffered for some time from a physical and mental breakdown; that she had been greatly depressed and had several times threatened to kill herself.

Mrs. Levy is 32 years old, and her marriage to the young artist ten years ago attracted considerable attention. They have no children. Recently they have lived at the Washington Square Studios, 46 Washington Square. Mr. Levy had been in Europe, Mr. von Wien said, but returned yesterday.

At 2 A. M. yesterday Mrs. Levy rose while her husband was sleeping, dressed becomingly in black and slipped out of the house. At 3:15 she climbed the stairs to the elevated station platform.

The platform was deserted except for Miss Edith Corning of 58 West Eighty-seventh Street, who was waiting for a train. Miss Corning saw Mrs. Levy walk up and down the platform before the train arrived, but noticed no indication of emotion.

Mrs. Levy jumped in front of the train when it was only a few feet from her. Motorman Edward Tracy applied the brakes but could not stop it in time.

She was rushed to the hospital, where her feet were amputated. Search of her effects for identifying papers revealed only a note to her husband, written in pencil on an envelope, saying: "Billy: I loved you always."

Mr. Levy discovered that his wife was gone early in the morning and telephoned her father. Mr. von Wien went to the Mercer Street station to report her disappearance and was told there that a woman whose description corresponded with that of his daughter was then in St. Vincent's Hospital.

BYRD RADIO TEST 'GOOD.'

'Moderate Fading' Noted in Experiment at Wednesday Night.

A report by the General Electric laboratories at Schenectady, N. Y., yesterday said that the short-wave transmission sent out on Wednesday night by Commander Byrd's station, WFA, at Little America, was successfully observed between 8 and 8:15 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, on about 22 meters. It was termed "good, with moderate fading."

The broadcast from Commander Byrd's camp was sent out to test "radio dead-spots and fading." It is to be continued at about 7 o'clock tonight, Eastern Daylight Time, with another broadcast, which will be intercepted by KDKA and rebroadcast back to the Antartic station on another short wave length.

SIXTH JUROR CHOSEN FOR STRIKERS' TRIAL

NEW PANEL OF 300 CALLED

By JOSEPH SHAPLEN,
Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 29.—Three more jurors were added today to the three chosen yesterday in the trial of sixteen Communists and strikers for the murder of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia.

With the special panel of 200 approaching exhaustion, it became necessary to draw an additional venire of 300, and the indications were that the stubborn battle being put up by both sides as to who should sit in the jury box would delay the presentation of evidence until early next week.

The three chosen today were C. W. Martin, a union man, member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners; J. G. Campbell, a newsvender, who declared that labor had a right to organize because "this is a free country," and J. W. Hicks, a young mill worker, formerly a member of the United Textile Workers of America, the organization which has led a number of recent strikes in Southern cotton mills.

Hicks said that he had taken part in a strike some years ago. Both Martin and Hicks assured the court that their affiliation with the American Federation of Labor organizations would in no way prejudice their minds against members of the National Textile Workers' Union, the Communist organization to which the defendants belong.

All three new jurymen were accepted by the defense with obvious alacrity. Hicks went into the jury box following a consultation between members of defense counsel and the defendants. When the court clerk, repeating the formula, asked the defendants, "Do you like him?" there was a loud "yea!" from Tom P. Jimson, the former Baptist minister, who wears a flaming red tie and a red flower in his coat lapel.

Mr. Jimson today conducted the examination of prospective jurymen for the defense, assisted by the tall, suave, dignified Thaddeus A. Adams and the round, determined Arthur Garfield Hays of New York.

Governor's Kin Aids State.

For the prosecution the examination was conducted by A. G. Mangum, assisted by Clyde R. Hoey, brother-in-law of Governor O. M. Gardner. Mr. Hoey, called one of the South's leading political orators, has long, iron-gray hair falling down almost to his shoulders, and looks like John C. Calhoun.

In his laped there is an inevitable rose. He was one of the strongest partisans of Alfred E. Smith in the last Presidential campaign. The prosecution is reported to rely upon him to make the final appeal to the jury.

Martin, the second man called up for interrogation, was picked for the jury not more than fifteen minutes after court convened this morning. A short while after he took his seat in the jury box came Campbell, a fiery little man, who with arms akimbo showed great relish in telling the court and counsel that nobody ever made up his mind for him and that so far as he was concerned no defendant was guilty until proved so beyond a reasonable doubt.

The news vender put on an amusing entertainment, which had to be stopped by Judge M. V. Barnhill upon protest from Solicitor John G. Carpenter, in charge of the prosecution. Campbell's comment was a fierce and glowering look in the direction of the tall, immaculately attired, soft-voiced Mr. Carpenter.

Like the other five jurors chosen, Hicks maintained that he could give the defendants an absolutely impartial trial.

All the jurors declared that they believed in the right of a man to kill in defense of his life and property if the situation warranted. They declared their belief applied also in the case of an attack or invasion by police officers not armed with warrants.

This is the situation which, according to the defense, prevailed at union headquarters in Gastonia on the night of June 7, when Aderholt was killed in a disturbance arising from the strike at the Loray Mill.

"I don't see how all of them could be guilty," said Martin in reply to a question from Mr. Jimson. Martin said that the Communist and radical views of the defendants would have no effect upon his mind, nor would the fact that Fred Erwin Beal, leading defendant, and some of his associates were from the North.

"Sure, labor has a right to organize—this is a free country," piped out the peppery Campbell.

The political and religious views of the defendants would have no bearing on his verdict, Campbell declared, although he informed the court that "I've belonged to the Newell Presbyterian Church ever since I was a little boy with short cotton pants on."

Personal Views Enter In.

In general today's examination of jurors revealed the same division of opinion among the veniremen as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants as yesterday, except that the questions of communism, radicalism and atheism played a larger part in the examination.

Few of the veniremen failed to express their views boldly and frankly. There was a greater number of those who declared they believed some defendants guilty, and Beal was singled out by many as the man they had in mind.

On the other hand, there were again quite a number who proclaimed their belief in the innocence of the accused, notably C. H. James, a machinist, formerly a member of the International Association of Machinists. James declared that under no circumstances would he vote for conviction.

Shortly before adjournment Mr. Hays ran afoul of the court when one man declared he believed all of the defendants guilty. Injecting himself into the examination, he jumped up and turning to Sophie Melvin, the youngest of the defendants, ordered her to stand up, at the same time asking the man:

"Do you believe this little girl guilty of murder?"

Among the men whom Judge Barnhill excused for cause was a member of the National Guard of North Carolina who served in the Gastonia strike when Governor Gardner sent in troops after the wrecking of the strike headquarters and the strike relief store by mobs.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 29.—President Hoover opened up a Xmas tree for the politicians when he suggested that all government land be turned back to the State in which it was located.

Just announce that there is something going to be divided up and you got the whole nation interested in national affairs. Announce there is something to pay and you got one hundred and ten million anarchists on your hands, so Mr. Hoover is becoming a politician fast.

I don't know how bad the Federal Government manages the land, but as bad as they do it, it can only be one forty-eighth as bad as the States will do it.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—Claremore, Okla., is just waiting for a high-tension line so they can go ahead with locating an airport.

Brooklyn Grand Jurors Find Atlantic City Trust Company Misled Government.

EXECUTIVE ALSO ACCUSED

Federal Body Wants Data Sent to Proper District for Possible Criminal Action.

A presentment charging the Bankers Trust Company of Atlantic City and Oliver C. Core, vice president of the institution, with conspiring to conceal the assets of the late John M. Phillips, Queens sewer pipe contractor, was handed up to Judge Martineau yesterday by a Federal grand jury in Brooklyn.

The jury charged that the bank and its officers hid the fact that hundreds of thousands of dollars belonging to the estate of Phillips had been placed in a safe deposit box in the bank. The presentment followed a secret inquiry into the location of wealth believed to have been hidden by the contractor before his death.

The grand jury further charged that deposits and withdrawals of large portions of the Phillips estate were permitted by the bank and its officers after they had been informed that a lien had been placed on all of Phillips's possessions pending the settlement of a suit for $1,300,000 which the government contended Phillips owed for unpaid income taxes. The lien was filed by Warren G. Price, Collector of Internal Revenue in Brooklyn in the United States District Court in that borough in March, 1928.

The presentment also alleges that during its investigation the grand jury learned that Francis Phillips, son of the sewer pipe contractor, who was killed recently in an airplane accident, was permitted to lease a safe deposit box at the Bankers' Trust Company under a fictitious name and that Core sold a quantity of bonds for Francis Phillips and maintained two speculative stock accounts for him, and that Core denied knowledge of these transactions to government officials.

The grand jury investigation was conducted by Assistant United States Attorney James E. Wilkinson. The principal witnesses were Mr. Core, Emerson L. Richards, former State Senator of New Jersey and president of the Atlantic City Bank, and Clifton E. Turner, president of the Highway Improvement and Repair Company of 50 Church Street, Manhattan, who was a close friend of John M. Phillips and guardian for Francis Phillips.

In conclusion, the grand jury suggested that inasmuch as none of the overt acts was committed within the Eastern District of New York a further investigation be held by the Intelligence Unit and that if necessary a further grand jury inquiry be held to gather all evidence together and forward it to the proper Federal district for possible prosecution.

Mr. Wilkinson in discussing the presentment yesterday said: "This is not the only lead the government has concerning the wealth of John M. Phillips. Anybody that we find aiding in the concealment of the assets of John M. Phillips will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. But if those who have aided the Phillips family in the past will come forward and tell all they know to the government, the attitude of the government may be altered in respect to them. The government is determined not to rest until the entire estate of Phillips is found. The government is sticking doggedly to its task."

Core Silent on Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 29.—Oliver C. Core, vice president of the Bankers Trust Company of this city, refused to comment today on charges by the Federal grand jury of New York that officials of the bank, including himself, had concealed their knowledge of Phillips's affairs from government officials. He referred all inquiries to State Senator Emerson L. Richards, president of the bank.

Mr. Richards is in Toronto and will not return to this city for several days.

Max Grossman, another vice president of the Bankers Trust Company, said that the bank had merely followed the practice of good banking in protecting the deposits of their clients. He declared that they had not revealed to the United States Government that there was a Phillips account in the bank, until the government had shown that the money placed there had been the property of the late John M. Phillips.

Actions Filed on Shoe Strikers.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 29 (AP).—A bill in equity was filed and three injunctions asked today by shoe factories affected by the strike members of the United Shoe Workers' Union of Salem and Beverly. About 2,000 workers are out. The Herrick Shoe Company, which had already obtained an injunction restraining the strikers from interference with its business, filed a bill in equity charging the injunction was being violated by the strikers. Injunctions restraining the strikers from interfering with the conduct of their businesses were asked for by the Donn D. Sargent Company, the Bond Shoe Company and the Leopold Shoe Company.

MANCUSO TESTIFIES ON CITY TRUST DEAL

DI PAOLA RESUMES STORY

He Will Be Recalled Again When the Investigation Is Reconvened Next Wednesday.

Judge Francis X. Mancuso of the Court of General Sessions, who was chairman of the board of the City Trust Company when the bank failed last February with a loss of more than $5,000,000, testified for an hour and fifteen minutes yesterday before the extraordinary grand jury which is investigating the collapse of the bank.

It was Judge's Mancuso's second appearance before the grand jury. He entered the grand jury room smiling and came out the same way.

Neither Judge Mancuso, Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings nor Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd would discuss the nature of his testimony. It was understood, however, that Judge Mancuso was questioned regarding the sale of the building at 2,113 Second Avenue by the late Francesco M. Ferrari to the City Trust Company. Ferrari was president of the bank and it is alleged he sold the building for about three times what it was worth.

Says He Opposed Deal.

It was learned that Judge Mancuso informed the grand jury that he and the oth directors protested against the transaction when it was pending. He is said to have testified he personally opposed the purchase of the building by the City Trust Company. Not only was Judge Mancuso questioned regarding the transaction by the prosecutors, but several members of the grand jury interrogated him. It was recalled that Judge Mancuso once before, in his testimony before Moreland Commissioner Robert Moses, declared he and the other directors were opposed to Ferrari selling the building to the bank.

It was in connection with this real estate deal that former State Superintendent of Banks Frank H. Warder was indicted earlier in the week. One of three indictments accused Mr. Warder of having accepted a $25,000 gratuity from Mr. Ferrari for approving the deal.

Mr. Warder is at liberty on $35,000 bail. He is scheduled to appear this afternoon before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins in the Criminal Courts Building on the question of motions in connection with the indictments and his plea of not guilty. James I. Cuff, former Assistant District Attorney in Brooklyn, is counsel for Mr. Warder.

Mancuso Meets Di Paola.

As he was about to enter the grand jury room Judge Mancuso met Anthony Di Paola, former cashier and treasurer of the City Trust Company, who had preceded him as a witness. Di Paola, who was held in the preliminary investigation for the action of the grand jury, has turned State's evidence and is said to be furnishing the grand jury with the inside story of the bank's failure.

"Hello, Judge," remarked Di Paola.

"Hello, Tony," replied Judge Mancuso.

Di Paola continued his story, giving details of the transactions which led to the collapse of the bank. He is said also to have denied that he forged any of the records of the meetings of the directors. Di Paola is to testify again next week.

Other witnesses before the grand jury yesterday included George A. Porter, a bank examiner, and Margaret Kennedy, a stenographer in the State Banking Department.

The grand jury adjourned until next Wednesday. It is expected that additional indictments will be returned next week.

FARM BOARD MEMBERS TO BE HOOVER GUESTS

Largest Party of Season Will Spend Week-End at President's Rapidan Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—President and Mrs. Hoover and their younger son, Allan, will be accompanied to the Hoover Summer camp in Virginia tomorrow by the largest week-end party that the Hoovers have entertained there so far this season. Nineteen guests will go to the President's Rapidan retreat. Most of the members of the party, including the President, plan to remain in Virginia over Labor Day.

Inasmuch as the President has invited five members of the Federal Farm Board to go on the party, it is assumed that he purposes to discuss questions now under consideration by that agency. The Farm Board members who have accepted invitations are Chairman Alexander H. Legge, C. C. Teague, C. B. Denman, Charles S. Wilson and Carl Williams. All the board members except Mr. Legge will be accompanied by their wives. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde is to be a guest.

Mrs. Jane Large, sister of Mrs. Hoover; Miss Janet Large and Master Delano Large also will be in the party. Others invited are John Beaver White and Miss White of Philadelphia, Mark Sullivan and Miss Sullivan of Washington, Walter Newton, secretary to the President, and Dr. Joel T. Boone, White House physician.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Generally Firm, Trading Less Active—Call Money Again 9 Per Cent.

The report on brokers' loans, issued as usual after the closing of the market yesterday, showed further increase of $122,000,000; making the past fortnight's addition $265,000,000, which has not been equaled in any previous corresponding period except the two final weeks of last November. The increase during the past twelve months is now nearly two billions—in exact figures, $1,982,000,000, of which $1,561,000,000 has occurred through loans by other than New York and out-of-town banks and $421,000,000 through loans by those institutions. Since the high point of November's excited market, there has been a net expansion in these credits of $823,000,000, and they are almost exactly double those of this week in August, two years ago; the addition during that period having been $3,003,000,000.

These are at least highly interesting comparisons. The Federal Reserve System's report showed continued purchase of acceptance bills, the bulk of the $24,000,000 increase for the week occurring elsewhere than at the New York bank. Presumably the increase in loans on bankers' acceptances, which has amounted for the whole Reserve System to $90,000,000 since the early part of July, has been an influence in holding the sterling market steady.

The day's stock market was pretty much devoid of incident, a fact which Wall Street ascribed to the impending triple holiday. Generally, the trend of prices was moderately upward, but with few noteworthy advances, in which the railway shares were again conspicuous. Call money held at 9 per cent. Wheat for September delivery went to the lowest point reached on the reaction from the July advance; it sold yesterday 22¼ cents below that month's highest price, but is still 17 cents above that of a year ago.

The Bank of England gave up $2,500,000 more gold for France; its loss in the week ending Wednesday, as shown in yesterday's weekly statement, was the smallest in six weeks; but the outgo, $2,800,000 in American values, was nevertheless considerable, and it brought the institution's total gold holdings $191,000,000 below those of a year ago. They are now, in fact, nearly $30,000,000 less than at any other period since the return to gold payments in 1925. As compared with the combined gold reserve held before that time against both Bank of England notes and the old currency notes, the present holdings are the smallest since 1919. The immediately awkward aspect of the matter is the limitation of the Bank's "fiduciary issue" of notes—that is to say, the circulation not secured by gold up to face value—to $260,000,000, at which amount it now stands.

Further and large outflow of gold from the Bank's reserve might therefore force severe contraction of the currency, which could be met only by applying the clause of the currency law of 1928 which permits the Bank, for a restricted period and on the assent of the Treasury, to raise the limit on its fiduciary circulation. So conservative an authority as The London Economist has advised adoption of that recourse, as an alternative to advancing the bank rate. The loss of gold reported by the Bank of England again contrasted impressively with the week's gain of $13,000,000 by the Bank of France, of $6,000,000 by the Reichsbank and of $8,000,000 by our Federal Reserve, as shown in yesterday's statement.

BRITISH STEEL MERGER NOW BELIEVED NEAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Amalgamation of interests involving between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 capital has been agreed upon in priciple among a number of iron and steel manufacturers in the shipbuilding and engineering district on the northeast coast of England. The long-rumored consolidation of Dorman, Long & Co., Ltd., and Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., Ltd., is now believed imminent, and it is reported that other firms are involved in the formation of a northeast coast steel and iron merger.

Dorman, Long & Co. own numerous iron and steel engineering works as well as coal mines. The firm already includes Bell Brothers and the Samuelson Company, owning mines in Kent and workshops in India, Australia, South Africa and Argentina. It is the largest British iron and steel concern. The capital stock exceeds $80,000,000 and the company is under the chairmanship of Sir Arthur Dorman. It is now building a bridge over Sydney Harbor which will be the longest single span in the world.

Bolckow, Vaughan & Co. have a capital of $40,000,000 besides owning collieries for the manufacture of pig iron and steel. They are the oldest Tees-side iron firm. There is evidence of a widespread desire among the ironmasters of that region to enter into closer agreement and to merge where possible.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 29.—The Public Utilities Commission issued a certificate today authorizing the sale of the properties and franchises of the Crosswicks Electric Company, to the Public Service Electric and Gas Company, at a price of $66,000. The Crosswicks Company is conducted by Charles W. Brick in Burlington County.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Substantial advances took place in various "trading favorites" on the Stock Exchange yesterday, but price movements in the main body of stocks were irregular, as they had been for several days. Wall Street was more interested, as usual, in the performance of the advancing group than in the backing and filling that took place in other parts of the market. The faction interested in promoting the rise argued that the "fundamentally bullish" condition of the market was illustrated by the gains recorded in such issues as Westinghouse Electric, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, American and Foreign Power, American Tobacco, American Water Works, A. M. Byers, Fleischmann, Continental Can, Freeport Texas, Père Marquette, North American, Macy, Simmons, Stone & Webster and Procter & Gamble. Business on the Stock Exchange was close to 3,500,000 shares, although a considerable portion of the professional trading element was away.

Predictions Not Fulfilled.

As a rule, Wall Street people were surprised yesterday that the market did not experience a considerable decline. The market had before it a decision to close the Exchange for the three-day holiday and the expectation of a wide increase in brokers' loans, to be announced after the close. In addition, it had advanced most of the earlier part of the week and seemed to be in a position where it might be vulnerable to pressure of profit-taking sales. Nothing of the sort developed, however, and after the first half hour it was evidentt that the traders were "taking stock" in good shape and that the pools had not abandoned plans to put favorite issues higher. Closing prices, in many cases, were the best of the day.

Selling on Balance.

To hear the managers of some of the big pools tell it, in their own terms, they are "sitting pretty" in the stock market. Most of them have been able to sell a little stock on balance during the last few days, usually a sure indication of an increase in public participation and further attested by the advance of $132,000,000 in brokers' loans. Some of the pools in less active stocks have let down their prices moderately to fill the bids which have accumulated from all parts of the country. The sustained demand for a dozen or so of the leading issues on the big board was a surprise even to those who are engaged in working them gradually higher.

As to "Compulsory Split-ups."

The recent large increase in the number of "blue chips" on the Stock Exchange has led many of Wall Street's theorists to assume that corporations will be virtually compelled, by the price at which their shares are selling, to readjust their capital structures through split-ups. In refutation of that argument, a high executive of one large corporation pointed out yesterday that many companies are more or less indifferent concerning the Stock Exchange valuation of their shares. Some of the companies whose stocks are selling above 250, he remarked, probably have never given a thought to the advisability of split-ups and would resist any agitation to bring about such rearrangement of their share capital. There are on the other hand, he admitted, a number of companies, notably General Motors, which pursue the avowed policy of keeping their shares at price levels that will be "within the reach" of average investors.

"Blue Chip" Investment Trusts.

Investment trust managers are anticipating, within a few months, an extension of the merger movement to their own field. It was pointed out yesterday that the development of investment trusts had passed through two stages—the formative or pioneer stage and the development stage—and that the third stage, in which consolidations and mergers might be expected, was being approached. The publication of disappointing statements by several trusts after the end of this year is expected to hasten the merger movement, since trusts lacking strong management might be disposed to come under the wing of a strong organization. One executive is predicting the emergence of five or six "blue chip" investment trusts within a year or two.

Forecasting the Bond Market.

The Labor Day holiday has long been considered the line of demarcation between Summer and Fall and between a dull period in the bond market and a swifter moving one. The general feling in the bond fraternity at the moment is that the pace which is set early next month will provide a fairly accurate index to the buying which may be expected during the balance of the Fall season. The market has just come through one of the most trying periods of recent years, and the feeling is that matters will hardly be any worse, whereas with an appreciable increase in buying it ought to be considerably better. Any relaxation in money rates, of course, over a sustained period would be the most decisive element in helping the bond market.

Tobacco's New Stock.

Current requirements, due to the rapid expansion of the business, will use up practically four-fifths of the amount to be realized by the American Tobacco Company from its offering to stockholders of one additional share at $125 for each five held. The company will realize out of the sale somewhat in excess of $48,000,000, and of this amount $16,000,000 is required for bank loans made for seasonal purchases of tobacco leaf, between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000 will be needed for present seasonal purchases of tobacco leaf, and between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 for plant expansion and renovations. This will leave between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 of new capital, which will be increased by revenues which ordinarily would go to retire the bank loans, but which will be needed to look after future expansion needs in both purchases and plants.

MONEY.

Thursday, Aug. 29, 1929.

Stock Exchange call money continued at 9 per cent. Supply was light, as was the demand, and session was uninteresting from the point of activity. About $15,000,000 in loans were called by banks. Time money was fairly active, sixty to ninety days being the popular maturities, but rates were unchanged at 8¾ to 9 per cent. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

THE COMPANY

The Randall Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Ohio in 1905 under the name of The J. D. Randall Company, and is the outgrowth of a partnership established in 1853.

Until 1922, the Company confined its activities to the manufacture and sale of leather working machinery and allied products in the harness and horse collar line, including beveling, creasing, punching and sewing machines and dies. In the latter year and subsequently thereto, the Company commenced the development and production of automobile body trimming specialties and a major portion of its present business is with the automobile trade. The success of this new line of products is shown by the Company's remarkable increase in sales and earnings and by the character of the users who include: Fisher Body Corporation, Briggs Manufacturing Co., The Murray Corporation of America, Hudson Motor Car Company, Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, Chrysler Corporation, Reo Motor Car Company, Hayes Body Corporation, The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company and Packard Motor Car Company, and other manufacturers in England, France and Australia. The Company occupies an enviable position in that it builds nearly all of the special machinery necessary to manufacture its products, is well protected by patents, and its principal products have no appreciable amount of competition.

PLANT

The plant of The Randall Company is located on West Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. The business has increased to such an extent, however, that factory and shipping facilities are inadequate for present needs and the management contemplates moving in the near future to quarters better adapted to the Company's requirements.

EARNINGS

The net earnings of the Company available for dividends for the three years ended June 30, 1929, as certified to by Messrs. Haskins & Sells have been as follows:—

Earnings on the above basis for the fiscal year 1929 were more than 5 times the preferential dividend. After deducting the amount necessary to pay the preferential and participating dividend on the Class "A" stock the balance of net earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1929, was equivalent to $2.35 a share on the Class "B" stock. After deducting the preferential and participating dividends on the Class "A" stock and after deducting the sinking fund on the Class "A" stock the balance of net income for the fiscal year 1929 was equivalent to $2.10 per share on the Class "B" stock.

THE ISSUE

A part of the shares covered by this offering were acquired from the Company for $200,000 in cash which alone represents new financing by the Company, and the remainder were acquired from an individual shareholder.

Measuring the Utilities

Public utility companies generally possess certain inherent elements of stability, such as the public necessity for the services rendered, their favorable competitive position, the ever-widening application of utility services for industrial and home uses, and the normal increase in consumption due to the rapid growth of population. These factors are responsible in a large measure for the high investment position of public utility securities, but far-sighted investors are giving increasing recognition to those factors which make for continuing prosperity, such as character of territory served and future possibilities of growth, competence of management, financial stability and similar important influences on future earning power.

UTILITIES POWER & LIGHT CORPORATION furnishes, through subsidiaries, electric power for the entire city of Indianapolis and also serves gas in the entire city of St. Louis, in which electric service is also rendered. Besides furnishing utility services in these leading cities of the United States, the system also provides electric service in Birmingham, England's great industrial centre, and has substantial stock interests in a company supplying electricity in a portion of the city of London. Other Public Utility Systems controlled by the Utilities Power & Light Corporation operate in more than eight hundred cities and towns in the United States, the American subsidiaries serving more than half a million gas and/or electric customers.

With the continued prosperity of the United States clearly outlined, and the unlimited prospects for the development of the electric power and light industry in Great Britain, the future operations of the Utilities Power & Light System should meet with increasing success.

The Corporation's Common Stock is traded on the New York Curb Exchange and has been placed on an attractive dividend basis.

OIL GROUP COMBINES IN AID FOR AVIATION

SPECIAL OILS DEVELOPED

Grades Designed for Various Conditions — Improved Fuel Included in Plans.

Three Standard Oil companies, spanning the country with their distributive organizations, have formed a board of expert chemists and engineers to advance the interests of aviation. The companies are the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Standard Oil Company of California, the three largest of the Standard group. Together they have established a joint agency known as the Stanavo Specification Board, with headquarters at 122 East Forty-second Street, through which they will make their technical resources available to the entire aviation industry.

Each of the three companies interested has appointed two representatives to the board. Captain E. E. Aldrin and Dr. D. C. Jennings were appointed by the Standard of New Jersey, H. J. Saladin and D. P. Barnard by the Standard of Indiana, and Dr. J. B. Terry and Captain S. S. Shadderton by the Standard of California. Although the board began functioning nearly four months ago its work has been kept quiet through a desire on the part of the companies interested to accomplish some of the numerous objects for which it was formed before announcing its work. The first objective has been accomplished, according to an announcement at the Standard Oil of New Jersey's offices yesterday, in making lubricating oil of standard aviation grades available in every part of the country.

Three Grades Developed.

Three grades of new lubricating oils developed by the board will go on sale on Sunday at all the aviation stations of the three companies involved in the linking of the aviation research and engineering departments. The oils will all be labeled with the name Stanavo and trade-marked with a symbolic picture of the American eagle, modeled into the outline of a monoplane.

While the development of the lubricating oils for airplanes was the first accomplishment of the board, the prime object of its formation was and is the advancement of aviation. It was stated yesterday that the appropriations under which the board is functioning could not be justified in size from a business return standpoint if aviation requirements doubled every year for the next ten years. It is the belief of the executives of all three of the companies, it was stated, that eventually the skyways of the world will be developed as the highways have been, and that the quickest way to bring this about is to cooperate in every way possible with the agencies now existing in advancing the development of flying machines for the public.

The development of a lubricating oil especially made for the various types of airplane engines now in use was regarded as a step in this development, as the lack of a standard grade of lubricating oils has handicapped long distance flying, according to complaints which have reached the three companies. Engines which were found to work perfectly in the East on the oil sold in stations in this section of the country, were found to be greatly lessened in efficiency when oil on sale on the Western coast was used without any readjustment.

In connection with the three grades of airplane engine lubricating oil the board has also issued a chart of recommendation for the lubrication of aircraft engines, on which forty-six different types in engines, practically all that are in use in the United States have been listed. This is the first time that such publication has been undertaken in aviation.

Has Standard for Gasoline.

The board has also developed a standard gasoline for aircraft engines, but the question of marketing this engine fuel is a question that has yet to be settled by the three companies interested in the Stanavo brands. Handling gasoline in bulk and at the same time trying to maintain an absolute standard of quality is a difficult matter, according to officials of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, and whether the aviation industry is yet ready to shoulder the cost of placing this special grade in containers so that the quality can be guaranteed is a question that has not yet been answered.

The cost of five-gallon cans, of a type necessary for gasoline containers, is 25 cents, according to the same executive, and this would increase the cost of the special grade 5 cents a gallon without any allowance for the extra cost of transportation and handling of container goods as compared with bulk goods.

While the lubrication and fuels for aircraft were the natural matters to engage the attention of the board at the start, it is understood that they constitute only one phase of the work, as it is intended in every possible way to cooperate for the advancement of aviation. While the three companies interested all expect to profit eventually through the establishment of a standard grade of lubricating oil and fuel, it was stated frankly yesterday, that when this time may arrive is not yet ascertainable. The executives of the oil companies feel that the airplane which will make flying as popular as automobiling has not been designed yet, but that the time when it will be designed can be hastened by cooperating in all movements tending to the advancement of aviation, and it was for this purpose that the board was formed.

The formulas developed by the board will be the joint properties of the three companies which created it. Whether other companies will be licensed to manufacture under the formulas or trade-marks is a matter that has not yet been discussed, but it is probable if any such move is made it will be very limited, for the three companies which will control the formulas cover practically the whole United States and extensive foreign territory with distribution facilities.

Bay State Firm Seeks Writ, Charging Rival Takes Employes

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 29 (AP).—The climax to the rumors that have been in circulation for some time that shoe manufacturers of Athol and Lynn were at odds over the alleged taking of skilled shoemakers from Athol to the shoe city of Lynn came in the Superior Court today with the filing of a bill in equity by the Ansin Shoe Manufacturing Company of Athol against the Merit Shoe Company of Lynn.

BIG EXCESS OUTPUT OF CRUDE OIL SEEN

GASOLINE SUPPLY LARGER

Accumulations, at 8,400,000 Barrels for First Half-Year, Six Times Those of Period in 1928.

Overproduction of crude oil in the United States to the extent of 5,000,000 barrels a month for the year, following increased accumulations of 8,400,000 barrels of gasoline in the first six months, are seen in the current issue of The Lamp, official publication of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The article on "The Over-Zealous Refiner," from which the figures are taken, says that gasoline accumulations for the first six months of the year, when gasoline consumption was up 19.03 per cent, were more than six times those of the corresponding season of 1928, and that as a result the oil industry, with its hundreds of thousands of investors, faces the peculiar situation of a record breaking consumption of products, yet with earnings, far below those shown by other industries that have not had a comparable gain in business.

Big Overproduction Seen.

"Since overproduction starts at the mouth of the well, let us see what the producer has done to prevent himself from earning a fair return on his capital and skill. In the first half of the year 1929, 45,000,000 barrels of crude went into storage and it is estimated that during the latter half of the year there will be a further addition of at least 15,000,000 barrels. This means that after taking care of every barrel of increased consumption there will be overproduced this year in the United States an average of 5,000,000 barrels per month.

"The principal product from crude oil is gasoline. Gasoline has to carry not only its own proportion of the cost of obtaining crude and refining it but also must absorb the loss on the lower grade products which sell below the price of crude. With crude oil in such liberal supply, refiners in all districts disregarded statistics of the amount of finished products they would be called upon to supply in their locality and increased their runs to a greater extent than justified by the gain in consumption. The result was that throughout the first half of this year the primary problem of overproduction of crude was carried forward into the no less embarrassing problem of overproduction of gasoline. As a result there was accumulated in this period in the United States 8,400,000 barrels of gasoline. In the first six months of the previous year the accumulation was 1,500,000 barrels.

Demand in Sharp Rise.

"The industry can find no fault with the manner in which sales of its principal product have mounted. Over the corresponding period of 1928 the demand for gasoline in the first six months of this year, including exports, showed an increase of 15.38 per cent, but in the same time refinery runs increased 11.28 per cent, resulting in an increase in the total gasoline supply of 19.03 per cent.

"Whereas total consumption, including exports, increased by 26,000,000 barrels in the first half of the year, the total supply, including imports, increased 33,000,000 barrels. It is thus apparent that refiners, anticipating the gain in consumption, increased their refinery runs to a greater extent than was needed to meet requirements. An outstanding example of this is California, which increased its gasoline production 38 per cent against a gain in the consumption in the Pacific Coast states of 12 per cent.

"This situation emphasizes once again the fact that the only definite and fixed factor the petroleum industry has to deal with is market demand and that the overproduction of either crude or finished products cannot be forced into an increased consumption regardless of price."

ACQUIRES WESTERN OIL.

Expanding the operations of the Shell interests in the United States, the Shell Petroleum Corporation, a subsidiary of the Shell Union Oil Corporation, has purchased the Western Oil Refining Company of Indianapolis which operates 213 filling stations in Indiana and Ohio and has forty-five branch bulk stations.

Although the details of the transaction were not revealed, it was understood here that Shell Petroleum paid several million dollars in cash for the Western Oil properties. This is one of the most important units added to the Shell system in recent months.

The Shell organization, through a subsidiary, the Shell Eastern Petroleum Corporation, has been enlarging its operations in the East for some time, particularly in the metropolitan district of New York. The Shell companies are now marketing their products in every State in the country.

LOANS TO BROKERS RISE $132,000,000

SYSTEM'S DISCOUNTS DROP

The total of brokers' loans announced last night by the Federal Reserve Bank forged further into record territory, well above the level of $6,000,000,000. Last night's figures showed a gain of $132,000,000, carrying the total to $6,217,000,000, compared with $6,085,000,000 last week, when an advance of $133,000,000 was shown.

This is the third week in which the Federal Reserve compilation of brokers' loans has exceeded $6,000,000,000. That figure was first surpassed on Aug. 7, just prior to the action taken by the New York Federal Reserve Bank in advancing its rediscount rate and reducing its bill-buying rate. The subsequent stock market reaction carried the total down below $6,000,000,000 on the succeeding week, only to have it snap back to even higher levels last week and this week.

At yesterday's figure brokers' loans stood nearly $2,000,000,000 above the level for one year ago, when the total was $4,235,000,000, and $543,000,000 above the amount of Feb. 6 of this year, the date of the first Federal Reserve Board warning.

Non-banking lenders, classified in the Federal Reserve's compilation as "others," again accounted for the major part of the increased borrowings. Last week loans for this group mounted by $194,000,000, while the banks both here and out of town were reducing their loans. This week "others" increased their loans by $96,000,000.

Out-of-town banks continued to reduce their loans, a drop of $31,000,000 being shown, a natural consequence of the increased rural demand for funds with the advance of the harvest season. New York City banks were again forced into the market, and increased their accommodations to brokers by $66,000,000 in the week. Borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank by local member banks advanced $9,000,000 in the week.

	Aug. 28, 1929	Aug. 21, 1929	Aug. 29, 1928

Of this weeks total, $5,872,000,000 consisted of demand loans, against $5,738,000,000 last week and $345,000,000 of time loans compared with $347,000,000 a week ago.

Discounts Off $12,751,000.

The statement of the twelve banks of the Reserve System continued to show the improvements which have recently been noted. Discounts again declined, a drop of $12,751,000 being shown, while the bill portfolio showed an advance of $24,177,000, lifting the figure to $156,514,000, compared with less than $70,000,000 shortly before the recent change in policy. Holdings of government securities again showed a drop, however, the figure being lower than that of a week ago by $3,286,000.

Member banks of the New York Reserve district increased their discounts in the week by $7,000,000. Bill holdings at New York advanced $6,543,000, while government securities slid off $5,736,000. As a consequence there was a net advance in the amount of credit supplied to the market by the New York bank of $8,507,000. The ratio at New York followed the trend for the system in dropping 0.8 per cent, to 77.4 per cent.

RISE DISAPPOINTS BOARD.

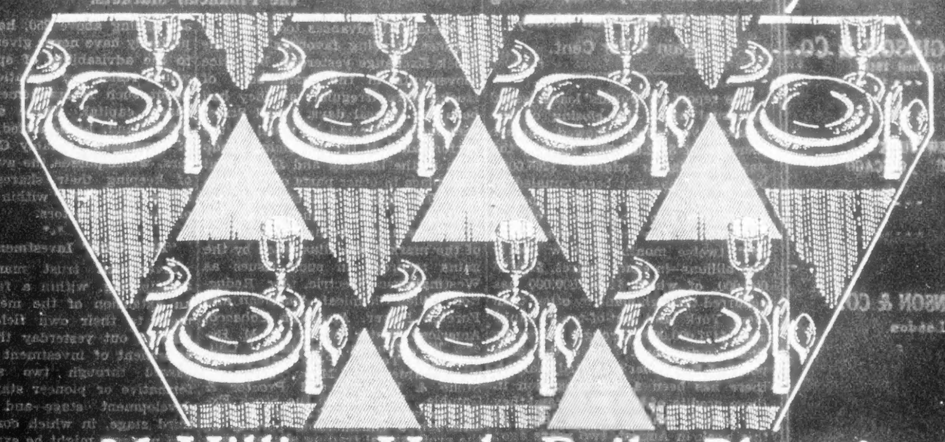
WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—With another increase of $132,000,000 in brokers' loans as reported by member banks, bringing the total to a new record at $6,217,000,000, no official word came from the Federal Reserve Board today as to any further move to check the advance, although the board sponsored the recent increase in the discount rate of the New York Reserve Bank to 6 per cent.

It is understood that members of the board had believed that any increase this week might be of merely negligible proportions, and the continuing rise was a distinct disappointment. The fact that an increase in loans for others, including corporations and individuals, of $96,000,000 was accompanied by an advance of $66,000,000 in the loans by New York banks for their own account was another disappointing development. The only bright spot was a decline in the loans for the account of out-of-town banks. The increase of $9,000,000 in borrowings by New York member banks from the Federal Reserve Bank was not considered large enough to be of much importance.

Associated Gas and Electric System



36 Million Meals Daily, Please!

FOOD for half the nation . . . breakfast, lunch and dinner . . . 3 meals a day in 12 million American homes are cooked with GAS—more than by any other fuel. And each year adds to the increasing number of families enjoying the cleanliness and convenience of GAS. During the past twenty-five years, while the population of the United States has increased 50%, the sale of manufactured gas has increased more than seven times as fast—or 363%.

Notwithstanding the enviable past of the gas industry an even greater future is assured. The tremendous practical possibilities for the utilization of GAS for house heating and water heating are just beginning to be realized. And the newer appliances such as GAS refrigerators, incinerators and laundry dryers are also coming into more general use each year.

All of these necessary and convenient uses afford a highly lucrative field for development, and all will contribute to the future prosperity of the public utility industry.

With strategically located gas and electric properties serving over 1,200,000 customers in 18 States, the Philippine Islands and the three Maritime Provinces of Canada, the Associated Gas and Electric System will share largely in the future growth of the industry. A colored map showing the territories served will gladly be sent on request.

PLAN LAWS TO AID NATIONAL BANKS

RESERVE SYSTEM CUT INTO

Menace From Defections Due to State Bank Competition Calls for Action, Controller Says.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Important legislation designed to place national banks on a parity with State banks and trust companies is now under consideration by officials of the Treasury Department. The matter has been directed to the attention of J. W. Pole, Controller of the Currency, and other Treasury authorities, by defections from the Federal Reserve System in the last year of banks with resources totaling several billion dollars.

Mr. Pole on a number of occasions has discussed the difficulties encountered by national banks in their competition for business with State institutions, and has made the statement that, unless something were done by Congress to remedy the situation, the national banking system would be menaced by deterioration.

Treasury officials are agreed that appropriate legislation should be passed, but they are far apart as to what form it should take. The same division of opinion as to what Congress might do to relieve the national banks appears to be existing among the managers of the banks themselves, according to letters received at the Treasury.

Branch banking has aroused controversy in and out of Congress, and it appears probable that any legislation that may be offered will deal with this subject. A Treasury official today, in discussing the branch banking system, said that it might work satisfactorily in the rural regions, but that it might prove too costly in administration to be introduced generally in the big cities.

It was indicated that the Treasury Department itself would not look with favor on unrestricted branch banking extending beyond State or Reserve districts. On the other hand, Mr. Pole is understood to favor wide expansion of the branch banking privilege of national banks, and he is said to have strong support throughout the country.

Certain Treasury officials take the position that the country at large is distrustful of the principle of branch banking, on the ground that it would tend to concentrate banking power and credit in the large centres.

FIVE BUY EXCHANGE SEATS.

Former Telephone Clerk Among Applicants for Membership.

Frank J. Doyle, a former telephone clerk, has purchased a membership in the New York Stock Exchange and will organize his own firm when his application has been approved by the Exchange.

Louis D. Stern, Jacob M. Kaplan, Francis F. Rosenbaum and Otto A. Schreiber also have applied for membership. Mr. Schreiber was an employe of the Manufacturers Trust Company from January, 1924, to January, 1928, and later was connected with H. J. Baker & Bros., importers. He has purchased the membership of J. Herbert Ware Jr.

Philip G. Cameron, William Fisher, Harry S. Cook and E. Schuyler Jackson Jr. have been elected members of the Exchange. Mr. Cameron, who will become a general partner in the firm of Tooker & Co., is the first employe in the executive offices of the Exchange to buy a membership in that institution. He has been secretary to the stock list committee of the Exchange. He is 40 years old. During the war he served with the Canadian Motor Transport.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 29.—Judgment of $1,208,242.40 in favor of the Baltimore Trust Company against the Indiahoma Corporation was granted in Superior Court today by Chief Judge Dennis. The trust company had sought a judgment of $3,000,000.

It was asserted that $650,000 was due on mortgage bonds issued by the corporation five years ago in connection with the transactions involving the insolvent Indiahoma Refining Company. The accumulated interest, the trust company held, amounted to another $350,000.

The refining company is said to have been a highly prosperous one, in which many Baltimoreans made large sums of money before it crashed five years ago. The Indiahoma Corporation was formed to sell the assets of the defunct company at a greater profit than would be possible through bankruptcy proceedings.

SEEKS ADVICE ON RAILWAYS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 29 (Canadian Press).—Rumors associating the visit of J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal, with a mission apart from his declared purpose are circulating in the capital. The name of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, has been linked with the British Minister's trip.

Mr. Thomas had expected to meet Sir Henry at the beginning of last week, but at that time the latter was in British Columbia. However, it is known the two had a long-distance telephone conversation.

Rumor, moreover, credits Mr. Thomas's anxiety to meet Sir Henry to a desire for advice in connection with a consolidation of the British railways, with a view to effecting economies and strengthening the service.

BALDWIN'S OUTPUT LARGE.

Sales of spare parts for locomotives by the Baldwin Locomotive Works during the past week approximated $100,000 and the sales of spare and replacement parts by the company is running at a rate of approximately $1,250,000 a year at present. This kind of business is constantly flowing in and forms a desirable backlog which aids in stabilizing the company's operations, because it is not influenced by fluctuations in the purchase of new equipment.

During the past week the company booked orders for two small electric locomotives for the Virginia Iron and Coke Company and three larger locomotives of the same type for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. Two other bookings were a small electric for the Sydney Thompson Company in South Africa and a small steam locomotive for the Humble Oil and Refining Company.

Soo Line Head Expects Good Year.

Northwestern grain crops will be about 60 or 70 per cent of last year's according to T. C. Jaffray, president of the Soo Line. He said terminal congestion was hindering the grain movement but that the road would show fairly good results for the year as a whole. In its July statement the line included $200,000 of back mail pay to cover car repairs charged to earnings, and the company still has part of the mail pay and a tax refund in reserve which will be used before Jan. 1, he explained.

Jersey Central Orders Cars.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 29.—The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey has placed an order with the Bethlehem Steel Company for 200 65-foot, 70-ton mill type steel gondola cars. These cars are built for the purpose of handling long loads, especially in the steel trade, eliminating the necessity of a second car for an idler.

INVESTMENT TRUST EARNED $5,455,069

Total Additions to Capital Are Announced as $7,735,857 by President H. R. Johnston.

Reflecting the rise in security prices in recent months, the total realized and unrealized earnings of the Sterling Securities Corporation, one of the first investment trusts to be listed on the New York Stock Exchange, totaled $5,455,069, after preferred dividends during the period from Jan. 1 to Aug. 24, according to an announcement yesterday by Hugh R. Johnston, vice president and treasurer of the company. These earnings were equivalent to $6.38 a share on the Class A common stock.

The earned surplus, including a contingent reserve amounting to $300,000, totaled $2,163,440, as of Aug. 24. In addition, the company has in its portfolio unrealized profits amounting to $5,572,417 on the latter date, so that total additions to capital, realized and unrealized, amounted to $7,735,857 on Aug. 24.

The realized earnings of the company from Jan. 1 to Aug. 24, after deducting all expenses and taxes and dividends on the preference stock, amounted to $1,762,919, equivalent, after participation of the Class B stock to $2.34 a share on the Class A common. During the same period, the value of the company's portfolio appreciated in value $3,693,150, equivalent, after participation of the Class B shares and allowing for taxes as though the profit were actually taken, to $4.04 a share on the Class A stock. The total realized and unrealized earnings on the Class A during the period of nearly eight months were at the annual rate of $9.90 a share.

The establishment of the contingent reserve of $300,000 was believed to represent the first step in the building up of a large reserve which would be set aside to take care of possible declines in the market value of its security holdings. The company was said to be one of the first investment trusts to establish such a reserve. Sterling securities Class A was active on the Stock Exchange yesterday, advancing to a new high of 34¾.

New Name for Company Proposed.

The stockholders of the Allied Refrigeration Industries, Inc., will be asked to consider changing the name of their company to the Allied American Industries, Inc., at a special meeting called for Sept. 3. The management has recommended the change because of the company's expansion to include railroad, public utility, merchandising and industrial securities in the last year.

RAILS LEAD BONDS ON STOCK EXCHANGE

INVESTMENT TRUSTS RISE

Industrial and Utility Securities Steady—Government Loans Continue Irregular.

Continued strength in railroad bonds under the leadership of Santa Fe convertible 4½s was the most important development in the listed bond market yesterday. Numerous junior rail issues appeared on the tape, many of them at prices substantially above their previous levels, which in some cases were established several days ago. The Santa Fe issue reached a new high record at 104⅞ and closed at 104, up 3 points.

Southern Pacific 4½s, with warrants, touched a new high mark at 99¼, finishing at 98⅝, up ⅝ point, and Milwaukee adjustment 5s reached a new peak at 80¼, closing at 79⅝, up 2 points net. All of the Seaboard Air Line issues were active and strong, prices at the close showing advances of 1 to 2½ points. New Haven convertible 6s slipped back ⅝ point in quiet trading.

Commercial Investment Trust 5½s showed strength all day, closing with an advance of 1½ points. The issue is still 3 points under the high price of the year. American International duplicated its previous high of 116 and finished ½ point under this figure, with a gain of 1¾ points for the day.

The general run of industrials and public utility issues showed few changes of importance. Warner Sugar issues were firm on news that the company was prepared to pay the coupons due on July 1 on the first and refunding 7s.

United States Government issues continued irregular. The Treasury 4s were down 7-32 on lack of demand rather than because of any pressure of offerings. The Fourth Liberty 4¼s were a shade higher, with all dealings done just under 99.

Net changes in most of the foreign loans were fractional. South American issues showed considerable irregularity.

Bristol-Myers Meeting Called.

The stockholders of the Bristol-Myers Company will be called to a special meeting on Sept. 9 to approve the recommendation of J. & W. Seligman & Co. and their own directors for the acquisition of their company by Drug, Inc.

CHICAGO REJECTS BIDS ON BOND ISSUE

NEW OFFERING ON SEPT. 12

No Other Securities to Be Put on Market for Ninety Days After the Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—The Sanitary District Trustees today rejected bankers' bid for bonds aggregating $10,650,000 and voted to readvertise for bids to be returnable at their meeting on Sept. 12. The action further postponed several construction projects and contractual obligations on unfurnished projects of the district.

Although passage of the Packing Town ordinance for the regulation of factory and industrial wastes along the drainage canal was expected, its adoption was delayed a second time, due to objections of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association which contends that the ordinance would be too far reaching in its authority. With the removal of penal and certain other provisions, it was reported that the Sanitary District and the manufacturers had reached an agreement.

When the sealed bids for the $10,650,000 bond issue were opened today it was found that the Continental Illinois Company and the National City Company, the only bidders, had submitted duplicate bids of $9,851,250 for the issue, which was equivalent to a 7½ per cent discount. The National City Company proposed an alternative bid of $9,954,342 on the condition that the Sanitary District would provide no further bond issue within a sixty-day period. This proviso, said Ross Woodhull, chairman of the Finance Committee, placed bidders at a disadvantage. It was decided that in readvertising for bids, the Sanitary District would agree not to issue subsequent bonds within ninety days after the sale.

The syndicate headed by the Continental National Company, Inc., included the Guaranty Company of New York, the First Union Trust and Savings Bank, the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, Ames, Emerich Co., Inc.; the William R. Compton Company, the Northern Trust Company, the Detroit Company, Inc.; the First National Company of Detroit and the Foreman Trust and Savings Bank.

The National City group comprised the Bankers Company of New York, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc.; Lehman Brothers, the American National Company, A. B. Leach & Co., Inc.; E. H. Rollins & Sons, Kean, Taylor & Co., the Guardian Detroit Company, Hannahs, Ballin & Lee, Arthur Sinclair, Wallace & Co., Emanuel & Co., Otis & Co., Graham, Parsons & Co., R. H. Moulton & Co., Dewey, Bacon & Co., Stranahan, Harris & Oatis and R. P. Minton & Co. of Chicago.

LESS BUILDING STEEL SOLD.

But Inquiries Increase From 32,000 to 58,000 Tons in Week.

A reduction in structural steel orders to 22,000 tons for the past week from the 51,000 tons ordered in the preceding week was somewhat counteracted by a spurt in inquiries from 32,000 tons two weeks ago to 58,000 tons last week. More than half the total orders were for industrial projects.

Among the week's principal awards were: 1,500 tons for House of Detention, New York, to McClintic-Marshall Company; 2,000 tons for Brown Paper Mill Company, Monroe, La., to Virginia Bridge & Iron Company; 3,000 tons for General Electric Company power house, Tonawanda, N. Y., to McClintic-Marshall Company; 2,100 tons for Pittsburgh & West Virginia viaduct on Connellsville extension to American Bridge Company.

Important inquiries included: 3,000 tons for New York Central Railroad commissary building, New York; 2,000 tons for Pennsylvania Railroad warehouse, Jersey City, and 2,400 tons for miscellaneous line equipment; 6,000 tons for Ford Motor Company plant at Edgewater, N. J.; 15,000 to 18,000 tons for Lorain-Central Bridge, Cleveland; 3,700 tons for Wendell Phillips Senior High School, Chicago; 3,000 tons for St. John's Bridge, Portland, Ore.

FORM OF FINANCING BY TREASURY IN DOUBT

Officials Say Use of New Bills Bearing No Interest Will Depend on Credit Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—It was said at the Treasury Department today that no decision had been reached as to the advisability of marketing treasury bills bearing no interest in connection with the September financing program, which, it now is expected will be made public soon after Sept. 1. Estimates place the total of the offering at not more than $400,000,000, and it may be kept under that amount, particularly if treasury bills are used. There will mature on Sept. 15 a total of $510,624,000 of certificates of indebtedness, and these will be met with the cash obtained by the proposed offering and from receipts of income taxes not required for current expenditures.

The treasury, under a law passed by the last Congress, is in a position to sell either the treasury bills bearing no interest at below par on a competitive basis, or interest-bearing certificates of indebtedness. Bankers and institutions in bidding for the treasury bills would fix the price at which they would sell.

Money market conditions at the time the offering is made, treasury officials said, would determine which form of security would be used. The Treasury was compelled to quote 5½ per cent interest on the last issue of certificates of indebtedness, marketed in June, and officials are anxious to avoid the necessity of again quoting such a rate. If it is decided that market conditions would compel an interest rate of 5 per cent or more, there is a probability that treasury bills will be used.

$25,000,000 BONDS CALLED BY SWEDEN

Government to Redeem 20-Year 6% Loan on Dec. 15—Argentina to Retire Obligations.

The National City Bank announced yesterday that the Swedish Government would redeem on Dec. 15 all the $25,000,000 outstanding twenty-year 6 per cent gold bonds maturing in 1939, at 102 and interest to redemption. Holders of these bonds may exchange them for Swedish Government 4½ per cent perpetual kronor bonds dated Dec. 15 at 97½. The latter bonds have no definite maturity and are callable on three months' notice beginning on Dec. 15, 1939. The total of dollar bonds plus premium as deposited will be converted into kronor at the rate of 3.735 dollar and the depositor is required to take the kronor bonds at 97½, provided that no depositor shall be required to take kronor bonds of denomination less than 500 kronor, although permitted to do so. Balances due to depositors, including interest on deposited bonds to Dec. 15, will be paid in cash at time of deposit.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced that $87,000 of Società Italiana Pirelli (Pirelli Company of Italy) sinking fund 7 per cent convertible gold bonds due in 1952 and issued under a trust agreement had been drawn by lot for redemption on Nov. 1, at 104.

Morgan & Co. and the National City Bank announced that $172,000 Argentine Nation external sinking fund 6 per cent gold bonds, due in 1959, had been drawn for retirement at par and interest on Oct. 1 out of the sinking fund. The same bankers announced that $92,000 Argentine Government loan of 1926 external sinking fund 6 per cent gold bonds due in 1960 had been drawn for retirement at par and interest on Oct. 1 out of a sinking fund.

WARNER BROS. OFFER $20,000,000 BONDS

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., will offer $20,000,000 of debentures to its stockholders, it was announced in a letter issued by Harry M. Warner, president, last night.

Holders of common of record on Sept. 9 have received an offer of optional 6 per cent convertible debentures, series due 1939, at the rate of one $500 debenture for each sixty-eight shares of common stock held. The price, payment of which is required by Sept. 30, is $525 a $500 debenture. No rights accrue to the preferred stockholders, but they may subscribe if they convert their holdings into common stock on or before the record date. Through this operation the corporation will obtain funds on a basis equivalent to the sale of a 6 per cent security at 105.

A feature of the financing is the optional interest provision under which debenture holders may elect to receive their interest quarterly in common stock or in cash at the annual rate of $60 in cash or one share of common stock for each $1,000 debenture held. The debentures will be convertible into common stock at the rate of one share of common for each $75 principal amount on or before Sept. 1, 1932; at the rate of one share of common for each $80 principal amount thereafter and on or before Sept. 1, 1935, and at the rate of one share of common for each $85 principal amount thereafter and on or before Aug. 26, 1939.

The debentures will be redeemable on sixty days' notice at 105 if redeemed on or before March 3, 1930. The redemption price is reduced one-half of 1 per cent on March 2, 1930 and again at the expiration of each full year after March 2, 1930.

The Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation announced yesterday a special meeting of the board of directors to be held on Sept. 4. It was reported in Wall Street that a basis for a merger between this company and Warner Brothers, which has been the subject of negotiations for some weeks, had been reached and that the meeting was called for the purpose of entering an offer to the Warner Brothers company for an exchange of stock. This report could not be confirmed yesterday at the offices of either company.

STOCKS ARE FIRM OVER THE COUNTER

GENERAL TRADING QUIET

United stocks were firm and quiet yesterday. There was a good early inquiry among utilities, but transactions were few by comparison with the previous sessions. Banks were fractionally higher, but the group was quiet until the close, when a wave of buying caused a rise in Equitable Trust. Manhattan made the greatest gain of the group. Guaranty and Seaboard also gained. Kings County and United States Trust lost substantially. Other issues to decline were American Union, Liberty, Bank of New York and Trust and Murray Hill.

Insurance shares were fairly strong under the leadership of Providence-Washington, which gained substantially. Aetna Fire also was strong and Great American closed higher. Other insurance stocks showing gains were Globe & Rutgers, Aetna Life, Automobile and Hartford Fire.

Among industrials Eiseman Magneto, American Manufacturing and Industrial Acceptance lost ground. New York Merchandise, M. H. Fishman preferred and J. C. Penney gained.

WILL COMBINE 20 PLANTS.

Unnamed Buyer Gets Everett Mills Property in Lawrence, Mass.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 29.—The sale today to a New York syndicate of the Everett Mills property here, consisting of fifteen and one-half acres of land and buildings containing more than 1,500,000 square feet of floor space, was announced today by the Lawrence Industrial Bureau. The names of the purchasers have not been made known but it is understood that they manufacture radios and electrical supplies.

Work is under way to begin operations at the mill, and advertisements have been inserted in local newspapers calling for skilled mechanics. Officials of the company have said it will employ nearly 5,000 hands. The transaction will consolidate under one roof more than twenty plants now operated in New York City, Brooklyn, Newark, N. J., Poughkeepsie, Buffalo and Detroit.

Officials of the company have purchased the Crowmont Riding Club with its 300 acres of land. A landing field for airplanes will be constructed there so that trips to New York can be made from that point. The company's representative said it owned several flying machines which were used to make hurried visits to the cities where its plants now are situated.

To Honolulu full rate messages are reduced 2 cents to 35 cents a word and deferred messages to 17½ cents a word. Radio letters to Honolulu are now $2.60 with a 20-word minimum, a reduction of 40 cents. Week-end radio letters have been reduced 60 cents to $2, with a 20-word minimum.

PAPER EXPORTS GAINED.

Value for First Half of Year Marked 23 Per Cent Increase Over 1928.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Exports of paper and paper products from the United States in the first six months of 1929 were valued at $18,802,239, an increase of 21 per cent over the preceding six months and an increase of more than 23 per cent over the corresponding period of 1928, the Department of Commerce announced today.

Most classes on the paper schedule shared in this increase, reductions occurring only in a few products, such as cover, blotting, tissue and crêpe, and grease-proof papers, paper hangings and manufactures of indurated and vulcanized fiber.

An important element in the increase of the 1929 shipments was the transfer of over-issue newspaper from the schedule covering paper base stocks to the paper schedule. This one class alone accounted for an increase of nearly $1,000,000 in the 1929 exports. This change involved a corresponding decrease in shipments entered under the classification "rags and other paper stocks."

Exports totaled $102,000, the entire amount going to Mexico. No change was reported in the amount of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

AMERICAN TOBACCO TO INCREASE YIELD

LARGER DIVISION POSSIBLE

Plans of the directors of the American Tobacco Company for the sharing of the increased earnings of the company with the stockholders embrace a two-for-one split-up of the common stock and the putting of the new stock on a $5 annual basis, compared to the $8 annual basis of the present stock, it was learned yesterday. This action will not be taken until some time in 1930, as the split-up of the stock will require amendment of the charter, for which a meeting of the stockholders is necessary.

While this is the present plan, it is possible that it may be revised into a wider split-up and possibly a greater interest in dividend rates, it was said. If the earnings of the company continue to increase at the present rate, it is thought by some of the directors that the income for the year will justify a higher dividend rate. It was asserted that the management of the company always had acted on the policy of keeping dividends at the highest possible point compatible with the capital requirements of the company. It also was said that $200 a share was much too unwieldy a price for a stock that was so widely held, and that before the time came for action in this respect it was possible that a three-for-one or a four-for-one split-up might be recommended to the stockholders by the directors.

It was learned also that the subject of purchasing properties which the company now holds on lease from the Tobacco Products Company had not even been discussed. It had been reported that such a deal was the object of the new financing, but it was announced that current requirements for expansion of the company were the reason for the present offering of to the holders of the present issues of common and Class B common shares. Due to the provisions of the lease, which still has more than ninety years to run, the price which the company would have to pay for the properties would be about $35,000,000, it was said yesterday, and it appeared to the directors of the company that at this price the annual payments of $2,500,000 were more desirable than the tying up of so much capital.

BARS HALL STATEMENT IN NEWSPAPER SUIT

Georgia Judge Rules Out Lavarre Associate's Charge Made to Paper Company.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 29 (AP).—Attorneys were drawn into their most heated exchange thus far in the Hall-Lavarre newspaper suit today by the statement on the stand of Harold Hall that he reported to the International Paper Company, "I have every reason to believe Lavarre is trying to run away with the stock" (in The Augusta Chronicle).

After a sharp exchange had subsided Judge Bascom H. Deaver excluded the statement, but ruled that Mr. Hall might show his reasons for going to New York in May.

Mr. Hall is suing Lavarre for equal operating control of The Chronicle, The Spartanburg (S. C.) Herald, and The Journal and The Columbia (S. C.) Record, four papers, bought with money furnished by the International. Hall contends he is a partner. Mr. Lavarre has answered that he considered Mr. Hall an employe and that Hall "abandoned The Chronicle," to which Lavarre assigned him.

Differences between the official transcript of the Federal Trade Commission's inquiry into financing of newspapers and dispatches written in "question and answer" form, as sent to The Augusta Chronicle by Mr. Lavarre, were read into the record of the suit today.

Telegrams sent by Mr. Lavarre to The Chronicle were read by Hall from the witness stand.

Objections to reading the issues of The Chronicle, in which the Lavarre telegrams were purported to have appeared, were made by A. B. Lovett, Lavarre attorney. They were sustained by Judge Deaver, who ruled that changes might have crept in while the telegrams were being prepared for publication.

John A. Sibley, Mr. Hall's attorney, said it was the complainant's contention that Hall's name was omitted by Mr. Lavarre in the latter's alleged version of the transcript and that other changes had been made.

The Annalist weekly index of wholesale commodity prices stand at 148.4, which is 0.5 point lower than last week's index of 148.9 (revised) and compares with 152.1 last year at this time.

The farm products, food and metal groups' indices declined, and the textile and miscellaneous groups' indices rose. The increases in grain prices reported last week were lost again this week, while live stock prices have recovered some of the losses of last week.

The index for August stands at 148.6 and compares with 149.1 for June. The indices of the groups during the four weeks in August did not depart widely from the median. The farm products and food products groups were the most active, and, while commodity prices fluctuated widely, the indices remained relatively unaffected. On the whole, grain prices were lower and live-stock prices were unchanged from the preceding month.

AUTO FACTORIES ACTIVE.

During the final week of August, the automobile factories, taken as a whole, have shown a higher level of activity than during the first half of the month, while the general demand in the field continues favorable and prospects for an active Fall business already are in evidence, according to Automotive Industries. Sales executives look upon the improved farm prices as an important factor in the outlook for good sales during the Autumn.

According to present indications, it would appear not improbable that the 5,000,000 figure will be reached by the end of October. Actual production for the first seven months in the United States and Canada has been fixed by the Department of Commerce as 3,929,545 vehicles. Adding 500,000 units to this it would appear that the production of 570,455 units for the two months of September and October would bring the total for the industry as a whole to 5,000,000 by the close of the tenth month.

MONTGOMERY WARD SILENT ON MERGER

REPORTS STOCK EXCHANGED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Although officials of Montgomery Ward & Co. are silent on the subject of the merger of the Hartman Corporation, owner of a chain of furniture stores in Illinois and Wisconsin, it is understood in La Salle Street that the papers were signed last Tuesday. So much is known concerning the deal that denial is regarded impossible, but the news is reported so premature as to be decidedly distasteful to the officials of both companies. That the merger is based on an exchange of one share of Montgomery Ward & Co. stock for three shares of Hartman Corporation B stock seems generally accepted in the financial district. Some arrangement for the retirement of the Hartman A stock seems likely.

The consolidated balance sheet of the Hartman Corporation as of Dec. 31 shows total assets of more than $27,000,000. It has been growing rapidly and net sales for the six months ended June 30 were more than $9,000,000.

Business of Montgomery Ward is soaring to record-breaking levels on the present wave of prosperity and August sales are expected to be in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, the highest midsummer total in the entire history of the great merchandising organization and an increase of nearly 50 per cent over the corresponding figure for August, 1928. The official figures will be available Tuesday, after the three-day Stock Exchange holiday. August sales in 1928 were $17,007,000, and in 1927 were $13,825,000. Sales in July, 1929, were $19,808,000. As the Autumn increase in sales is evidently beginning much earlier this year, the total sales for 1929 probably will be sensational. The figures for the seven months ended July 31 were $142,615,000, compared with $110,544,000 the year before.

Adding the anticipated August report, the business for two-thirds of the year has amounted to about $167,000,000, while the last four months are ordinarily by far the best of the twelve. Last year sales in the final four months ranged from $20,000,000 to $31,000,000 a month, which evidently may be $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 at the present rate of advance.

In 1928 the company earned $4.77 a share on the new stock, equal to $14.26 a share on the old.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS ADVANCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Uncertainty regarding the bank rate prevailed on the Stock Exchange today, causing irregular price movements. The gilt-edge market was especially gloomy over the monetary position. The 5 per cent war loan fell ¼ to £101 1/16, while the conversion loan and the 4 per cent consols each fell 1/16 to £72¼ and £81 15/16, respectively.

The electrics improved after yesterday's dullness, with Associated Electric spurting to 47s 9d on news of an important Egyptian railway contract. General Electric also was better at 56s 9d. All the rayons advanced with British Celanese selling at £1 21/32, American Celanese at £6⅝ and Courtauld at £3 21/32.

Carrera was strong at £15½ among the tobaccos, but British-American Tobacco declined to £8 11/32. Austin Motors rose, but Fords declined 1/16 to £3 13/16. Canadian Eagles led the oils with a rise of 6d to 113 3d.

Kaffirs generally were strong in the mining market, but DeBeers sagged 1/16 to £12⅝. Persistent selling caused declines among Rhodesian coppers.

The money market was easier, with 4% per cent charged for fresh overnight loans. Discounts continued steady at 5 15/32 per cent for three-month bills. The high call money rate in New York depressed sterling exchange to $4.84 23/32. Another heavy efflux of gold took place at the Bank of England, where £1,262 of bar gold was bought and £526,431 sold for France.

Gains Continue in Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Offers, which were numerous at the opening of the Bourse today, were easily absorbed and trading was sustained throughout the session. Some of the industrials which made rapid strides yesterday were quiet today but the rest of the list, including the banks, continued their upward movement.

Although the news from The Hague conference remained indefinite, the impression in French financial circles was that the Young plan was sure to be adopted, and this optimistic view was sufficient to stimulate the stock market. On the Curb activity centred in the phosphates, oils, rubbers and gold mines.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows another rise in gold reserves, which increased 327,000,000 francs to a total of 38,803,000,000 francs. Their proportion to obligations totaling 84,624,000,000 francs was shown as 45.85, which is the highest figure since the stabilization of the franc. Circulation dropped 338,000,000 francs to a total of 64,353,000,000 francs.

Rentes were steady, closing as follows: The 3 per cents, 75.05; 1918 4s, 93.20; 1920 amortizable 5s, 127.25; 1928 5s, 101.50; 1920 6s, 104.75, and 1927 amortizable 6s, 117.40.

Tendency Uneven in Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—The Boerse was somewhat disappointed today by the procedure at The Hague conference in the last twenty-four hours and opened with an uneven tendency. Speculators who were the biggest buyers yesterday began settlements and some markets declined slightly. On the other hand foreign interest developed in a number of specialties, primarily Reichsbank, Siemens and Dye Trust, the latter, which advanced 2½ points, being sought from America.

Other electricals improved with the exception of A. E. G., which was neglected. Dessauer Gas Polyphon, Julius Berger, Otavi and brewery shares were also in demand. The mining market opened weak but some stocks improved later. Smelting Works, which had not been quoted in several months, gained seventy points. Call money, in view of the month-end settlements, was higher at 6½ to 9 per cent.

COPPER AND LEAD ACTIVE.

Consumers entered the market for both copper and lead on a large scale, the past week's business being greater in volume than for any similar period since early in March, according to The Engineering and Mining Journal. Demand for zinc, while not active, showed a little improvement; tin was quiet. Prices, with the exception of tin, held on a firm basis.

A feature of the market was the tendency on the part of consumers to take on metal for shipment a little beyond immediate needs, indicating that they have more confidence in the general situation.

WHEAT ADVANCES AFTER EARLY SLUMP

EXPORT DEMAND LACKING

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—There was a change in sentiment in the wheat market today and, while the opening was around 1 cent lower, a good class of local and commission house buying developed, and prices advanced 3⅝ to 4 cents from the low with the finish well toward the top at net gains of 2¼ to 2½ cents. Shorts covered freely on the way up and some stop loss orders were uncovered. The best selling was by longs and against offers. The continued complaint of dry weather from Argentina had some effect here, as the Buenos Aires market was quoted as 3½ cents higher at one time. Liverpool, after a sharp break, early, rallied rapidly and closed 1 to 1⅞ pence higher.

Argentine acreage for the present crop is officially estimated at 19,017,000 acres, against 20,900,000 acres last year. Official reports showed temperatures there were 1 to 5 degrees above the average for the week ending Aug. 26. The outcome of the new Argentine crop is expected to have a great effect on the trend of world markets later in the season.

Pit observers said houses with foreign connections were persistent buyers of wheat futures here, but there was no export demand of consequence indicated at the seaboard. Winnipeg wheat was firm and closed ⅞ to 1⅞ cents higher. Cash houses were heavy buyers of September here against sales of December to change.

Primary arrivals today, 2,168,000 bushels; week ago, 2,482,000 bushels; last year, 2,310,000 bushels. Shipments, 2,213,000 bushels; week ago, 1,808,000 bushels; last year, 1,511,000 bushels.

Outside interest in corn is increasing and the local element showed less disposition to press the selling side. The December sold above $1 for the first time in some weeks.

The close was ⅜ to 1⅝ cents higher with the September showing the least strength. The persistent damage claims coming from a wide area are having their effect. The Van Dusen-Harrington Company of Minneapolis, in their final review of Northwestern conditions for the year, said that prospects for a bumper crop had vanished, due to the continued drought, and a great deal of light, chaffy grain is to be expected, while in some of the extremely dry areas feed grains are already being shipped in.

Heavy farm disappearance is to be anticipated, as pasturage is short. The upturn in futures was checked by profit taking and selling against offers.

Primary arrivals today, 761,000 bushels; week ago, 512,000 bushels; last year, 645,000 bushels. Shipments, 340,000 bushels; week ago, 295,000 bushels; last year, 461,000 bushels.

New Grain Handling Plant Will Unload 4,000 Tons a Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Liverpool will be without a rival as the greatest grain discharging port in Europe when the Liverpool Grain Storage and Transportation Company completes the installation of its new elevators next month, Vice Consul Cyril L. Thiel at Liverpool reported today to the Commerce Department.

Hamburg, Liverpool's greatest rival, recently discharged 3,000 tons of heavy grain in a day, while to compete with this record Liverpool discharged in an ordinary eight-hour working day during May 4,000 tons, and, in the case of one ship, an additional 1,200 tons was discharged in four hours' overtime work, Mr. Thiel reported.

Liverpool's new grain discharging plant will consist of two pneumatic intake elevators and conveying bands to discharge and convey to the warehouses direct from steamers. It will handle 500 tons an hour, which, in ordinary practice, means a total slightly under 4,000 tons a day.

Bay State Gasoline Tax Returns.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 29 (AP).—Taxable gasoline sales for the first seven months of this year indicated that the gasoline tax for each motor vehicle in Massachusetts this year would average $10, Henry P. Long, Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation, declared today.

BIG CUT IN ESTIMATE AIDS COTTON PRICES

SOUTHERN GROUPS BUYING

A reduction of nearly 900,000 bales in the estimate of the cotton crop made by a house in Chicago caused a further advance in prices on the Cotton Exchange yesterday and restored the level of quotations prevailing before the government report was issued early this month. Trading increased as the tenor of private reports caused the impression that a reduced estimate is to be expected when the Crop Reporting Board summarizes data from all sections of the Cotton Belt at the close of the week. Under more active buying by commission houses, trade and spot interests, as well as accumulation of contracts by professional operators, prices gained more than a quarter of a cent and ended 12 to 14 points higher than on Wednesday.

In addition to the loss caused by drought west of the Mississippi River, eastern sections report damage by weevil which had not been apparent earlier. For two weeks the Wednesday weather summary has indicated poor fruiting over a large area of Louisiana. The Staple Cotton Association recently reported less favorable progress in Mississippi. Access to a prominent Eastern spot firm from the Carolinas became less favorable in the last few days.

The feature of yesterday's trading was persistent absorption of contracts from New Orleans interests, while buying from Texas became a definite factor in the market and several spot firms were active buyers for the first time this month.

WIDENS COTTON FACILITIES.

Exchange Votes Agencies to Handle Deliveries in South.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange by a unanimous vote yesterday adopted amendments to the by-laws which will enable the Exchange to set up the machinery necessary to handle deliveries of cotton at five Southern points in addition to the present deliveries at New York.

To provide for Southern deliveries of cotton, it will be necessary for the warehouse and delivery committee of the Exchange to establish inspection agencies at Norfolk, Charleston, Galveston, Houston and New Orleans, in addition to the present inspection bureau at New York. One of the amendments adopted yesterday makes provision for this.

GRAIN EMBARGO RAISED.

Barley, Oats and Rye Shipments Accepted by Northwest Roads.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 29 (AP).—Shipments of barley, oats and rye from Northwestern States to the twin cities, Duluth and Superior, were accepted today by five railroads in this territory following a six-day embargo due to congested conditions at grain terminals.

More Retail Mergers in Prospect.

The trend toward more mergers in the retail field has by no means exhausted itself, according to views expressed yesterday. Negotiations in several important directions are said to be under way now, following a period in which action was stopped. The names of prominent stores are mentioned, but definite confirmation of the reports has been lacking as yet. The belief prevails, however, that before the Fall season is well advanced that several new and important linkings of department stores will be worked out.

Garrison as Dry Goods Director.

Announcement that Flint Garrison, editor of the National Dry Goods Reporter, has been named to succeed Alvin E. Dodd as director general of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, was made here yesterday by S. M. Bond, president of the organization. Mr. Garrison will assume his duties next Tuesday. Henry Matter, recently named secretary, will continue in that capacity. The post of director-general has been vacant since last April when Mr. Dodd resigned from the organization to direct the retail store program of Sears, Roebuck & Co. This year Mr. Garrison won the annual award of the Associated Business Papers for a series of articles on "An Opportunity for a New Wholesale Service."

Woolen Output Less in July.

A decline in production and billings, with a small rise in stocks on hand featured wool weaving in July, as compared with the previous month, according to the statistical report issued yesterday by the Wool Institute. The comparative yardage figures, with those for June in parentheses, follow: production 8,933,895 (10,737,942), billings 9,259,001 (11,131,371), value of billings $18,203,921 ($21,719,), and stocks on hand 7,188,889 (7,112,014). Billings of women's wear and manipulated warp fabrics gained, while those of men's wear dropped. As compared with July last year the figures show a net increase in production of both men's and women's fabrics, with a marked decrease of stocks on hand.

To Continue Textile Card Plan.

The standards for sample cards and methods of procedure in their distribution, developed last year by producers of cotton textiles, will be continued for the present, a committee which considered the question yesterday decided. Over sixty companies were represented at the committee meeting, which was held in the headquarters of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York. The committee was instructed to continue working on improvement of the present procedure. Howard Veit of the York-Seneca Corporation, chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting.

To Standardize Notion Sheets.

A committee of the National Notions Association is at work upon the standardization of catalogue sheets for jobbers' catalogues and also salesmen's loose leaf price sheets, it was announced yesterday. The present study grew out of the standardization of sample cards, which is now established in the notions trade. The objective is economy and greater simplicity, as under the former procedure a manufacturer has to have the sheets printed in a variety of forms for each jobber and salesmen. The results of the study will be reported upon at the meeting of the board of directors sometime next month.

Expect Art Needle Work Revival.

Women in New England are again taking up home needle work as a pastime and this fact has heartened the manufacturers of stamped goods and other art needle work supplies who regard that section of the country as a barometer by which the rise and fall of such activities among the women of the country may be gauged. The recent expressions of Mrs. Coolidge in favor of needle work are believed by the manufacturers to have started the New England revival and they count on its practice spreading rapidly throughout the country. Promotional work is under consideration, but the companies complain that store merchandise managers are skeptical of the revival and do not cooperate as much as they might.

Hair Pin Sales Increasing.

The increasing vogue for long hair among women has had the expected effect on the sales of hairpins and manufacturers report that the present year has been the best since hairpin sales began to drop off in 1921. Fall and Winter styles are expected to bring the hairpin into even greater demand than at present and producers are looking hopefully toward the new season. The trend so far has not stimulated the sale of hairnets to the extent which manufacturers believed it would, however.

Will Drop Design Piracy.

M. Markham Flannery, director of the trade practice conference division of the Federal Trade Commission, yesterday served warning on local business concerns accused by the Shirtings Fabrics Association of the piracy of designs. Mr. Flannery came here from Washington in response to complaints which were filed with the commission two weeks ago by the association. In company with W. P. Fickett, secretary of the shirting group, he visited three establishments here and later reported that pledges that the piracy practice would be discontinued were given by all three.

Urges Medium-Size Bath Towels.

Claiming that two medium sized towels are more satisfactory in use than one large bath towel, a local manufacturer of such merchandise is asking his customers to promote this idea among retail customers. The smaller towel, he claims, has a further advantage in being less expensive to launder. Towel orders during the present month have been well above those of July and of last August, according to reports. The tendency to solid color towels is more marked as the season advances although white towels with fancy dobby borders are also popular. A combination of a small, light towel bath mat, with a bath towel and face cloth to match, sold as a unit, has been well received.

Gray Goods Still Quiet.

Trading in the gray goods market continued quiet again yesterday with prices unchanged. Orders for 38½-inch 64-60s were filled at 7¼ cents and for 39-inch 68-72s at 8½ cents. A price of 9½ cents was quoted for 39-inch 72-76s. Although 38½-inch 60-48s continued to be quoted at 6½ cents, all sales were for delivery September 15 or later. Sheetings continued without feature.

CHAMBER TO FIGHT BRONX INCENDIARIES

Votes $5,000 Fund to Bring to Justice Men Responsible for 11 Apartment House Fires.

TO OFFER $1,000 REWARD

Logan Billingsley was authorized yesterday by the Bronx Chamber of Commerce, of which he is president, to spend not more than $5,000 to bring about "the arrest and conviction of the incendiaries" who in the past two months are said to have set fire to eleven large apartment houses under construction in the Bronx, causing damage amounting to several million dollars. Racketeering in the building industry has been held responsible for the fires.

The authorization was in the form of a resolution presented by William A. Cokeley, real estate appraiser, and adopted unanimously at a luncheon meeting in the Concourse Plaza Hotel. Mr. Cokeley cited figures showing that while building in Manhattan has shown large increases in the past two years there has been a marked decrease in building in the Bronx in the same period. He intimated that Bronx builders agree that racketeering in the industry has brought about the decline.

Charles V. Halley Jr., former Public Service Commissioner, expressed the hope that other organizations in the borough would follow suit by setting aside sums for dealing with the situation.

"It cannot be denied," Mr. Halley said, "that a certain element is working very much against our building industry, which is so vital to the welfare of the Bronx. No solution is as yet in sight. Perhaps the offer of rewards would prove fruitful."

Mr. Billingsley said after the meeting that building in the Bronx is practically paralyzed, with all business strongly affected. Probably 50,000 men in the building and allied trades have been thrown out of work, he said.

"I will use the $5,000 to employ the men I need to cooperate with District Attorney McGeehan in his investigation," Mr. Billingsley said. "A $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for these fires will be posted immediately."

A resolution that a telegram be sent to President Hoover, registering the protest of the chamber against the killing of Jews in Palestine, was read by the Rev. James Dunnigan and adopted.

WESTCHESTER RATES ON ELECTRICITY CUT

Reductions Ranging From 3½ to 17% Are Announced by Lighting Companies.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The Westchester Lighting Company and its affiliated companies, the Northern Westchester Lighting Company and the Peekskill Lighting and Railroad Company, announced today a reduction in electric light rates which to the average consumer will mean a saving of from fifteen to thirty-five cents a month.

Under the revised schedule, which will be filed with the Public Service Commission late this week, the electric lighting bills of residential and commercial customers will be reduced from 3½ to 17 per cent, depending upon the territory supplied and the amount of energy used. It is estimated that the rate cut will mean an aggregate saving to consumers of $500,000 annually. The rate probably will become effective Oct. 1.

The merging of the three lighting companies serving the county will mean a reduction in rates, differential when completed this Fall, according to Eugene H. Rosenquest, president of the Westchester Lighting Company.

"A differential in the electric lighting rates in the respective territories covered by these companies," he says, "will be reduced substantially with the merging of the Westchester Lighting Company, Northern Westchester Lighting Company and the Peekskill Light and Railroad Company. This amalgamation, which we fully expect to consummate this Fall, will be delayed several months owing to certain imperative formalities, legal adjustments, &c., that must first be met. This amalgamation, when effected, will effect certain economies, and some of these savings we have anticipated in the proposed readjustment of rates of the Northern Westchester and Peekskill companies."

It is pointed out that the present reduction is the third in three years, the total saving having amounted to $1,500,000.

CARPENTIER HAS NEW NOSE.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 29 (AP).—Although Georges Carpentier of France, former boxer of renown, has been a member of the film colony here virtually since he retired from the ring, he doesn't believe today his friends will recognize him. He has a new nose.

A plastic surgeon removed the bandages last night. In explaining his reasons for wanting a new model nose, Carpentier said: "When some 200 prize-ring opponents work on your beak, why, the old beezer is bound to deteriorate to a point of disadvantage in the pictures."

Tells of Albany Post Road Detour.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—County Engineer Charles MacDonald urged today that northbound New York motorists avoid using the Albany Post Road in Dobbs Ferry and Hastings during the holiday weekend. He said the road, though passable is long up and heavy traffic would result in tie-ups. He suggested that motorists northbound along the Hudson River use the Saw Mill River Parkway or Central Avenue, which tie into the Albany Post Road at Tarrytown or Ossining.

FIND SKELETON OF TRAPPER

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Aug. 29 (AP).—The skeleton of a trapper undisturbed perhaps for half a century was uncovered by a forest fire in the Lewis and Clark forest when the cartridges in the dead man's gun were exploded by the heat.

Fire-fighting crews heard the explosions but were unable at the time to investigate because of the flames. The fire was controlled yesterday and the curious men returned to the spot where they had heard the shots.

They found the skeleton of the man, who apparently had been killed by an animal, where he had made his camp.

Beside him was a rifle, bearing the date 1873, and an old heavy iron skillet. A salt shaker, rusted almost away, and two bottles of poison of a type used by trappers also were found.

Ready for Occupancy

THE CRAGSWOLD, a new co-operative, has available for immediate occupancy or October 1st, as desired, a few unusual apartments.

Apartment Sizes

6 rooms—sun room—3 baths
Larger if desired

Each has a sun room, electrical refrigeration, large closets, some cedar lined, room sizes more than generous, butlers' pantries, bathrooms with colored tile floors, borders, and showers, radiator enclosures, numerous kitchen cabinets and other features.

Prices range from $10,000 to $16,000, with low maintenance.

Purchase Terms

If it is desired to purchase apartments out of income rather than capital, an attractive plan is provided whereby your combined carrying charges, including maintenance, interest, and paying for the apartment are not greater than rent paid to a landlord. This plan is worthy of consideration.

Location

Situated in one of Westchester's finest communities and adjoining the Parkway Reservation, you have a location that is unsurpassed. The view is unobstructed and most of your windows look over trees and the Bronx River. Your view, your light, and sunshine are perpetually guaranteed.

THE CRAGSWOLD is located on Belmoy Road, Scarsdale Manor—a four minute walk south of the Scarsdale station of the New York Central. Motorists, use the Bronx River Parkway direct to Scarsdale. May we send you a floor plan? Better yet, come to the building. A resident representative is present at all times, including evenings.

HE HAS 25 MACHINES

Bought It Because Gear Shifting Has Kept Him From Driving Others—It Has No Clutch.

A combination gasoline and electric automobile, developing 60 horsepower, with no clutch or gear-shifting mechanism, has just been delivered to Colonel E. H. R. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, at his estate in South Dartmouth, Mass., it was learned yesterday from the General Electric Company. It is the first motor vehicle of its kind ever built and is said to be the mysterious car recently tested and pronounced successful at the Rauch and Lang Corporation's plant at Chicopee Falls, Mass.

The automobile is the result of combined experimental work by engineers of the General Electric Company and the Rauch and Lang Corporation. In external appearance it resembles the usual gasoline-driven car, except for a windshield double the average height, which was made especially for Colonel Green so that, when the top is raised, he may get in and out without stooping.

To start the car, the driver first steps on the starting button and then feeds the engine gas. The start is smooth. Even if the accelerator pedal is jammed down to the floor, the pickup will be gradual, it is said, because of an automatic electrical control. When the car is brought to a stop, the idling of the gas engine is not sufficient to cause the generator to produce enough electricity to turn the electric motor by which the car is driven. Yet the engine does not stall.

The speed of the car is controlled by the amount of gas delivered to the engine, and Colonel Green's model is geared to make 40 miles an hour, though by changing the gear ratio on the rear axle, the car could be made to run as fast as the usual automobile, according to General Electric engineers.

The electric generator is mounted directly on the fly-wheel housing of the gasoline engine, the generator armature revolving at exactly the same speed as that at which the engine turns over. A few inches back of the generator, or under the front seat, is the electric motor, connected by cable with the generator and coupled by a short drive shaft to the rear axle. As the generator is speeded up, more and more electricity is fed to the motor, and as the motor picks up so does the speed of the car. To reverse the car, a small lever is moved which shifts the current coming from the generator and reverses the operation of the electric motor.

Colonel Green ordered the car because he wanted to avoid the necessity for manipulating the usual clutch pedal and gear shift, it is said, and up to now has contented himself with driving a small electric storage battery car. He owns twenty-five automobiles of various makes but has never driven any of them except the electric. As soon as his new combination electric and gasoline car arrived, however, he took the wheel himself and was so well pleased that he ordered a second car of its kind with a limousine body. He plans to purchase a third, of the touring car type with an elevated driver's seat at the rear, it is said.

BELIEVED SHIP SUICIDE.

Body on Delaware Shore Thought to Be That of Philadelphian.

BOSTON, Aug. 29 (AP).—Officials of the Merchants and Miners Line today expressed the belief that the body of a man reported found on the Delaware shore was that of William Krauss of Philadelphia. Mr. Krauss, a passenger, was missing when the line's steamer Ontario, from Philadelphia, reached here last week.

When a stateroom door was broken down, a revolver holster was found on the bed together with a note to the commander of the ship. The captain said he believed the man stood outside the rail of the vessel and shot himself.

Asama Maru Makes 21 Knots.

The new motor liner Asama Maru of the N. Y. K. Line has been launched and made a speed of 21 knots in her trial trip, according to the New York office of the firm. Pictures of the new ship in her trial run were received yesterday aboard the Graf Zeppelin and reached here on the sixth day from Japan. The maiden voyage of the new motor ship will be Nov. 6.

Come to Canada

IT is cool and invigorating in Canada. Not cold in summer but bracing.

The famous old Province of Quebec—where you are heading—is swept its entire length by the broad St. Lawrence River, with waters blue as the Bay of Naples. Down this river ply our palatial ships.

You will scarcely believe you are but a short journey from your own stifling city. When the thermometer rises, rise too and be off—Canada is calling you!

IMPORTANT—Our ships sail from the head of the Great Lakes down the St. Lawrence River, through the Saguenay Canyon, nearly 1000 miles of beauty and grandeur. The river varies from roaring rapids to a vast expanse of blue water 18 miles wide. Steamers may be boarded at Lewiston, Rochester, Duluth or Detroit in the U. S. A., or at Queenston, Toronto, Montreal or Quebec in Canada.

The judgment of the Zeppelin's engineers . . . in construction, in motors and equipment, in the choice of motor oil—now carries conviction to every corner of the world.

Uncounted millions of motor-minded people have heard those five Maybach motors humming perfectly under VEEDOL'S film of protection . . . singing their endless song of flawless lubrication . . . and VEEDOL, the motor oil used in all the amazing flights of this great air liner, has become almost as famous as the name of the Zeppelin itself!

For VEEDOL gave a flawless performance on the first historic flight of the Zeppelin to the United States . . . and return . . . On the second flight . . . and return . . . On the long swing over the Mediterranean . . . and return . . . And finally, on this greatest voyage in the history of aviation . . . around the world. No more convincing tests of motor oil quality have ever been made.

Road test or air test . . . VEEDOL turns each into a conclusive victory! And if you will fill your car tomorrow with this same VEEDOL, in the proper grade, you will give your motor the same protection . . . the smoothness . . . and the same brilliant performance that made the flight of the Graf Zeppelin possible . . .
